Leaders of Chamber Stir Revolt.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—Frantic efforts to camouflage the open break between President Roosevelt and American business men were made without success today by leaders in both the New Deal and the United States Chamber of Commerce.

After the rank and file of delegates at the chamber's closing session today had insisted upon resolutions denouncing all but one of the President's legislative proposals, it was learned that Mr. Roosevelt may select Henry I. Harriman, retiring president of the chamber, to be federal housing administrator, replacing James A. Moffett.

Roper Backs President.

Another piece of New Deal window dressing to offset the manhandling which the President's program received from business men at the chamber's meeting occurred this afternoon when Secretary of Commerce Roper led his own "business and advisory council" to the White House, announcing loudly that these hand picked business men stood behind the President on the NRA and social security plans.

In addition, denials that the President had intended to snub the chamber by failing to send a greeting to its annual meeting were issued today by both Stephen Early, assistant secretary to the President, and by Harper Sibley, who today was elected president of the chamber.

Under the surface, however, bitterness seethed on both sides. One New Dealer shrugged and remarked that "big business has never been with us," and another, when asked about the chamber's banquet program last night in which the New Deal finances were attacked, wisecracked, "I thought the singing was fine."

Hostility in Open.

The rank and file of business men meanwhile showed none of their leaders' desire to hide their hostility toward the radical experiments of the New Deal. At the chamber's final session today they voted through a set of resolutions opposing all except one of the legislative measures which the President sponsored in his Sunday night address.

On two resolutions the rank and file actually revolted against the leadership of the chamber, throwing out the resolutions as too favorable to the New Deal. One resolution which was rejected after a fight led by George Houston, president of the Baldwin Locomotive works, and by the Illinois Manufacturers' association would have approved the President's proposed federal aid for aged indigent persons.

Reject Roosevelt Policies.

Resolutions which were whooped through by one of the liveliest sessions of the chamber in years included:

1. A resolution condemning abolition of utility holding companies, a measure indorsed by the President Sunday.

2. A resolution opposing the banking bill, also backed by the President, as allowing "political domination" of banking.

3. A resolution asking for relaxation and extension of the NRA instead of the tightening proposed in the administration bill.

4. A resolution postponing for "further study" the question of social security, although the President on Sunday night said social security bills should be passed at once.

Text of Resolutions.

The text of the resolutions on the federal reserve system and the NRA follows:

"The federal reserve system from its inception has received the steadfast support of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. We reaffirm our confidence in its fundamental principles. We urge that no change be made in the federal reserve act except such as will supply further strength and further usefulness to the plan. It is vital that every necessary safeguard exist against partisanship in the control and operations of the system.

"Proposals for substantial, even radical, changes in the federal reserve system are contained in title II of the pending banking legislation.

"Would Destroy Present Plan."

"The measure provides for such concentration of power over reserve and commercial banking as would mean the establishment of a central bank mechanism that, under political control and influence, would necessarily destroy the present plan, which was approved by both political parties and the public and is based upon the maintenance of a system of re-

FIREBUG ADMITS CRIMES; FACES MURDER CHARGE

Peterson Examined by Alienists.

H. Carle Peterson, 32 years old, fiction writer, former journalism student at Northwestern university, and confessed "firebug" of Rogers Park, will be formally charged with murder by arson.

That statement was made by Assistant State's Attorney Marshall V. Kearney last night following a long day of questioning and investigation, in the course of which Peterson confessed specifically to setting a fire at 7030 Sheridan road on April 22 in which Mrs. Julia Goldberg, 72 years old, lost her life.

Confesses Seven Other Blazes.

In addition Peterson has confessed to setting seven other fires on the north side. Taken about last night by police to "reënact" several of his crimes, he pointed out the exact parts of the buildings he had fired at 2758 Hampden court and at 1655 Wallen avenue. His home, where he lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. A. Peterson, is at 1740 Wallen avenue. The elder Peterson is a retired contractor.

After the hours of questioning, both at the Rogers Park police station and the state's attorney's office, Peterson was locked up for the night at the station. His belt and necktie were taken from him and a guard remained at his cell door all night to forestall any attempt at suicide.

Close Friend Also Held.

Also held at the station for further questioning was John Hubbard Jr., 6606 North Ashland avenue, a close friend of Peterson since grammar school days. Hubbard had been brought in to tell of his associations with the incendiary, but Lieut. Thomas Kelly, chief investigator for the state's attorney, expressed himself as dissatisfied with Hubbard's story and determined to question him further.

The police learned, and considered significant, that two incendiary fires had been discovered in the Hubbard home in 1932. Hubbard asserted that he did not know who set them, but that he now suspects Peterson.

Dr. Harry Hoffman, head of the behavior clinic of the Criminal courts, had several hours with Peterson at the Criminal court building when the young man was being questioned by Mr. Kearney. Dr. Hoffman came to the conclusion that Peterson was neither medically nor legally insane.

"He has no delusions or hallucinations," Dr. Hoffman said, "and I believe he is sane, as we use the word. However, I would like to have a further opportunity to study him before giving a specific diagnosis."

Calls It "Interesting Case."

The alienist added also that Peterson presented "an interesting case for a psychiatrist."

In the meantime the coroner's office has ordered the inquest into the death of Mrs. Goldberg advanced to 1 o'clock today and it is expected that recommendations to hold Peterson to the grand jury in line with Mr. Kearney's intentions will be made.

The last moves in the investigation of the prisoner's actions last night involved a trip first to Hampden court, where Peterson was accompanied by Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan, Assistant State's Attorney Gordon Nash, and several policemen.

Peterson pointed out the restaurant where he had eaten the morning of April 23, and was then led down Hampden court. No attempt was made to tell him the building in question, but, after carefully observing the rear of the apartment at 2758 he declared it was the place.

Asked About Rendezvous Fire.

Inside, on the rear staircase, he pointed out the charred place where the fire had been started. A similar scene took place at the 1655 Wallen avenue address, just half a block from Peterson's home.

He was then taken to the Rogers Park station, where Chief Herbert Burns of the county highway police was waiting to question him as to whether he had ever visited the Rendezvous roadhouse in Morton Grove.

That place was destroyed by fire on March 23 and seven persons lost their lives. Al Cowdrey, owner of the roadhouse, was brought to the station by Chief Burns, but after viewing Peterson he said he did not remember seeing him before.

Whether Peterson had any connection with the setting of fires at two churches on the west side, near a former place of employment, is another question which police will investigate today.

Peterson, it was learned, is a grad-

65 Filipinos Die in Revolt Over New Rule

MANILA, May 3 [Friday].—(AP)—Sixty-five persons were reported slain and many wounded in two battles growing out of bitter and widespread extremist uprisings in the provinces adjacent to Manila today against the projected new commonwealth governmental system.

The suddenness and extent of the insurgent movement stunned high authorities.

Capt. Jose Guido of the constabulary intelligence reported to the governor general's office that the situation is "very grave." He suggested that Acting Gov. Gen. Joseph R. Hayden dash back to Manila at once by airplane from a mountain province, where he has been on an inspection tour.

60 Killed in One Fight.

The two battles were fought between constabulary detachments and extremists called Sakdalistas, in Laguna province south of here. The constabulary reported more than sixty dead as the result of the principal fight at Cabuyao, Laguna, but said the situation there is under control.

Previously five persons were reported slain in a clash between Sakdalistas and constabulary men at Santa Rosa, Laguna. One constabulary soldier was reported among the dead and three others were wounded.

Sakdal Society Accused of Plot.

Additional reports told of disorders in Cavite, Bulacan, and other provinces adjacent to Manila.

The Sakdal society, a group of asserted extremists with communistic leanings, already has been accused of plotting to assassinate Manuel Quezon, president of the insular senate and foremost candidate for the commonwealth presidency.

The Sakdalistas recently charged that they were being "threatened with prosecution for sedition" if they voted against ratification of the commonwealth constitution in the plebiscite to be held May 14.

Quezon Says Revolt Over.

New York, May 2.—(AP)—Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine senate, said here tonight he is informed the revolt situation had been brought under control.

Steven Venot, president of the Philippine Telephone company, told him tonight, Quezon said, that communication between Manila and the provinces, disruption of which this morning heralded the disturbances, has been fully restored.

Quezon took issue in the strongest terms with a statement in Washington by Pedro Guevara, resident commissioner for the Philippines, that the riots "may even jeopardize the life of the Philippine commonwealth."

"That statement is absolutely foolish," Quezon declared.

EDEN GARDEN APPLE PROBABLY A PEACH, MISSOURIAN SAYS

St. Louis, Mo., May 2.—(AP)—It now appears that Eve's "apple," which started the world's first family trouble, was a peach.

Such was the theory given today by Lloyd C. Stark, nurseryman of Louisiana, Mo.

A small inedible peach which grows wild at elevations of 7,000 feet in Tibet and China is the daddy of all modern peaches, Stark said. The modern fruit was developed and carried through commerce into Chinese, Roman, Greek, and Persian civilizations.

"In more ancient days," Stark added, "the Chinese believed eating a certain kind of peach would bring immortality and preserve the body from corruption to the end of the world. The peach tree was the 'tree of knowledge' to the Chinese. It may have been that the 'apple,' eaten by Eve in the Garden of Eden after all was the Persian apple, or, as it is known today, a peach."

Cummings Is Deaf to Plea for Bergdoll

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, American world war slacker now in Germany, will receive no clemency from the United States department of justice, Attorney General Cummings said today.

Informed that Mrs. Bergdoll had landed in New York with the intention of seeking a pardon for her husband, Cummings said the question of clemency in the case would be a matter for the war department and the President.

"Bergdoll is a fugitive from justice," the attorney general said. "He was convicted at court martial and was serving time when he escaped. Two other indictments are pending against him in the eastern District court of Pennsylvania."

Without Citizenship.

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—A slim, blonde young mother, traveling on a passport which states that neither she nor her four children accompanying her have any citizenship whatsoever, arrived here today on the United States liner Washington to plead with President Roosevelt to pardon her husband, Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, who for fifteen years has lived in exile in Germany, branded and convicted as a slacker during the world war.

The startling thing about Mrs. Bergdoll, who finds herself on one of the strangest missions this age has witnessed, is her youthful appearance and calm. She is 28 years old.

Because she speaks little English the interview was conducted through an interpreter. She spoke frankly. Once she wept slightly. That was when she said in reply to questions that her children have no citizenship and that they know their father cannot return to the United States because he will have to go to prison.

Will Know Father's Plight.

"Do they know why?" she was asked.

"Not yet," she replied. "They are too little to understand, but some time they will."

Mrs. Bergdoll was met by her brother-in-law, Erwin Bergdoll, who planned to drive her to Philadelphia to visit her mother-in-law. She plans to see President Roosevelt in ten days.

Mrs. Bergdoll admitted quite frankly that one of the principal reasons why her husband wishes to be pardoned for evading the draft and to return to this country is to claim his fortune, which the federal government has tied up.

Since Bergdoll has lived in Germany the only funds he has had were gifts from his wealthy mother, Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll of Philadelphia. The only support he and his family have still comes from his mother, his wife said.

Jake's Ghost Outdoes Even Roy's Asthma

Roy Daugherty had asthma.

Roy and his wife live in a bungalow at 409 Webb street, Calumet City. They have lived there for the last three years.

Roy has had asthma all that time. In addition, ever since the Daughertys moved into the house they have been disturbed at night by moans and groans, and such-like carryings-on as ghosts generally indulge in.

Mrs. Daugherty doesn't have much faith in ghosts. She thought it was just Roy's asthma and paid no attention. Then she began to notice that the groans went right on, even when Roy wasn't there. Roy also noticed it—when he was there, of course.

Roy Hears About Jake.

Well, in the course of time somebody told Roy that the man to cure his asthma was Old Jake Boehringer, who lived on a farm near Black Oak, Ind., just across the state line. Jake makes his living by laying on of hands to heal people, looking into the future, finding lost fountain pens, and things like that.

While Old Jake was working on Roy's asthma, the subject of the moaning and groaning came up. Jake said he could probably attend to that, too, because it was right up his alley.

So Jake went into conference with one of his spirit friends and came up with the information that there was a body in the house.

Mr. Daugherty didn't like that at all, always having been prejudiced against living in houses with bodies, so he called in the Calumet City police. Accompanied by Old Jake, Sergt. Henry Wieklinski and Policemen John Zajcazowski and Marion Kowalski he returned to the house.

He Has the Answer.

Jake, who is about 72 years old, by the way, had a heavy growth of beard on his face, and a long wire spring in his hand. He said that the body was concealed in the basement.

"How long has it been there?" asked Sergt. Wieklinski.

Jake held his spring out in his hand and it waggled six times.

"Six years," said Jake.

"Under the coal pile in the basement," went on Jake, "you will find a new patch of concrete put in since the old floor was put down."

Perspiring, but willing, the policemen shoveled the coal pile aside, and, sure enough, there was the fresh spot of concrete. Old Jake vouchsafed further information.

"Underneath that," he said, "you will find black dirt. The body was buried in quicklime and covered with the black dirt."

Black Dirt, Sure Enough.

Old Jake was right about the black dirt, and this was considered of some moment, because the soil in that vicinity is normally sandy.

The policemen dug down about four feet and scooped out the earth. It contained some unidentified soft substance. The policemen weren't chemists enough to analyze it or determine whether it represented a human body destroyed by quicklime.

Chief of Police Schubert became interested by this time and declared he would have the earth analyzed by a coroner's chemist. In the meantime Old Jake had identified the body as that of Edgar Everhart, 32 years old, who, Jake said, had once been a bootlegger in Cicero.

Chief Schubert was impressed with Old Jake's theories and openly stated that he thought they were right. So Jake went home after giving a promise that he would appear again today.

Meanwhile the police of Calumet City, Chicago, and Cicero were coöperating in an effort to determine whether there ever was an Edgar Everhart and to clear up the mystery.

HIS ASSOCIATE ALSO ACQUITTED OF MAIL FRAUD

Fight to Restore Losses Planned.

Frank P. Parish and Samuel J. Maddin, former president and vice president of the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line company, were acquitted last night of charges of using the mails to defraud stock investors of $35,000,000 in the collapse of the company. The verdict was returned by a jury in the federal court of Judge John P. Barnes after a trial that lasted a month.

The jurors received the case at 3:26 in the afternoon. At 8:10 in the evening, after they had deliberated slightly less than four hours, they announced that their verdict was ready.

But the verdict was not read to the anxious defendants and their families and counsel for nearly three and a half more hours.

Delay Reading of Verdict.

Judge Barnes had left the courthouse at 5:30 to speak at a banquet at La Grange in honor of retiring city officials there. He was notified by telephone at the La Grange Country club as soon as the jurors were ready, but he did not arrive in court until 11:30 p. m.

Parish, who is 38 years old and was once known as the "boy wizard of finance," and Maddin, 59 years old, paced the courthouse corridors nervously waiting to hear their fate. It was with sighs of relief at the end of their period of uncertainty that they stood before the jury at last. A moment later the verdict was read and their nervousness was succeeded by happy smiles.

New Fight for Success.

"This means my vindication," said the blond, youthful appearing Parish. "I can go on now with my fight to bring Missouri-Kansas back to prosperity."

Maddin, also rejoicing in his acquittal, said that he was leaving immediately for his home at Owensboro, Ky., where he has an oil well project.

Parish went to his home at 710 Junior terrace, where his wife was awaiting him with their son, Lawrence, 16 years old. The news of the acquittal was telephoned at once to Mrs. Parish by George Parish, a brother of the defendant.

Attorney Dupuy Warrick of Kansas City, Mo., chief of defense counsel, and his associates, George A. Callaghan and Luis Kutner, were the first to congratulate Parish and Maddin.

Horace A. Hagan, special assistant to the United States attorney general, and his assistants on the prosecution staf, Warren Canaday and Harry Connaughton, left the courtroom immediately. They said they had hoped for a guilty verdict because the deliberations of the jury were longer than they had expected.

Three Ballots Taken.

Michael J. Kelly, foreman of the jury, who was at one time a guard in the penitentiary at Joliet, said that three ballots had been taken. On the first vote the jurors stood 11 to 1 for acquittal. On the second ballot a second juror voted guilty, making the count 10 to 2, but on the third ballot the jurors were unanimous.

Parish and Maddin were charged with making false representations in advertising and mail campaigns in 1929 and 1930 to induce the public to purchase stock in the company. Missouri-Kansas, or Mo-Kan, as it was known, went into receivership in the Delaware Chancery court in March, 1932.

In his instructions Judge Barnes told the jury that "wrongful intent" was the heart of the government's case.

Consider Turbulent Conditions.

"To find these men guilty," the judge said, "you must decide that not only were the alleged misrepresentations made but that Parish and Maddin knew and consented to misrepresentation. You may make allowance in your deliberations for the turbulent conditions of the years 1929 and 1930, but you must realize these conditions do not excuse fraud, if it existed.

"The failure of a business is not criminal of itself nor is the optimism or confidence of the defendants so to be construed. Such confidence and optimism in an enterprise, however, does not justify false statements to make the public invest."

Concerning the "voluntary exile" of Parish from February to December, 1933, Judge Barnes said that it must be considered with the remainder of the prosecution's evidence, and not as an isolated fact.

Parish had testified that he left the jurisdiction of the federal court here when the case was originally set for hearing in February, 1933, because he had to engage new counsel and he would have been making a "hopeless sacrifice" if he had gone on trial at the time. He voluntarily surrendered ten months later.

In the final arguments Parish heard himself referred to variously as a "grasping adventurer" and as a "man of courage, industry, ambition, and honesty of purpose."

Special Prosecutor Hagan, making the government's plea, characterized Parish as the "adventurer" and accused him of taking secret profits while Mo-Kan was tottering. Hagan attacked the defense contention that the ruin of Mo-Kan was caused solely by the alleged opposition of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and Cities Service, the latter concern headed by Henry L. Doherty.

Charges Market Rigging.

"Parish was not the gallant Lochinvar or Galahad, out to smite the Ogre Doherty, as he would have you believe," Hagan told the jurors. "He was not averse to going in with the big boys if he could get his cut. In his control of Mo-Kan, Parish rigged the market to facilitate his fraudulent sales of stock to the public.

"Maddin, too, was in the scheme. He would have to have been deaf, dumb and blind not to have known what was going on.

"When Parish tells you that he was persecuted by Doherty, Cities Service, Standard Oil, the Columbia Gas and Electric company, and now by the government, 'methinks he protests too much,' in the words of Shakespeare. There must be some foundation for all this blame attaching to him."

Plea of Defense Lawyer.

Defense Attorney Warrick argued that the government had failed to prove a case. He asserted that Parish's courage, industry, and ambition were beyond reproach and declared that if the big utility interests had not conspired against Mo-Kan it would be prosperous today.

"Parish wanted to bring natural gas through Mo-Kan's pipeline [from the Texas gas fields to the Indiana-Illinois border] to central western cities," Warrick said. "But he was blocked by the big interests which parcel out territories among themselves."

When the trial began on April 2, there were two other defendants, James McManmon and Ralph Crandall. They were freed at the close of the government's evidence last week when Judge Barnes granted their motions for directed verdicts of acquittal.

JUDGE UPHOLDS ZONING LAWS IN WINNETKA SUIT

By dismissing two suits Circuit Judge George Fred Rush upheld the zoning laws of Winnetka yesterday. With the dismissal, he issued injunctions to restrain the plaintifs from continuing the zoning violations. The plaintifs were Paul Reschke, 706 Center street, a contractor who keeps his concrete mixers stored in his back yard, and Gus Erickson, 710 Center street, who runs a truck delivery service from his home. They sued to have the zoning laws declared invalid, contending their property should not be zoned as residential because it faces railroad tracks. Attorney Frederick Dickinson, counsel for the village, asserted that the plaintifs' use of their homes for business purposes damaged property on Walden road.

SUBURB'S VETS PROTEST NEW POSTMISTRESS

American Legion members in Arlington Heights, northwest suburb, yesterday disclosed that they had protested to President Roosevelt against the appointment of Mrs. Thurman Dodge as postmaster for the suburb. Mrs. Dodge took office Wednesday.

Robert W. Howard, official of a Legion employment commission, declared that Mrs. Dodge was selected over Thomas Pope, 201 South Walnut street, Arlington Heights, an ex-service man who, Howard said, achieved a maximum rating in the civil service examination for the post.

In the protest to President Roosevelt it was disclosed that Mrs. Dodge's husband already was gainfully employed, that Pope has four dependents, is on relief and deserves preference as a veteran.

TWO HELD IN ROBBERY.

Michael Romanelli, 24 years old, 911 South Bishop street, and Joseph Phillips, 32 years old, 917 Vernon Park place, charged with the robbery of the Westinghouse Electric Supply company, 113 North May street, were held to the grand jury yesterday by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan.

OPPOSES STREET CAR LINES IN CHICAGO PARKS

Dunham Criticizes Bill Before Assembly.

Robert J. Dunham, president of the Chicago park district, yesterday expressed opposition to the bill introduced in the Illinois legislature by State Senator Thomas E. Keane [Dem., Chicago] which would grant the Chicago park district authority to permit the Chicago Surface Lines to run tracks through parks.

Mr. Dunham gave three reasons for his opposition. He said tracks and trolley wires would destroy park beauty, cut large parks into smaller units, and were difficult to get removed.

Bill Up Next Week.

Senator Keane has announced that he will call his bill for passage next week. He said it pertains specifically to permitting the extension of the Division street car line through Humboldt park for the convenience of persons living in that neighborhood.

"These people have to walk considerable distances to get to the transportation lines, and they have asked for this extension, which is now prohibited by law," Keane said.

"The people are entitled to transportation to, from, and through their parks," Mr. Dunham said, "but in the light of the present trend in transportation it would seem that this service could be rendered by buses."

Would Mar Parks.

"In many cases cutting one park into two or more parts, as a trolley line would do, would detract from the usefulness of the whole, breaking up the continuity of landscape and meadows, and possibly of golf courses and ball fields.

"The Chicago park district has nothing before it in the matter of trolley line extensions through the parks at the present time. Undoubtedly, if passed, this bill will be the forerunner of such applications. When they are made each one will be considered as an individual case."

NEW YORK CITY HAS 20 MILLION FOR MAY RELIEF

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—The board of estimate voted $20,002,000 for home and work relief this month at a special meeting today, while the aldermanic relief investigation developed testimony showing substantial waste in the purchase of materials because of red tape.

Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia said the month's appropriation would be short by $390,000 because of federal curtailment of funds for New York state. He said this shortage would be made up through an arrangement already reached between the federal and state relief agencies. The mayor's statement dispelled fear that 10,000 relief clients would have to be dropped this month.

Purchase Commissioner Russell Forbes told the committee today that the key weakness in relief administration was that its heads had great responsibility, but no authority. Red tape and regulation were responsible for substantial waste in purchasing relief materials; in some instances he said the overhead cost of the purchase exceeded the value of the article bought.

Last year the purchase department handled 90,000 relief requisitions involving a total cost of $14,500,000. Forbes said it would be conservative to estimate that the overhead cost on each order was $15. Previous witnesses have testified that they had to fill out numerous requisitions to get a five-cent pencil.

Action of Judge Will Speed Trial.

Judge Michael Feinberg in the Criminal court yesterday placed limitations on the state's case in the prosecution of eleven business men and labor officials who are charged with conspiracy to boycott and create a monopoly through the Trucking and Transportation exchange [T-N-T]. The ruling of the judge, which was to the effect that the prosecution could only try one conspiracy charge at a time, will bring the case to an end early next week.

Defense Attorney Benedict J. Short said he would immediately move for the dismissal of at least three of the defendants, one of whom has not been mentioned yet by any witness in the trial. He is Tony Palumbo, west side excavating and trucking contractor.

40 State Witnesses Heard.

John M. Bransfield, paving contractor, considered by the state as the main defendant, and John Steffin, former president of the Associated Contractors, Inc., and secretary and treasurer of the Engineering Service corporation, are the other two defendants whose names have so far been only briefly mentioned by state witnesses, Short said.

After devoting four weeks to hearing forty state witnesses on the operations of the T-N-T, which it is alleged was originally dominated by George [Red] Barker, slain gangster, Judge Feinberg told the prosecutors they have produced all the "accumulative evidence" he would allow. He consented to give them until Tuesday night to produce any evidence they may have to tie up the evidence so far produced in a conspiracy.

Can Charge Only One Plot.

"In this indictment you have charged three separate and distinct conspiracies," Judge Feinberg told Assistant State's Attorney Donald Thompson. "Under the law you can only charge one conspiracy in an indictment. You will have to elect at this time on which of the alleged conspiracies you desire to proceed."

The prosecutor said he would stand on the charge growing out of the operation of the T-N-T. The parts of the indictment alleging conspiracies through the Associated Contractors and the Engineering Service corporation will be dismissed at the conclusion of the state's evidence. It was through the latter two organizations, alleged affiliates of the T-N-T, that the prosecutors said they hoped to connect Bransfield and Steffin with the case.

TWO PEDESTRIANS STRUCK BY AUTOS DIE OF INJURIES

Adolph Nelson, 47 years old, 811 Milton avenue, died in the County hospital yesterday of injuries incurred Wednesday night when he was struck by an automobile at La Salle and Superior streets. Policeman John Kozub of the Austin station, driver of the car, said the accident was unavoidable.

Charles Schaeffer, 50 years old, a resident of the relief shelter at 659 Hobbie street, died at the County hospital of injuries suffered yesterday when he was struck by a Yellow cab at Jackson boulevard and La Salle street. The police are seeking to learn the identity of the driver, who continued his journey after striking Schaeffer. Witnesses said that the driver promised to return after delivering his passengers at a railroad station and take the injured man to a hospital.

The two deaths increased the Cook county motor toll since Jan. 1 to 310. Until 4 p. m. yesterday 252 had been killed and 4,907 injured in trafic accidents within the Chicago city limits. Figures made public by the National Safety council yesterday revealed that although the nation's trafic death toll is increasing, Chicago's has decreased in the first three months of 1935. There were 259 automobile deaths in the first quarter of 1934, and 185 in the same period this year.

Miss Gertrude Arnold, 55 years old, 5741 Drexel boulevard, supervisor of the Chicago Lying-In hospital, was severely injured last night when she was struck at 57th street and Cottage Grove avenue by a car driven by Carl Wilsenger, 5611 Cottage Grove avenue.

August Giuliani, 25 years old, 4442 Harrison street, driver of a truck that crashed into the rear of a street car at Harrison street and Western avenue Wednesday night, killing the conductor, Michael Brooks, who was raising the trolley, was held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter yesterday by a coroner's jury.

OUSTED DEPUTIES INDICTED IN KANE COUNTY GRAFT

Name Sherif's Relatives in Bribe Charges.

Irvin Kampmeyer and Henry L Prehm, discharged Kane county deputy sherifs, were indicted by a special grand jury in Geneva yesterday on two counts of accepting bribes and one of conspiring against the public morals. Kampmeyer is a brother of Sherif Albert J. Kampmeyer of Kane county and Prehm is a son-in-law of the sherif.

On returning the indictments before Judge Frank W. Shepherd of the Kane county Circuit court the jurors, headed by Louis J. Althen of Elgin, recommended that the investigation of graft conditions in Kane county be continued by State's Attorney George D. Carbary. The jurors' report expressed a belief that "all those involved in this case have not been indicted."

War on Slot Machines.

The grand jurors "ordered" law enforcement officials in the county to find, seize, and destroy all slot machines. They recommended to the legislature that racing handbooks also be legalized, since betting at race tracks is lawful.

Immediately after the indictments were returned, Judge Shepherd issued capiases for the arrest of Kampmeyer and Prehm. These were placed in the hands of Sherif Kampmeyer.

Sherif Kampmeyer dismissed the two deputies on April 27, several days after they were allegedly trapped while "shaking down" William Olinger, owner of the Club Royale roadhouse near Aurora.

Prosecutor Sets Trap.

State's Attorney Carbary testified before the grand jury that he had helped lay a trap in which Kampmeyer and Prehm were caught just after accepting $100 from Olinger for "protection."

One of the bribery counts in the indictment charged each man with accepting a $50 bribe from Olinger. The other alleges that the men also took $20 from Carl Hunter, operator of a race handbook on the East River road between St. Charles and Geneva. Bonds for each of the men were set at $7,500 in the indictments.

U. S. Debates Relief Plan to Aid Chicago.

With the giving of relief funds in 64 downstate Illinois counties at a complete standstill last night, Gov. Henry Horner sharply criticized the legislators who defeated the passage Wednesday night of the bill to increase the state sales tax from 2 to 3 per cent. At the same time he opened a new fight to gain the votes needed for adoption of the measure.

The governor was still hopeful, as were his advisers, that the two-thirds majority of 102 votes necessary to pass the bill in the house with an emergency clause [the senate already has approved] would be forthcoming next Tuesday. The emergency clause would put the tax increase into effect at once. Passage without the clause would not make the new tax effective until July 1.

It was the failure of the state to guarantee $3,000,000 of relief money monthly that caused the federal relief administration to shut off its flow of funds to Illinois.

Developments of the Day.

Developments in the tangled situation yesterday included:

1. Ten more Illinois counties, with 30,000 families on their relief rolls, closed their stations, making the total 64.

2. It was announced that five more counties, including St. Clair and Rock Island, would close their stations today for lack of funds. These five counties have 15,000 dependent families.

3. It appeared probable that 20 more counties in the state would have to close their relief stations tomorrow, leaving not more than 17 with any funds of any kind for distribution.

4. Harry L. Hopkins, federal administrator, indicated in Washington that he was considering a program to assist Cook county, which has allocated $1,200,000 of its own funds for emergency relief during the state-national deadlock, with a federal grant. He made it plain, however, that the state as a whole would not be helped until the legislature had provided the state's share of relief.

5. Robert J. Dunham, chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, expressed confidence that stations all over the state would be reopened next Thursday. Meanwhile, he said, he feared there might be suffering among those temporarily cut off from the rolls.

Join in Excoriation.

Gov. Horner was joined in his excoriation of the state representatives who declined to vote for the 3 per cent sales tax measure by Speaker John P. Devine of Dixon and Democratic Floor Leader Benjamin S. Adamowski. All made their remarks in Springfield.

"Those who voted against the bill will have to answer to their constituents for the results," declared the governor.

Mr. Devine said that unless the people who were represented by the recalcitrant legislators brought them to a sense of their duty, he feared the whole relief system of the state would be destroyed. Mr. Adamowski charged that the opponents of the bill were actuated by the hope of party success rather than by consideration of the plight of the poor.

Only 88 votes were cast for the tax measure on Wednesday, 14 less than necessary for passage. By a parliamentary procedure consideration of the bill was delayed when it became apparent that it could not pass with the clause making the increased tax effective at once.

Bill Must Be Amended.

It will be necessary to amend the bill before calling it up again next Tuesday. In its original form May 1 was specified as the effective date. This, it is believed, will be changed to May 15. The bill can be advanced to third reading and called up for a vote on Tuesday. The legislature, now in recess, will convene again on Monday.

Over the week-end the Horner administration will make a strong effort, it was reported, to get the additional votes needed. Rumor had it that six or seven Republicans who did not vote Wednesday were willing to support the 3 per cent bill and that only seven or eight more would have to be persuaded.

In the event of another failure the bill could be passed, to become effective July 1, with 77 votes. Gov. Horner said he did not know whether Washington would grant aid at once if the latter type measure were adopted. He added that he had been definitly informed by Administrator Hopkins that the government "has no intention of taking over Illinois relief administration."

At End of Their Rope.

The ten counties which came to the end of their relief rope last night are Cumberland, DeKalb, Ford, Kankakee, Johnson, Macon, Tazewell, Vermilion, White, and Will. St. Clair, which will close its service today, is second only to Cook county in the number of indigent families.

Estimates placed the number of families who have already been completely shut off at 105,000. Some of them, however, may be able to exist for a time on relief orders issued prior to April 30.

Where relief is still being given, it is on an emergency basis, with only food and medical service being granted. Cook county officials believe that their $1,200,000 can be stretched, on this basis, to May 15. Many landlords in Chicago have notified the IERC that they will evict tenants on the relief rolls unless assurances are given that rent will be paid.

Hopkins Is Mum.

Federal Administrator Hopkins in Washington refused to say what would be done for Illinois if the sales tax passed without the emergency clause. He was, he said, confident that the legislature would put up the share demanded of the state at once. If that were done, he said, federal funds would be sent here speedily.

Upside Down Stomach Righted

Getting Stronger

Virginia Miller, seven month old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Miller, 735 Junior terrace, is at home and gaining weight after two operations performed at St. Luke's hospital to correct an "upside down stomach."

The girl was born aparently normal, but when she did not gain weight an x-ray was taken and showed the maladjustment of the stomach. The first operation was performed last Dec. 18 by Dr. Willard Van Hazel. A second operation became necessary three weeks ago to remove adhesions on the diaphragm. The baby, who weighed 7 pounds 6½ ounces at birth, now weighs 12 pounds 4 ounces and eats all food for a normal child of that age.

Lawyer Sues Two Police Officers; Charges Assault

Suit for $100,000 damages against Capt. Daniel Gilbert, head of the uniformed police, and Lieut. Charles E. Egan of the state's attorney's police was filed in the Circuit court yesterday by Attorney Joseph T. Harrington. The lawyer charges that on April 5, while he was representing the Chicago Coal Teamsters' union, the policemen assaulted and ill treated him in the Criminal court building.

INSANITY LURKS IN RELIEF DENS, SAYS DOLE TAKER

Misery and Smoldering Rage Rule Shelters.

[The following story is taken from notes made by a young man who has been living in transient relief shelters in New York and Chicago for the last six months. He is not an investigator or a reporter, but a relief "case," who, possessing powers of observation and description and some experience as a newspaper writer, submitted the papers out of which this article is fashioned. Whether relief under the conditions he describes is a curse or a blessing may be left to the reader to decide. Its futility toward making of citizenship, or stabilization of character, appears obvious.]

BY CASE NO. 56427.
[Chicago Transient Relief Rolls.]

The first week on transient relief in Chicago is the hardest. During that time the newly registered doler sleeps in a flophouse and takes his meals at the Randolph street bureau. Any change after that is literally relief.

At the time that I officially became a relief case late in December the flophouses were filled to capacity with men whose room rent the government was footing. The habitues of such places seem hardened beyond all feeling. They are called "stiffs," I suspect, because they are insentient.

To the mind of the duly oriented transient relief recipient, there are in this country today only two kinds of people—capitalists and relief cases.

What a "Capitalist" Is.

Capitalists are self providers, their own patrons, men and women who live in private houses or apartments, wear good clothes, eat good food, drive automobiles, and employ their time mostly in making and spending money.

Relief cases are officially known by numbers; their patron and provider is Uncle Sam. With the exception of family cases, whose existence tends somewhat to the normal, they live in "scratch-houses" or dormitories, wear questionable clothes, eat questionable food, drive no automobiles, and spend most of their time doing nothing.

The world of the latter is a world removed from the conventional business and pleasure—a world of primitive viciousness, or unorthodox laws and strange values, in which poverty, indolence, vice, abnormality and ugliness abound, and in which bitterness and despair are the common emotions. It is an underworld without the criminal glitter, a burlesque show without grace or humor, a graveyard where men bury their respectability.

No Gratitude; Only Anger.

If there is any gratitude at all among men on relief I have never heard it expressed. They consider themselves victims of an unnameable but malicious conspiracy, and they fret at eating bad food, wearing cheap clothes, and sleeping in buggy beds.

My own advent into this world took place in New York City. The case worker who interviewed me was a man about 30 years old, with red, bushy hair and eyes which alternately stared and grew dreamy behind horn rimmed glasses. Before he concluded he had given me to understand two things, that he was a communist and that he expected I would become a communist too after I had seen as much unemployment relief as he had.

I wondered if all state employed communists were as frankly open about their views as he was. But he was the first and the last communist I encountered among case workers, either in New York or Chicago.

"Convinced of Insanity."

A man who is living in a transient dormitory in Chicago, a university graduate and an unpublished writer, told me had become convinced of the incipient insanity of everybody living on transient relief. He based his conclusion, he said, on observation of men around him and on the consciousness of his own mental derangement since he entered upon relief more than a year ago.

His room had the appearance of having never known a broom or a mop since his occupancy. The bed was unmade and the bare cement floor was strewn with crumpled yellow copy paper. On a small dust covered desk in one corner lay four books: "Varieties of Religious Experience," by William James; a copy of Pope's translation of Homer's Illiad; Dostoevsky's "Crime and Punishment," and a Gideon Bible. Two of the books were overdue at the public library and he had no money to pay the fine.

Denounces Relief Entirely.

He talked well, this writer. I have known many talking authors on relief, but he was by far the most articulate. His pale, rather delicate face worked at times convulsively, his madness—for he insisted he was mad—came pouring out of him in a bitter denunciation of everybody and everything connected with relief.

He told of thieves and perverts and men whose thirsts were so desperate that in winter time they drained the radiators of parked automobiles for the alcohol in the non-freeze fluid, running it through stale coffee grounds to remove the poison.

On "pay day" at our dormitory two out of three men proceeded to get drunk. In the alcove outside my room on the fourth floor a poker game was in session from early evening until four in the morning.

Din of Petty Squabbles.

There was a fist fight and a hundred petty squabbles. The tumult and din at all hours, the door slammings, the wild shoutings, the loud laughter, would have driven a nervous person to distraction. It is doubtful if a man of delicate constitution and keen sensibilities could long endure life in a flophouse.

In New York City the uncivility of relief workers was the greatest source of agitation. A 22 year old man shot and killed the secretary of the welfare institution in which I was staying because the man snarled at him once too often.

In Chicago the case workers are civil enough, but the food is bad. Everywhere, I know, the boredom of relief is a worm in men's hearts whose insatiable gnawing makes them frantic.

RECEIVER IS SOUGHT FOR SEWELL ESTATE BY 'INDISCREET' WIFE

Los Angeles, Cal., May 2.—[Special.]—Mrs. Leah Clampitt Sewell, who was ruled "indiscreet" but "not guilty of misconduct" in the "wife swapping" case of the Barton Sewell and Walter Emerson couples, today was in Superior court to file a petition for the appointment of a receiver for the estate of her wealthy sportsman husband, Barton F. Sewell.

Mrs. Sewell, who also has a separate maintenance action pending against Sewell, estimates his fortune at $14,000,000. In her maintenance action she has asked $2,000 monthly support money, $50,000 for lawyers' fees, and $2,500 court costs. This petition will be heard on May 14.

In reply to her statement that her estranged husband is worth $14,000,000, Mrs. Sewell's mother-in-law, Mrs. Blanche M. Sewell, filed a court reply stating that the estate was hers, and that all Barton Sewell had was "$650,000 and debts."

684,918 Employes in U. S. Executive Branch in March

Washington, D. C., May 2.—(AP)—The civil service commission today placed the number of employés in the executive branch of the government at the end of March at 684,918, representing an addition of 4,372 over February. This did not include the legislative, judicial or military branches. The pay roll for the departments and offices covered in the tabulation was $100,730,579 for the month.

BRITAIN URGES HITLER TO HELP END WAR THREAT

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 2.—Great Britain's policy is one of peace and appeasement. At the same time she will keep her powder dry. This was made clear by a declaration of policy announced by Prime Minister MacDonald in the house of commons this afternoon in opening the debate on foreign affairs.

Crowds, including more than twenty ambassadors and ministers of foreign powers, packed the galleries. If they came expecting fireworks, they were disappointed. The speech was a calm and reasoned statement of Britain's desire for peace and an appeal to Germany to join in a collective system insuring it.

Avoids Offending Germans.

It was evident that every word was carefully studied to avoid giving offense to Germany. The temper of the house was shown when the prime minister was cheered as he repeated Reichsfuehrer Hitler's declaration that the Nazi dictator would abide by any agreement he entered into freely and without compulsion.

This may not have been good news for the French and Russian ambassadors in the gallery. Their countries have been trying their hardest to get Britain into an encircling alliance against Germany. At the same time MacDonald made it clear that Britain would arm for any eventuality but with the hope it would never be necessary to use those armaments.

The prime minister began his speech with a passionless recital of events leading up to and subsequent to the Anglo-French declaration of Feb. 3 regarding a collective scheme designed to reinforce peace in Europe. That declaration, MacDonald declared, still stands and nothing done at the Anglo-French-Italian conference at Stresa, Italy, or elsewhere affected it. Germany, he declared, still stands invited to join a collective system designed to prevent war.

Invitation to Germany.

At this point MacDonald rebuked Germany for choosing this time to announce resumption of military conscription and the building of a naval and air force, but he reiterated that Britain at least is ready to meet her and discuss the situation in a friendly manner.

"Our aim is to increase the number of coöperators," he said. "Will not Germany now come over and show her readiness to help restore international confidence so rudely shaken by her recent independent action regarding armaments?"

Referring to Germany's submarine building program, the prime minister called it ominous. Nevertheless, he declared that while his government is not in any way condoning unilateral denunciation of treaties, the scheduled naval conversations with the Germans would still take place in London after King George's silver jubilee celebrations.

To Build Up Air Force.

In concluding, MacDonald gave assurance that steps already had been taken to increase Britain's air force in view of the new information about Germany's strength in the air. He declined to go into details.

"We propose to put our power of defense into a state which will enable our people to feel that they are protected," MacDonald said. "Under no circumstances would we accept any position of inferiority to whatever air force may be raised by Germany in the future."

"Our policy combines defense and collective security with international agreement upon armaments and peace. As I have said and I now repeat, Britain's policy is not aimed at military alliances, but at the widest possible coöperation. The present understanding between France, Italy and ourselves we value as a guarantee of peace. It challenges no one. Every other nation which contemplates peace will be welcomed into this free companionship."

MacDonald was enthusiastically cheered from all parts of the house when he sat down.

George Lansbury, leader of the official Labor party opposition, described the prime minister's speech as disappointing because of the reference to an increase of armaments. He made a plea for total abolition of aerial warfare and for the inclusion of the small nations of Europe in any new pacts and alliances. Unless they are included, he said, there could be no real peace.

Winston Churchill, fiery Conservative, then arose. He blamed the national government for not possessing the real facts on armaments earlier. He said Germany had been arming for years to secure predominance in Europe and reverse the results of the world war.

"If my warnings had been heeded nine months ago we now would be getting results," Churchill acidly remarked.

The government's assurances of British air superiority over Germany now are admittedly wrong, he added. There is no doubt, he said, the strength of the Nazi air force already is substantially greater than that of Britain.

"Germany's military planes are more modern and the rate of their output is ten times that of Britain," the statesman asserted.

Churchill deduced that by the end of the year Germany would have an air force three or four times as strong as that of the British. He said the remedy to this situation is coöperation with friendly nations.

"Isolation is no longer possible and Britain must act with France and Italy and countries great and small to preserve peace under the league of nations," he cried.

Sir Austen Chamberlain said he shared Churchill's anxiety and declared himself equally puzzled at the government's ignorance of what is going on. He uttered the belief that the situation in Europe today is graver than at any time since 1914 and warned it would take all the government's energy to put its defenses in an adequate position. Chamberlain concluded:

"If Germany is really peacefully intending to enter into partnership with other nations, she will be welcomed by us perhaps more heartily than by any other nation, but if she does not join the family of nations, and if instead is seeking to persuade that she means to extort or impose her will, then she will find this country in her path again, and with this country those great free commonwealths which once again will be her master."

Simon Takes Full Blame.

Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon wound up the debate. He took full responsibility for the estimate of the German air force given the house last November. He said it was in accordance with information furnished by government experts, who had to work "under conditions of the greatest obscurity."

Referring to Hitler's statement that Germany had reached aerial parity with Britain, Simon revealed that the government since had been informed the statement was meant to imply that Germany had a first line strength of 800 or 850 planes—this is equal to the royal air force, including overseas units.

Simon wound up with a strong appeal to Germany to carry out her promise to seek equality within a security system.

Jewish Order Adopted 'Zion Protocols' in '97, Nazi Claims

BERNE, Switzerland, May 2.—(AP)—Ulrich Fleischauer, Nazi expert, asserted today that the Jewish order of B'nai Brith, at a secret meeting in Basel in 1897 adopted the "protocols of the elders of Zion."

The charge was made during the trial of Swiss Nazis who are accused of slandering the Jewish people.

Fleischauer said it was the B'nai Brith, and not the Zionist congress held at Basel at the same time, which adopted the protocols, alleged by the Nazis to express plans for Jewish domination of the world.

Headquarters in Chicago.

"This order which has a Masonic character," said Fleischauer for the defense, "has headquarters in Chicago and its lodges are spread throughout Europe. It also has for its aim the defense of Jewish interests before the league of nations."

The Nazi expert read Jewish papers, which he claimed showed the same spirit as the protocols, and asserted "from their youth, Jews are brought up to hate Christians."

He said the B'nai Brith has political aims as well as humanitarian aims.

Links Herzl and Bela Kun.

Fleischauer linked the moral ideas of Theodore Herzl, Zionist leader, with the ideas of Bela Kun, fallen Hungarian bolshevist. He said Herzl often referred to the "dialog in Hades between Machiavelli and Montesquieu," which he said was closely associated with the protocols.

The witness and the defendants, at the opening of the trial, denied all connection with an article in a German language paper at Lorrach, on the Swiss frontier, which made derogatory remarks about the court. The court overlooked the incident.

Brands Charge False.

Washington, D. C., May 2.—(AP)—Alfred M. Cohen, international president of the B'nai B'rith, said tonight that the charge that his organization had adopted the "protocols of the elders of Zion" is "as false as the protocols are false." The charge was made today in Berne, Switzerland, by Ulrich Fleischauer, Nazi expert.

TWO MEN KIDNAP BOY, GAG AND HANG HIM ALIVE FOR SIX HOURS

Nashville, Tenn., May 2.—(AP)—Within a block of his home, Aaron Hay, 11 year old boy, hung alive for six hours in a garage today, gagged with his own socks and bound hand and foot by two men who had taken him there.

After spending hours suspended face down, he worked loose his gag in midafternoon and attracted the attention of a schoolmate neighbor, Donald McNeese, who freed and helped him home.

McNeese found Hay with his hands and feet tied behind his back, suspended with wire that ran from his hands and feet to the rafters.

His parents said that he was under a doctor's care, but that apparently he was suffering only from shock and from bruises on his arms, body, and legs.

The boy said two tall, slim men seized him as he started for school at 8 a. m., put him in a garage, bound his hands and feet with wire, and shoved his socks into his mouth. Then, he said, they suspended him with wire.

CHALIAPIN TAKEN TO PARIS AS HIGH FEVER DEVELOPS

PARIS, May 2.—(AP)—Feodor Chaliapin, noted Russian singer, was seriously ill tonight at the American hospital suffering from grippe and bronchitis.

The basso's illness was complicated by acute rheumatism of the joints and physicians feared pneumonia might develop. While his condition was not immediately described as critical, a high fever caused fears a more serious turn might be expected.

The singer arrived at Le Havre from the United States last Saturday. He was removed to the hospital in an ambulance today. His wife and a nurse accompanied him on the journey.

SPAIN'S CABINET TO QUIT TODAY; SEEK NEW RULE

MADRID, May 2.—(AP)—Premier Alejandro Lerroux announced tonight that his cabinet would resign tomorrow to permit a reorganized government to be formed before the reopening of parliament next week. The announcement came abruptly after the premier conferred with President Alcala Zamora. Speculation centered immediately upon whom Zamora would ask to form a new cabinet.

Lerroux intimated there might be considerable difficulty in reorganizing the cabinet, but expressed confidence a new government would be formed before parliament reopens.

GERMANY'S AIR FORCE BOWS TO NONE—GOERING

Aviation Minister Boasts Powerful Fleet.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 2.—"Germany's air force always will be as strong as any outside combination, for or against peace. The German air force now has an aerial weapon so powerful that whoever attacks us will have an exceedingly difficult time."

Gen. Herman Wilhelm Goering, minister of air and second most powerful man in Germany, delivered this statement today at a luncheon given by foreign newspaper correspondents in honor of the militant Prussian and his actress bride.

Goering said that whenever other nations decide to disarm, Germany will disarm on exactly the same scale as they do, but on a "basis of absolute equality, not of theoretic equality."

"Not One Old Plane."

"The German air force has not one old motor, not one old plane," said the air minister, a war ace. "By rearming Germany has rendered a service to peace. Nothing is more dangerous to the peace of a continent than a disarmed state surrounded by highly armed nations. Germany threatens no other nation, but she refuses to allow others to threaten her or to mix into the reich's internal affairs.

"The reich will not allow large or small nations to provoke her into a flict. We have suffered so much in the recent decade that we have developed a thick skin and strong nerves. We are facing the situation quietly.

"That we will combine our air fleet with anti-aircraft forces tends to show our aim is chiefly defensive. Our air force is not as big as foreign countries picture to themselves. It is not the number of airplanes but their quality—it is not the number of flyers but their character and ability that are deciding factors. Our world war flyers demonstrated we are able to fight numerical superiority. I can say with due modesty that no enemy ever saw my back. In this same spirit which marked Boelke and Richthofen (wartime flying aces) our young airmen are trained.

Ready to Join Air Pact.

"Germany is willing to coöperate in an air convention and she will not hesitate to use her air forces not only for the defense of Germany but also for the safety and defense of European and world peace.

"We are not walking about arrogantly with a chip on our shoulders, but the day is over when other nations can grant equality with Germany. We have equality today because we took it."

Goering in his talk intimated that secret construction of planes has been proceeding during the last year.

"When some newspaper men, at a time before we admitted an air fleet existed, were writing about sounds they heard in the forests they were not far wrong. We were indeed manufacturing parts of planes in secret places."

81 Planes in a Squadron.

Conversations with Goering and his aids revealed that Germany's new air force is organized under a new plan. The force is composed of a "chain" of three airplanes attached to a "swarm" of nine. The "swarm" forms a part of a "wing" of 27 planes belonging to a squadron. A squadron is composed of 81 "regular" planes reinforced by "special" planes. These special planes in some cases may increase the number of planes in a squadron up to 110.

The Nazis do not plan to use aircraft carriers, since the main purpose of the air force is to defend the country, Goering explained. The exact strength of the air fleet was not revealed, although the air minister said it will be "as strong as that of the strongest air force in Europe," not including Russia. Germany wants as many airplanes as France. She expects that Great Britain soon will be stronger than France, but Goering intends to keep up with her.

Secrets Are Revealed.

German experts meanwhile disclosed that new anti-aircraft projectiles reach an altitude of 7 miles, starting with a muzzle velocity of 860 meters a second [2,820 feet]. They also whisper about a machine gun which operated perfectly at the highest altitudes, protected by special anti-freezing devices. Furthermore, they speak of operating the fighting planes with the help of new radio devices in directing fire against an invisible enemy discernible only to a supersensitive electrical ear.

It was announced today that the first recruits for Germany's new conscript army would be drafted Oct. 1 to serve one year.

NAZIS RESTRICT USE OF METALS TO SAVE SUPPLY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 2. — A search for metal substitutes began in Germany today after the issuance of sweeping restrictions on the use of copper, nickel, tin, lead, mercury, chrome, cobalt, and their alloys by the control department for nonprecious metals.

This follows Reichsfuehrer Hitler's May day statement that Germany lacks raw materials and has no foreign currencies with which to buy them. Baby buggies, hat racks, thermometers, shaving accessories, and water pipes were among the many objects affected by the new law, which is designed to conserve the national resources.

Copper and tin and their alloys are banned for the manufacture of all auto accessories, safety razors, hair-cutting machines, ash trays, letter openers, and numerous other household articles. The electrical industry is forbidden to use copper and tin on all fittings for vacuum cleaners except motors. Lead must not be used to make water pipes and sewers.

Actress Stops Here

Edwina Booth, film actress, who contracted tropical fever in Africa while starring in the production of the movie "Trader Horn," passed through Chicago yesterday en route to London for treatment. She arrived from Los Angeles on the Overland Limited and was moved from the North Western station to the Union station on a stretcher. Miss Booth left an hour later for New York on a Pennsylvania lines train. She was accompanied by her father, Dr. James L. Woodruff, of Los Angeles.

NINE ARRESTED, LOOT RECOVERED IN JOLIET HOUSE

Eight men and a woman were being held by Joliet police last night and several truckloads of stolen merchandise were recovered in a raid on a 15 room house at 329 West Marion street, Joliet. The loot, valued at $2,000, consisted of automobile accessories, food, and tobacco taken in recent store burglaries in and near Joliet.

Four of the men held are brothers. They are Matthew, John, Victor, and Antone Sessner, all of the Marion street address. Also held were Thomas Cline of Bloomington, Ill.; Peter Smith, auto theft parolee of Joliet; William Bright, a former convict who gave his address as 1312 Washington boulevard, Chicago, and George Quinlen, and his wife, Marie, 32 years old, of Joliet.

Besides the stolen goods, police seized revolvers and sticks of dynamite. Investigator Edward Powers of the state's attorney's office said that Matthew Sessner, Smith, and Cline will be charged with burglary and that they had confessed seven such crimes.

SUES HOTEL FOR $25,000.

Alleging that he was injured by the breaking of the faucet of a shower bath, John P. Schorr, 45 years old, who lives in the Buena Park hotel, at 4145 Broadway, filed a $25,000 damage suit against the hotel in the Circuit court yesterday.

FRANCE, RUSSIA ENDSKIRMISHING; SIGN 'WAR PACT'

Accord Brought Within League Covenant.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 2.—After three weeks of skirmishing by French and Russian diplomats trying to outwit each other the Franco-Russian mutual aid pact was signed tonight at the Quai d'Orsay by Foreign Minister Pierre Laval and Vladimir Potemkin, soviet ambassador.

In general, Laval is conceded to have won the advantage. An explaining protocol added to the five articles of the treaty proper specifies that the obligations of mutual assistance apply in Europe only, thus allaying French fears of being embroiled in Russian far eastern quarrels.

The French diplomats also succeeded in bringing the pact into line with the league of nations covenant and the Locarno treaty, depriving the Russians of what they had fought for as the feature most useful to them—automatic assistance by France without preliminary consultation at Geneva.

Provisions of Pact.

Article 2 does, however, provide for "immediate assistance" which becomes effective if the league council does not reach a unanimous decision in defining an aggressor. Article 3 stipulates mutual aid in "cases of unprovoked aggression," but it must be according to methods fixed by the league covenant.

Finally, Laval has saved the possibility of further direct negotiations with Berlin by a rider in the protocol safeguarding the validity of previous treaties—which means Locarno—and forecasting the possibility of a new eastern regional pact to which other nations may be admitted.

A further restriction, meant primarily for Polish consumption, is that obligations exist only if the territory of either party is invaded.

Reds Satisfied.

French opinion of all shades appears relatively satisfied with the accord. Communists and left wing sympathizers consider that they have got the essential, which is a new French tieup with Russia. The conservatives, who look askance at commitments with a revolutionary power, and sympathizers with the late Aristide Briand's policy of a direct understanding with Berlin are both reassured by the many strings put on mutual assistance action.

Especial attention is given the fact that France has a double check on possible complications — first, the chance of the league council giving a unanimous decision defining an aggressor, and, second, that failing, the Locarno treaty comes into play, with Great Britain and Italy being forced to stand beside France.

Above all, the French feel they have escaped falling into the trap of Russia starting a war for her own purpose and involving France automatically in order to further the cause of world revolution, which, Red leaders proclaim, can come only out of another general conflagration.

Report Nazis to Arm Rhineland.

PARIS, May 2. — (AP) — A dispatch from Nancy to the newspaper Le Matin tonight said German schutzpolizei [picked police] were stationed along the Rhineland's demilitarized zone ready to occupy it in violation of the Versailles treaty.

The newspaper said it was learned authoritatively the police were stationed all along the east bank of the Rhine, especially at Düsseldorf, Frankfort, Mannheim, Karlsruhe, and Stuttgart.

"They are ready at the first signal to cross the Rhine," Le Matin said, "and occupy in a military manner the entire region, which, according to the Versailles treaty, should not receive any garrisons."

Premier Calls "Manager" of Dionnes "27% Kervin"

OTTAWA, Ont., May 2.—(AP)—Criticism of Leo Kervin, "manager" of Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne of Callander, Ont., for his activities in connection with the Dionne quintuplets, was voiced by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn of Ontario in an interview here today. "We call him '27 Per Cent Kervin,'" Premier Hepburn said. "To make money for himself he would put the babies between the bearded lady and the sword swallower."

PARK RIDGE BANK LOOTED; ROBBERS IGNORE TEAR GAS

Four bandits, one with a machine gun, invaded the Citizens' State bank of Park Ridge at 12 South Northwest highway yesterday. Amid the fumes of tear gas released by a girl employe of the bank the robbers gathered up about $3,000, with which they escaped in the direction of Chicago.

Nine employes, four of them women, and one customer were in the bank when the gunmen's automobile swept up to the curb in front. The four robbers leaped out and rushed into the bank, commanding those inside to lie on the floor. Miss Lucille Walton, a teller, saw the machine gun and touched a button that released the tear gas.

Disregarding the gas, one of the robbers climbed over the wicket into Miss Walton's cage, and from the counters swept loose bills into a bag. As he was forcing Miss Walton to open a small safe the tear gas became unbearable and he and his companions fled to their automobile, driven by a fifth man.

George A. Palmquist, cashier, phoned police before he was compelled to join the others on the floor. By the time the police arrived from the station, less than a block away, the robbers had gone.

MENTAL EXPERTS SEE REPRESSIONS IN PYROMANIACS

Usually They Know Right from Wrong.

H. Carle Peterson, pyromaniac, probably has a compulsion neurosis, a desire to do something which the will cannot control, according to experts in mental diseases interviewed last night. He is legally sane, according to this viewpoint, as he knows the distinction between right and wrong; but mentally he is in that shadowy borderland where sane and insane touch hands across a nameless, bottomless void.

"This compulsion neurosis to set fires is quite common, though usually it is associated with children and does not bring great harm," said Dr. Theodore Stone, mental specialist. "In the same group of obsession cases are dipsomaniacs, kleptomaniacs, those with a mania to take dope or medicine, exhibitionists.

Sex Repression Possible Cause.

"One of the explanations which is likely to hold ground in persons between 15 and 30 is that this is due to a sexual repression, some painful experience of early childhood or adolescence. These compulsions are various ways of preventing the repressed idea from coming to the surface.

"These people are usually very intelligent. In fact, they seek knowledge as an outlet. They become abnormally panicky at intervals and are compelled to give way to their desire as the only method of getting relief. If they were sure they would not be punished they would admit the whole thing most readily."

Command of Inner Voices.

There may be some form of dementia præcox in the Peterson case, according to another expert. This would be indicated by a command of inner voices to set fires. It might be fought off because of social consequences, but the victim would eventually yield to his compulsion. An imbecile might start fires for the pleasure of seeing the dancing flames. A manic-depressive case might light fires in the hope that it would drive away his pressing melancholy.

From the little that is known of Peterson, however, his category is not in any of these, but in the compulsive neurosis class. The cause of this mental condition remains a mystery, but psychoanalysis advances the theory, concerning which much has been written, that the lighting of fires may be a form of vicarious sex gratification.

FIREBUG TO FACE MURDER CHARGE; ADMITS CRIMES

Confesses He Set Off Death Blaze.

uate of Senn High school and, following his often referred to urge to write, registered in the Northwestern university school of journalism for the year of 1927-'28. According to university officials, however, he never completed the year and never applied for credits which he had earned.

During many months of unemployment he continually bent his efforts toward writing fiction and was able to sell several stories to popular magazines. He is now employed by the Atlas Publishing company, 608 South Dearborn street.

"I'm a day dreamer," he said more than once during the course of his questioning. "I have imagination. I like writing—I get joy out of it, and I think I have some ability, but I have never seemed to master the real technique."

Throughout the entire day the slight, sandy moustached Peterson showed little or no emotion. He moved mechanically when ordered, answered questions mechanically, but volunteered nothing. He seemed to personify his statement that:

"I never have been happy. I never seemed to get along with people. I don't think there's much in this thing called life."

"Just to Break Monotony."

On another occasion, in confessing to Kearney, he said:

"I set those fires just to break the monotony and to satisfy an urge."

Expanding the latter part of his statement, Peterson declared that for several years he had been fighting his impulses toward incendiarism. He could conquer them normally, he said, but when he had beer or liquor he lost control of his cravings.

Seeming corroboration of his own diagnosis of himself was found in the story that he visited a tavern on Dearborn street near the Atlas Publishing company on the night of April 22 before starting the fire fatal to Mrs. Goldberg and six other blazes in Rogers Park.

Just Likes to Start Flames.

In all his stories Peterson gave the impression that his desire is merely to build the fires. Apparently he does not have the usual desire of the pyromaniac to stay around and watch the flames.

In his voluminous diaries—three volumes—Peterson discloses himself as an egocentric type, alternating spells of grandeur with indications of a persecution complex, and periods of despair when he felt that "there is nothing in life for me."

In another entry he penned the quotation: "To be great is to be misunderstood."

"I am a fiend," was another quotation which caught the eye of police, but there was no direct reference to his incendiarism.

Although he admitted he drank himself, Peterson wrote bitterly of a burlesque show he attended last New Year's eve, declaring in disgust that the show girls seemed intoxicated.

"If I thought it would do any good," he wrote, "and I could do it without danger to myself, I would have no compunction against lighting a bomb and blowing the whole place literally to hell."

On April 4, 1934, he prefaced his diary with:

"Journal and Diary of H. Carle Peterson, dealing with the second half of his life—the world period, April 4, 1934 to April 15, 1963."

He predicted the latter date as that of his death, and added his hope that the second half of his life "will not be the mess that the first half has been."

Refers to Five Girls.

His associations with girls was also followed in the diaries, with frequent references to Annie, Madelyn, two Helens and a Vivian.

The Vivian mentioned in the diary was identified as Miss Vivian Zitzler, 26 years old, 1937 Morse avenue. She and her sister, Ruth, 28 years old, went to the Rogers Park station at the request of Capt. Patrick Harding, to tell what they knew of Peterson.

Vivian and Peterson had been sweethearts but "broke up" some time ago when the young man wished to marry her, but had no money.

Recalls Boasts of Boyhood.

Hubbard said he had never had any serious arguments with Peterson except when he and Peterson went out together with the Zitzler sisters and Peterson maligned him to Ruth Zitzler. He also recalled that when they were boys Peterson boasted of his superior mentality and told him that he was dumb.

Hubbard also declared that, as a boy, Peterson had a distinct aversion to viewing fires, and would never run to one as did the other boys. This persisted, according to Hubbard, who related a recent instance when he and Peterson were out with the Zitzler sisters. A fire broke out in the neighborhood and all went to view it but Peterson, who flatly refused to go.

Peterson was first taken into custody the day after the fire which caused the death of Mrs. Goldberg, but while Capt. Harding had strong suspicions, he had no real evidence on which to hold Peterson.

Consequently he released him, but detailed Policemen Anthony J. Murray and Thomas Leddy to watch the suspect day and night. The policemen learned that Peterson had been arrested on an arson charge two years before.

They learned from Mrs. Alice Heffron, 7420 North Ashland avenue, and from George Nichols, 1851 Greenleaf avenue, that the description of a man seen after two of the incendiary blazes in Rogers Park corresponded to that of Peterson.

He was again taken for questioning last Monday and his room was searched. There police found the diaries, and also some oddly colored matches which corresponded to matches found at the scene of the fire at 1655 Wallen avenue.

Boston Store Employes Will Hold Annual Dance

Employés of the Boston store will hold their 23d annual dance in the Hotel Sherman tomorrow evening, Dr. E. B. STRIKE LEADERS, AUTO HEADS PUFF ON PIPE OF PEACE

26,000 Workers in Eight Cities Idle.

Detroit, Mich., May 2.—[Special.]—Executives of General Motors corporation and high labor leaders met here late today to discuss a basis for negotiating a settlement of the series of strikes and shutdowns in subsidiary plants of the corporation which has forced 26,000 automobile workers into idleness in eight cities.

The peace conference was arranged by the government, with Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, handling the reins.

McGrady discussed the situation with Francis J. Dillon, American Federation of Labor organizer, upon the latter's arrival here from Washington, D. C. The federal conciliator then went to the office of William F. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors. Later the three were closeted in Knudsen's office.

Toledo Strike Studied.

The conferees were expected to consider primarily the week old strike and shutdown at the Chevrolet Motor company's Toledo, O., plant, which was the key that precipitated the rapidly growing controversy. The troubles in 14 other General Motors units were said to be sympathetic movements on the part of workers or plant closings due to lack of materials as a result of the Toledo strike.

The latest plants to be affected by the Toledo situation were the Chevrolet and Fisher Body company plants in St. Louis and Kansas City which were closed today because of a shortage of automobile transmissions.

It was estimated that approximately 7,000 men were thrown out of work by the closing of the four plants in St. Louis and Kansas City.

Other cities into which the rapidly growing trouble has reached are Cleveland, Cincinnati, Atlanta, Janesville, Wis., and Fort Smith, Ark. The most men affected in one plant were at Cleveland where 9,000 workers were left idle by the closing of the Fisher Body company.

Trouble at Chrysler.

There was also trouble in Chrysler corporation plants in Detroit today, but it had no relation to the general situation. A strike was called by 57 dingmen employed in Chrysler factories who demanded a 10 cent pay increase. The men are specialized workers who correct body errors on assembly lines.

However, there were other repercussons in related industries resulting directly from the troubles of General Motors. It was said that approximately 17 basic industries are threatened or already are experiencing affects from the interruption of operations in General Motors units.

From Cleveland especially came a report that several concerns had received stop orders for Chevrolet parts.

Steel Output Hit.

The magazine Steel estimated that the steel industry alone would lose about 9 per cent of its present output by a complete halt of Chevrolet production, which had been threatened by leaders of striking unions. Chevrolet had been producing about 30,000 cars a week.

In this connection, M. E. Coyle, president of the Chevrolet company, said at Flint, Mich., that the company's plants at Saginaw, Bay City, and Flint would remain open regardless of the situation in units elsewhere. More than 14,000 workers are employed in the Flint plant, which manufactures motors and sheet steel used in 12 other plants.

A note of unrest was said to permeate labor and business circles in Toledo as a result of reports that General Motors will cease for all time the manufacturing of Pontiac transmissions in Chevrolet plants and may henceforth divide the work among other factories.

Issues Violence Threat.

Toledo, O., May 2.—(AP)—A threat to advocate violence entered the automobile strike picture today.

Reports that the Chevrolet Motor company is taking steps to manufacture transmissions at Muncie, Ind., instead of in its Toledo plant, now closed by a walkout, inspired the threat by Fred Schwake, business agent of the Toledo Automobile Workers union.

Schwake told a meeting of striking union workers here that if Chevrolet attempts to put that plan in operation, he would advocate demolishment of the Muncie plant.

Baltimore Supply Low.

Baltimore, Md., May 2.—(AP)—The Baltimore Chevrolet assembling plant will be forced to close down soon because of lack of parts due to the strike at Toledo, officials said tonight.

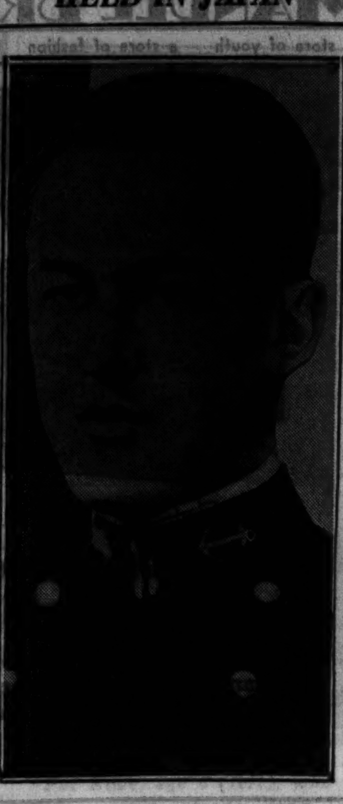
Earlier a telegram had been received here from M. E. Coyle, president and general manager of the Chevrolet company, announcing discontinuance of operations here. Baltimore officials, however, said enough parts were on hand to allow operation for a short time.

The local plant employs about 1,500 men.

Garment Workers Strike.

Boston, Mass., May 2.—(AP)—Approximately 2,500 members of Boston locals of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union went on strike here today, protesting alleged violations of NRA minimum wage agreements.

HELD IN JAPAN



WILLIAM SHINN GATES.

U. S. EX-NAVAL OFFICER, 2 PALS SEIZED BY JAPAN

Adventurers Suspected of Espionage.

TAIHOKU, Formosa, May 2.—(AP)—Three adventurers, one a former American naval officer, were held in a Formosa jail cell today for investigation on suspicion of espionage.

Japanese authorities are particularly suspicious of William Shinn Gates, 28 year old graduate of the naval academy, who was retired as a lieutenant in the United States navy more than two years ago because of physical disability. His home is in Lancaster, Pa.

One Russian, One German.

The others who embarked from Shanghai April 2 aboard a German ketch, ostensibly on a romantic quest for adventure and sunken treasure in the south seas, are H. G. Wrede, a German, and Gene Roubin, a Russian.

Prior to the sailing Gates told newspapermen in Shanghai the first port of call would be the north coast of Formosa, where he and his companions would take on supplies for the 30 foot ketch.

"From there we will go to the Babuyan Islands," he said, "where it is reported there are 20 women to every man. We expect to stay long enough to verify this before resuming our voyage through the Philippines and New Guinea to Amoda, Australia, and Africa."

Planned Treasure Hunt.

The expressed intention of the men was to hunt for treasure in the South Seas.

[Tokio reports said the men had been charged with illegally surveying the Formosan coast and also photographing it. Films and a survey map were reported to have been seized as evidence.]

Gates is the son of H. C. Gates, an executive of the Armstrong Cork company. He left home two years ago on a search for treasure in the Pacific, 2,000 miles west of Panama. He spent several months in Australia and later went to China, where the present expedition was outfitted.

Warn U. S. to Keep Out.

TOKIO, May 3 (Friday).—(AP)—A bristling pamphlet prepared by the navy office for nation-wide distribution said today if other powers fail to recognize Japan's "mission to maintain peace in the orient" and insist upon interference in the far east, "they may be said to be disobeying the will of heaven."

Without mentioning the United States navy's forthcoming maneuvers in the Pacific, the pamphlet bitterly attacked "preparations of other navies for offensive ocean-crossing operations." Such preparations, together with demands for unequal tonnage ratios, indicate the intent to interfere in the orient, the document asserted.

"It is regrettable that the various powers which planted their influence in the far east in past centuries before Japan was powerful enough to maintain peace in the orient alone—which she is today—continue reluctant to recognize the new situation in the orient," the navy office said.

BUTCHER UNION GROUP TO FACE HEARING TODAY

Six officials and members of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher workmen were booked by police yesterday and will be arraigned in the Stockyards court today. Walter Hagerman, secretary, and Paul Jotblade were charged with possession of slingshots. Disorderly conduct charges were placed against John Slobaske and William Tate, the latter colored, union organizers, and James Rice and Cornelius Quirk. The six were seized in a raid on the union offices following attacks on two south side sausage factories, the David Berg & Co. plant at 449 West 37th street, which was bombed, and the Harry Manaster factory at 1018 West 37th street, where shots were fired through the windows.

BATAVIA CHURCH FIGHT LOSERS TO APPEAL DECISION

Older members of the First Christian church of Batavia who were restrained in an injunction granted Wednesday by Judge William J. Fulton of the Kane county Circuit court from interfering with the younger majority group's control of the church announced yesterday that they would appeal to a higher court for a reversal of Judge Fulton.

The older folk had maintained that the Rev. Harry Alban was teaching heretical doctrins. Judge Fulton ruled, however, that there was no heresy proved and that, as the minister's supporters were in the majority, their views properly should control the church's destinies. The judge has not yet signed the decree in the hope that the members of both factions would get together and settle their differences.

AUTHORIZE AUTO UNION PRESIDENT TO WIDEN STRIKE

Members of the Auto Mechanics' union, local No. 701, who are on strike against eight Packard branches and four Buick branches in the Chicago area, held a meeting in Machinists' hall at 113 South Ashland avenue last night and gave the union president, Don Burrows a vote of confidence. Burrows was also granted full powers to call a general strike of the union. They are demanding a pay increase from 75 cents to 90 cents an hour and a minimum work week of 37 hours.

Former Chicago Heights Mayor Gets Postal Job

Daniel Bergin, former mayor of Chicago Heights, has been appointed acting postmaster of the suburb, it was announced yesterday in Washington.

MADISON ST. STORE OPEN EVERY EVENING

The Mental Test Craze has got us!

1. Fill in the missing word—"A straight line is the_____ distance between 2 points".

A straight line is the shortest distance between 2 points—and is the route that costs less. For example, the straight line that connects Bond factories with Bond stores saves money by cutting out third-party-profits. It's a good line to remember and follow when you pick your next suit.

2. Where is America's fashion center for men? New York, Chicago, Rochester or Miami?

America's fashion center for men is in Rochester Here are designed and tailored the finest of all ready-to-wear clothes. And here, Bond operates a large six-story tailoring plant, employing 1200 of Rochester's master craftsmen For a real treat, wear one of their handsome suits—$30 and $35, including two trousers.

3. "The more you buy, more you save". True or false?

True! Here's how it works. Bond buys woolens in carload lots—and so pays less than the maker who can use only a few pieces. This saving is reflected in Bond prices—$25, $30, $35, with two trousers.

4. "The surest test of Quality is price". True or false?

False! Low price does not always mean low quality. The surest test lies in the good name and reputation of the maker and seller. When he works with facts like the ones we have covered in boxes No. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6 and 7, you can forget price and buy with confidence.

5. "Extra trousers always cost extra". True or false?

False! That's easy. By now, almost everybody must know that extra trousers are always included in the price of every Bond suit—$25, $30 and $35. And Bond's is the only place in town where this is true. Remember it, when you compare prices.

6. What is used to detect cotton mixed with wool? Carbolic, caustic potash, or iodine?

Caustic Potash! Every yard of goods that goes into Bond Clothes gets this acid test. We give the cold shoulder to all fabrics containing cotton. And shoddy goes right out the back door. We think you'll want to know about this "insurance policy for quality", when you do your shopping.

7. Mr. A. likes to pay cash for his clothes. Mr. B. prefers to "charge it". Who pays most?

Neither!—if they buy at Bonds. Bond prices have always been figured on a strictly cash basis. And to "charge it" with Bonds Ten Payment Plan costs not a cent extra. This is purely an optional service—for which neither Mr. "A" nor Mr. "B" are taxed.

IT WAS RUB-A-DUB-DUB ALL DAY LONG-WITH CHEAP SOAP IN MY TUB

But now—American Family's Double Suds Do My Work in a Couple of Hours I used to pity myself over the stacks of clothes I had to wash—while my friends were out enjoying themselves. Then I found out that my wash was no bigger than theirs, but I was using a cheap "slacker" soap that left all the hard work up to me! On their advice I changed to American Family—the soap that makes double suds and does double work in this hard lake water. Monday afternoons are holidays, now—thanks to those big rich suds of American Family!

"Cheap Soap Used Here"—that's what my rub-board used to broadcast on wash-days. I didn't know that a few pennies more for a good soap would have put that rub-board away at ten o'clock! Now I use American Family—the easy soap. It saves clothes, too!

STARVATION TALK DOESN'T SURVIVE A WALKING TOUR

It Seems Remote in Old Sequatchie Valley.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Walled in by high pineclad cliffs, the Sequatchie valley marches up from the Tennessee river to the cool upland pasture and forests of the Cumberland plateau. It is in the heart of the nation's first great "social laboratory."

Who walketh in these mountains? It is hard to believe the story of starvation that comes from Washington—the statistical, swivel chair picture of the great mess that man has made of this garden of the world. In fact, the folks there don't believe it themselves.

"Haven't heard of anybody starving," say the country storekeepers who from their well worn benches at every crossroads keep watch over the valley.

Those Who Get Relief.

"Right smart of people getting relief," they add.

"Who are they?"

"Fellows that don't like to work."

Nothing much has happened here in the five years since this writer last walked this way. There is a little Socialist, or communist, push coming from the Highlander Folk school, over Monteagle way, where a group of New England radicals, led by Zellah L. Hawes, have taken over an old farmhouse and are seeking to spread their doctrin.

They find the mind of the mountaineers slow to accept, and results hardly perceptible as yet, but hope in time to make an impression. They descend into the industrial area and aid what strikes they can in the meantime.

A More Potent Influence.

Further up in the hills, across the ridge to Wolf river, another, more potent influence is at work. This is the Alvin C. York institute, a fine red brick structure, set among tall pines, on the highway beyond Jamestown. In fact, the highway through this valley, from Pikeville beyond to the Kentucky border, is named after Sergt. York, of world war fame, who heads the institute, in name at least, and whose quiet influence extends over a wide area.

He remains the simple farmer that he was before he went out to fight the Germans, captured 137 of them at one time, and received the nation's acclaim. What he has done since is of much more importance. His 900 acre farm is a show place of business farming. He has set an example to the mountain youth to stay at home and work.

"He is all for farming and business," said a group of institute students as they walked the road in the morning to go to school. They wore collegiate caps and carried books.

Socialism? It Won't Work.

"What do you think of this share the wealth program?"

"O, that means socialism? That won't work. Some people will always be poor."

Hundreds of boys and girls are getting an education here in scientific farming, home economics and general subjects of high school type. They never would have had such an opportunity without the institute. The school is state supported.

Along the same road, however, may be found boys who do not know anything about Sergt. York—boys from poor little mountain tract homes that wander around happily in rags. Rifle in hand, they are good shots. They know all the sound and signs of the hills, but, like Lincoln, never get beyond the rudiments of formal education.

Home of Sergt. York.

Sergt. York's roomy farmhouse is built along the edge of Wolf river, which from springs and hidden caverns flows in murky blue through the quiet meadows. At 5:45 every morning the breakfast bell rings and the five children, the brothers and farm hands troop into the big dining room to hot biscuits, ham, eggs, hominy, preserves and perhaps a bit of game. For the ex-soldier does quite a bit of hunting and fishing now, as he is "getting along" in years, and is able to "take it easy."

His green fields extend down the valley to the mountains. The big barn with the new tin roof, the outhouses and fences show a careful prosperity.

At the foot of the hill a stream gushes forth from under high rocks, as if struck by a rod. Sheep are feeding by the still waters. Cows move on the hillside with bells tinkling musically, there are birds in all the trees, carpets and sprays of flowers everywhere.

Ready for the Planting.

The sun is hot and the soil is damp from the rains, ready for the planting. The Yorks go forth to plough, tall, keen eyed young men, with free and muscular swing.

In the old Sequatchie valley there are many such farms.

"None knew thee but to love thee" are the words carved on a little gravestone in an old cemetery shadowed by tall trees of fresh green leaves, cedars of Lebanon, fences of laurel and summer shade with its pure white, drooping blooms.

This might be said of the valley itself. Walden ridge and the Cumberlands hide it from the world. They will have nothing of evolution here, and believe the old book from "kiver to kiver." Preachin' Bill kneels in the streets of Whitwell and prays for the souls of the bus passengers from the outside.

Fresh Earth Comes Up.

The earth is turning again. In lowlands and on hillside the mules are straining at the plows and the dead cornstalks disappear in the fresh dark mold. The river makes a gentle melody as it flows around its frequent bends, over shallows and in deep holes where the trout lie.

Calves kick their heels in the meadows. Children play along the road to school. A new wing to a cabin, a new barn, new children, new lambs, chickens, pigs, songs of the mating time from all the trees. Nothing has happened in this valley and nothing will.

The "American Broadway" rushes through it at Crossville, but that is for worried looking people who are in a hurry to get somewhere. They must get to the big towns for the night. They miss the bountiful supper tables of the country hotels, the deep peace of the cricket songs of the country nights, the pink and golden flush of dawn across the hills.

Across the Kentucky Border.

The trail finally reaches the Kentucky border and crosses into a fatter country of rolling pastures and grain fields, white pillared, substantial farmhouses set at more frequent intervals. Tobacco talk, and colored folk and fine horses. More politics of a local nature. Heavier men who look as though they drank more whisky and prayed less.

They call part of this the John Muir trail, around Willow Shade, Summer Shade, Bearwallow, and Horse Cave. It is hot and midsummery here. The true John Muir trail lies along the crest of the Sierra, 9,000 feet above, amid glacial lakes and rocks.

Muir, in walking here, might wonder why nature, after taking a million years to perfect an armored back for a turtle, did not give it enough sense to keep from being flattened by the new enemy, the wheels of the highway. Or why, in a period of drouth, worms come out of the ground by the millions and cover the stony road in slippery death.

It Leads On to Lincoln.

The trail eventually leads to Lincoln. He sits majestically in stone in front of the old red courthouse in the Hodgenville square. He lives in the tough red earth that is being broken to the morning plow.

Near the cabin where this spirit came to light, the common earth with glory, is an old log farmhouse, deserted now. It was built a hundred years ago, soon after Thomas and Nancy Lincoln moved to Indiana. It stands on a hillside under deep shade trees. The old well furnishes a cool drink to the traveler. The fields, however, have been made into a park, and 140,000 pilgrims a year pass the doorway.

There was a tragedy there recently which perhaps no one has noticed. Some one opened the door of the old house and a bird flew in, a sparrow. The door was closed when the visitors departed and the bird remained locked in.

This is a true starvation story. How long does it take a sparrow to starve to death? How many hours did it beat its feeble wings and beak against the window of the green world?

At last it sank to the floor and died. The feathers are dusty and gray now, the head still in an upright pecking position. The sunlight strikes it through the window, casting beyond the dead body the shadow of a perfect bird.

So Lincoln's shadow rests upon this country.

U. S. FLEET PREPARED FOR DASH TO SEA IN HUGE WAR MANEUVER

Aboard U. S. S. Pennsylvania, San Francisco Harbor, Cal., May 2.—(AP)—Powerful concentrations of warships in San Francisco bay and in Puget Sound took positions for a dash to sea tonight for the most far flung phase of the six weeks' maneuvers in the north Pacific by 153 craft of the U. S. Navy.

Somewhere between the Pacific coast and the Hawaiian Islands other forces were speeding to secret rendezvous in the triangle embracing 5,000,000 square miles between Hawaii and Alaska, and Midway island, 1,340 miles west of Hawaii, and the Pacific coast.

Within the next few weeks various forces will come together in some of the most extensive and sensational naval engagements ever witnessed in the north Pacific.

For the last year the 55,000 officers and men of the fleet have been under vigorous training to meet this test.

ASSAIL BANKING BILL SPONSORED BY NEW DEALERS

More Recovery and Less Reform Demanded.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—More recovery and less reform was urged this afternoon by Representative Charles L. Gifford [Rep., Mass.], in an attack on the New Deal's banking act before the house of representatives.

Gifford declared that it was the duty of congressmen to promote recovery rather than to enact "a hurtful political thing" in the banking bill. The measure would give the President vastly increased powers over the federal reserve board while the board, in turn, would obtain virtually complete control over the ebb and flow of credit, purchase or sale of government securities and rediscount rates.

Debate in Fourth Day.

Just before adjournment Representative Henry B. Steagall [Dem., Ala.], chairman of the banking and currency committee, obtained permission to extend the general debate over Saturday in response to the clamoring of members for a chance to speak on the subject. The action was in keeping with the current majority strategy of permitting members to blow off steam, then passing administration bills intact.

"When will the talk cease that was started in 1933 when the bankers were called money changers and stigmatized as crooks by the President of the United States?" asked Gifford.

"Business Is Frightened."

Here Representative Dewey Short, Missouri's lone Republican jumped to his feet.

"Isn't it true," he asked, "that today banks are bulging with money but they don't make loans because of restrictions and uncertainty superimposed by the government?"

"That's true," replied Gifford. "The banks are so frightened, business is so frightened, that they don't dare to move. They are telling us that 20 billion dollars will be spent if the uncertainty were removed."

Gifford pointed out that Gov. Marriner Eccles of the Federal Reserve board during the hearings on the bill said he was not concerned with a 40 billion dollar national debt, that the budget didn't need to be balanced except every five years.

"What do bankers and business men think when they hear that stuff?" sniffed Gifford.

The banking bill was attacked from another angle later by Representative William Lemke [Rad., N. D.]. Lemke insisted that the legislation would "still leave the control of banking in the hands of the international bankers."

Urging inflation, Lemke contended that it did not matter what money was made of, for in the past people had used sea shells, mulberry leaves, tobacco and even whisky for money.

- Attention Mr. W. R. Blend,
Classified Advertising Mgr. -

Gentlemen:

As an example of what Tribune Want Ads do for us I would like to tell you of one which we ran recently on a six-room residence in Beverly Hills.

I showed this home personally and can state that, by actual count, forty people called there the Sunday on which the ad appeared. Many others drove by and looked it over, but I was too swamped to give them attention.

These callers were all bona fide prospects -- not a "shopper" in the crowd. I sold the house that same evening for the advertised amount. The next day three other people called on the phone and wanted to make a deal.

The buyer is vice-president of a large Chicago manufacturing company. Of course, we obtained a number of good prospects for other properties also.

I might say, in this connection, that this is the third house we sold in this manner during the last few months, through a similar ad in the Tribune.

Needless to say, we believe that the right ad in the right medium -- The Tribune -- will give ample proof that reports of the death of real estate have been greatly exaggerated.

Very truly yours,

BARTHOLOMEW O'TOOLE

By Racine Thompson

"These callers were all bona fide prospects—not a 'shopper' in the crowd," says Mr. Thompson.

Bartholomew O'Toole, real estate dealer, 9147 S. Ashland Avenue, placed a want ad in the Tribune to sell a 6-room Beverly Hills residence. More than forty people answered the ad. The house was sold the day the ad ran.

"I showed this home personally," says Racine Thompson, member of the O'Toole organization, "and can state that, by actual count, forty people called there the Sunday on which the ad appeared. Many others drove by and looked it over, but I was too swamped to give them attention.

"These callers were all bona fide prospects—not a 'shopper' in the crowd. I sold the house the same evening for the advertised amount. The next day three other people called on the phone and wanted to make a deal.

Do you want to sell real estate of any kind? Now is the time to place your property on the market. Thousands of people are becoming interested in buying houses, vacant lots, apartment buildings, resort property and other kinds of real estate.

The surest way to reach the largest number of able-to-buy prospects is through low-cost Tribune want ads. In Chicago and suburbs far more families read the Tribune than read any other Chicago newspaper. Order a Tribune want ad today. Call

SEN. THOMAS AND HUEY WAR UPON HARRISON BONUS

Seize Chance to Expound Money Theories.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.] — Senator Huey P. Long, the Louisiana wealth divider, and Senator Elmer Thomas, the Oklahoma dollar splitter, took the stage today when the 2 billion 659 million dollar Harrison bonus raid came before the senate.

Both Long and Thomas argued in support of the Patman bill already passed by the house of representatives, Long because it would give the veterans about a billion dollars more and Thomas because it would put 2 billion dollars of "new money," or greenbacks, in circulation.

The opportunity for these statesmen to expound their economic and monetary theories was not as good as the one recently afforded by the 4 billion 880 million dollar work relief bill, but it was still too good to be missed.

Pay or Talk, Says Long.

"The question is," said Huey, "whether we are going to pay the veterans or just talk."

Senator Thomas, under whose famous amendment to the agricultural adjustment act the President reduced the value of the dollar to 60 cents, said all the troubles of the country would be solved if the 2 billion dollars in new money were put in circulation and the treasury would buy another billion ounces of silver. He also said the veterans would be glad to get the nice new $20 bills, even if some people didn't regard them as money.

"Yes and the German people were glad to get the marks, but they were sorry afterwards," interposed Senator Carter Glass, Virginia's sound money Democrat.

Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], chairman of the finance committee and sponsor of the compromise bonus measure offered in the senate as substitute for the Patman bill, was not worried by the Thomas-Long harangues. He is convinced the senate will pass a bonus bill and that his plan will be it.

Vinson Bill Gains Support.

A third plan, the Vinson bill, was introduced without debate by Senator Bennett C. Clark [Dem., Mo.]. This is the American Legion-backed scheme, providing for full payment in existing currency.

While the debate was assuming the proportions of a three-cornered battle royal on the floor of the senate, it was this bill that seemed to be gaining support in the cloakrooms. Back of it was an almost solid bloc of Republicans and a number of Democrats who have pledged themselves to vote for a cash bonus.

The first vote will be on the choice between the Harrison and the Vinson bills, the finance committee having reported the former, with Senator Clark offering the latter as a substitute. The house has passed the Patman bill and defeated the Vinson measure.

Long Fights Early Vote.

A move by Senator Thomas to bring a direct vote on the Patman bill was disapproved by Long, although he said he did not like to have to vote first on the Harrison bill in the fear that it might result in passage without consideration of the Patman measure.

The Patman bill cancels interest now due and would pay the bonus with more than 2 billion dollars of greenbacks; the Harrison plan would set back the issue date of the certificates from 1925 to 1918 and pay interest from that time. Veterans who hold the average $1,000 in certificates could cash them for $770, minus any amounts borrowed, or hold them until 1945, when they will be worth $1,115. The Vinson bill merely provides for the immediate payment of the bonus, leaving the necessary financing up to the government.

ORDER $500,000 NORTH SHORE INN SOLD FOR CLAIM

An order to sell properties of the Deerpath inn, in Lake Forest, to settle a claim of $61,599, was issued yesterday by Master in Chancery Albert Hall under an order of the Lake County Circuit court. The sale is to be held May 28 at the courthouse in Waukegan. The inn, well known as a gathering place of north shore society, was built in 1928 at a cost of $500,000. The claim involved in the litigation is that of the William J. Quigley company, which decorated and furnished the hotel.

Woman Granted Probation on Beauty Doctor's Charge

Mrs. Katherine Donaghue, 44 years old, 3765 Lake Park avenue, charged with attempting to extort $100 from Dr. Jean Paul Fernel, 677 North Michigan avenue, a plastic surgeon, was placed on probation for six months by Municipal Judge Edgar A. Jonas in the Women's court yesterday. Dr. Fernel charged that Mrs. Donaghue had threatened to "expose" him for allegedly injuring her while removing superfluous hair unless he paid her $100. She denied it.

NIGHT AIRPLANE, SEATTLE BOUND, IS FORCED DOWN

Madison, Wis., May 2.—[Special.]—A twin motored Electra plane of the Northwest Air Lines, which left the Chicago airport yesterday for the first night trip over the new federal transcontinental route to Seattle, was forced down by a severe sleet storm at Lone Rock, near Madison.

The ship, carrying two pilots, 10 passengers, and mail, was expected to make 190 miles an hour on the trip and arrive in Seattle at 10:50 a. m. [Chicago time] today. The first stop was to have been St. Paul. Fargo, N. D.; Billings, Mont., and Spokane, Wash., are other cities on the new route.

The Northwest Air Lines has eight of the new Electras and the overnight trip to the Pacific northwest will be a feature of the line's service henceforth. The federal government, through the department of commerce, has spent more than a million dollars improving the airways along the route.

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—A massmeeting of the Friends of the New Germany was held tonight in the Hippodrome for the declared purpose of registering their approval of the rearmament of Germany. An audience of about 3,500 shouted "Heil!" when the Rev. Sigismund von Bosse, pastor of Bethany Lutheran church in Roxbury, Philadelphia, said "the peoples of the world must choose between Hitler and Stalin."

SEE NEW PERIL TO BLUE EAGLE IN HIGH COURT

NRA Poultry Code Test Case Opened.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—The Blue Eagle, offered a nine month new lease on life, but stripped of its tail feathers in the senate finance committee this morning, entered the Supreme court arena this afternoon against a dead kosher chicken, "egg bound," and said to be unfit for human consumption.

The government's handpicked NRA test case, involving violations of a code that covers not only New York's gigantic poultry market but a $50,000,000 annual business throughout the land, got off to a brief start before Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes signaled the adjournment for the day. There was time, however, for the justices to ask many questions of Solicitor General Stanley Reed, indicating great interest in the case.

Heart and Soul Periled.

Just as interested and more concerned are Donald R. Richberg, chairman of the NIRB, and the Roosevelt administration, for if the Supreme court upholds the second Circuit Court of Appeals in this case the Blue Eagle will lose its heart and soul, as well as its tail feathers.

It is the first NRA case involving all the controverted questions of that legislation to reach the argument stage in the Supreme court, the government having elected to withdraw the Belcher lumber code case rather than risk a test in the highest tribunal. In the words of Silas Strawn of Chicago, so much "heat" was generated after the government shied away from the Supreme court, that a chicken case was hatched.

May Kill NRA.

If the Supreme court decides the poultry case before it adjourns for the summer, around the first of June, the decision may have an important bearing on the legislation enacted at this session of congress to extend the NRA—might prevent it altogether.

The senate finance committee, however, formally reported out, by a vote of 13 to 4, a joint resolution of Senator Bennett Champ Clark [Dem., Mo.] to extend the present law, with modifications to exclude price fixing and the regulation of local industries, until next April 1.

The argument today did not reach the most important point at issue—whether congress can regulate intrastate, or local, business—but another contention of the government produced a series of incisive and at times skeptical questions from the justices.

The case involves Joseph Schechter operator of the Schechter Live Poultry Market of Brooklyn, N. Y., and the brothers Alexander, Martin and Aaron Schechter, operators of the A. L. A. Schechter Poultry company, also of Brooklyn. They were indicted on 59 counts of violating the live poultry code and one conspiracy count. Twenty-seven counts were eliminated on demurer, the defendants were tried on 33, and convicted on 19, including the conspiracy count, for which they received jail terms of from one to three months, in addition to fines.

The Circuit Court of Appeals reversed the convictions on two counts, involving violations of the maximum hour and minimum wage provisions of the code, on the ground that the employés of a poultry slaughtering house are not engaged in interstate commerce and hence their working conditions cannot be regulated by congress. Seventeen other counts, involving trade practices, were sustained by the Appellate court.

AMERICAN SPENDS FORTUNE CHEATING DANUBE OF SUICIDES

BUDAPEST, May 2.—(AP)—F. Jack Delport, a mysterious American who spent a fortune preventing suicides in Hungary, departed for home today after eight years at his curious missionary service. Delport, a lonely man of about 50, always smiling and apparently of extensive means, was credited with cheating the Danube river of many would-be suicides.

Regret at his departure was expressed throughout the city, one newspaper devoting four columns to an appreciation of his strange service. Upon his arrival eight years ago Delport called a conference of newspaper police reporters, from whom he learned facts about destitution and hopelessness in Budapest.

He said he was from Minnesota, but did not name the city, and asserted he represented a philanthropic organization which wished to remain in the background. He and his agents patroled Danubian bridges for many hours each night. They encouraged and aided financially many bent on self-destruction. Delport said he was leaving because of exchange difficulties in getting money from the United States.

PARKING RULES ENFORCEMENT TO BE TIGHTENED UP

Police Commissioner Allman yesterday instructed the trafic bureau and police captains to tighten enforcement of the city's parking regulations. The action was taken after the Chicago Association of Commerce sent a report to the city hall, charging that there was a general disregard of no-parking laws throughout the city.

"I have notified Capt. David Flynn of the trafic bureau and Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief of the uniformed police, to make every possible effort to enforce the parking laws," Commissioner Allman said. "We're going to 'crack down' on all the violators we can reach."

A resolution urging strict enforcement of parking regulations was adopted yesterday by representatives of thirty neighborhood organizations meeting at the Union League club. Those present, most of them retail merchants, agreed that just as the "road hog" reduces the pleasure of motoring the "parking hog" cuts down the profits of retail business. Leslie J. Sorenson, city trafic engineer, offered to make a study of the parking problems of any neighborhood upon request.

EXPLOSION BURNS 3 IN DOWNTOWN OFFICE BUILDING

Three men were burned yesterday when a chemical explosion started a fire in the eighth floor offices of the Catalogue Engraving company at 124 Polk street, driving eighty occupant of the building to the street. The damage, caused mostly by smoke and water, was estimated at $10,000. Those burned are Harold Laser, son of William Laser, one of the owners of the concern; Ray Fiegal, 4825 Kruger avenue, and John Gobar, 12503 Vincennes avenue. All are employés of the company.

$41,500 TAKEN FROM PURSER'S OFFICE OF ITALIAN OCEAN LINER

BARCELONA, Spain, May 2.—(AP)—The theft of 500,000 lire [about $41,500] from the purser's office of the Italian liner Conte Grande while she was en route across the South Atlantic was disclosed when the boat stopped here today. Barcelona police boarded the vessel at the request of the captain and carefully searched 98 persons who were disembarking here but did not find the money.

The captain said the purser reported he had been chloroformed while asleep and the money taken from the safe. An immediate search of the vessel, he reported, disclosed 55,000 lire concealed in the ventilator shaft, but the remainder has not been found.

One passenger, traveling first class, has been detained for questioning pending the ship's arrival in Italy. The Conte Grande sailed from Buenos Aires.

15 ALDERMEN GO TO SCHOOL; LEARN FINANCE

Fifteen of Chicago's fifty aldermen yesterday accepted an opportunity to learn more about city finances as the first of a series of classes on fiscal matters was opened by the finance committee of the council.

The small delegation present for the initial session industriously applied pencils to notebooks as John A. Richert, head of the committee's staf, lectured on taxation problems.

The next class will be held Thursday, in the finance committee rooms in the city hall. Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the finance committee, has promised an examination for all of the aldermen when the course is completed.

RICHARD VERNOR NEW PRESIDENT OF ROTARY CLUB

Richard E. Vernor of the Western Actuarial bureau was elected president of the Rotary club of Chicago at the organization's meeting in the Blackstone hotel last night. Other officers elected are: Vice presidents: H. Kirke Becker of the Peters Machinery company; Charles A. Dostal of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company; Dr. J. J. Moore of the National Pathological Laboratories Inc., and Donald V. Williamson of the Williamson Glue and Gum works; treasurer, J. Knight Willy of the Hotel Monthly.

ILLINOIS HOUSE PASSES BILL FOR ELEVATED ROAD

It's Basis for Chicago's Highway Program.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 2.—[Special.] The lower house today passed as an emergency measure a bill authorizing state and county highway departments to condemn private property within cities as rights of way for road improvements. The bill will go to the senate next week.

In a practical sense, this is legislation necessary for Chicago to receive an elevated highway. The bill is sponsored by the Horner administration, not for the sole benefit of this single project, however, but as a prerequisite for any considerable expenditure within cities and villages of state revenue from license fees and from the gasoline tax.

Use for Easy Money.

The proposed law is likewise essential for a successful prosecution of a $37,000,000 biennium construction plan of roads and grade separations to be undertaken this summer with "easy money" that Illinois expects to receive from the $4,880,000,000 federal work relief appropriations.

Under the present statutes either the state or the county can condemn for right of way in unincorporated, but not in incorporated areas. In the past this limitation on the rights of eminent domain was no serious inconvenience because state and county construction was concentrated in rural districts.

Where these improvements entered cities the city governments participated in the cost and handled the condemnation. Today, somewhat belated, road builders recognize that the most urgent needs of trafic are for improvement of urban facilities.

Meets Cities' Difficulties.

From now on a much larger portion of highway expenditures will be made in cities, and the cities no longer can participate financially, and with condemnation proceedings as heretofore, because abutting real estate cannot and should not be assessed for through trafic facilities, of no special benefit to contiguous property.

The bill, introduced by Representative A. B. Lager [Dem., Carlyle], chairman of the roads and bridges committee, likewise would remove all doubt about the state's authority in locating and constructing highway extensions by specifically authorizing the highway department "to lay out, establish, open, alter, widen, extend, or relocate necessary streets or thoroughfares in the manner best calculated to aid state or through trafic."

A companion measure, passed by the house at the same time, gives the counties similar authority for the extension of county highways into or through cities and villages.

Other Measures Passed.

Other bills in the highway department's legislative program that were passed by the house today included a measure to authorize the department to enter adjacent private property to perfect drainage of rights of way.

Others would authorize the Illinois commerce commission to close railroad grade crossings no longer serving public convenience.

HOUSE VOTES TO PUT COUNTY AND PROBATE JUDGES ON STATE PAY

Springfield, Ill., May 2.—[Special.]—With no relief measures up for consideration today, the Illinois house gave its attention to other legislation. It passed a number of bills that were on third reading and sent them to the senate for concurrence.

In the adoption of two bills, the house gave its approval to a proposal to have the salaries of county and probate judges paid by the state instead of by counties. Representative A. A. Brands [Dem., Prairie du Rocher], who introduced the bills, said that inasmuch as the general assembly fixes the amount of the salaries the state should pay them.

What amount these bills would cost the state if they become law could not be determined today. Not all of the counties have probate judges, and the salaries of the county judges are fixed in relation to the population of the counties.

A batch of amendments to the new civil practice act, which would bring other existing statutes into conformity with the act, were passed.

STREET PROJECT DELAY AROUSES COUNCIL GROUP

Improvement Board Chief Tells Why.

Difficulties between the city board of local improvements and the council committee on trafic and public safety seemed to be brewing yesterday. Ald. John A. Massen [48th], chairman of the committee, sought to learn why the board has failed to expend any of the $2,881,147 allotted to it from the state gasoline tax on nineteen street improvement projects approved by the council last summer.

William W. Link, chairman of the board of improvements, said the money was not being spent on new construction and to create jobs because specifications furnished by the council were inadequate and the state highway department had failed to approve the board's own plans.

Massen Is Puzzled.

Ald. Massen said he could see no reason for the delay. "I can't see why the board of local improvements cannot proceed with a substantial part of the projects whenever it desires to do so," he said.

Records in the offices of the trafic committee, Massen said, show that all the nineteen projects have been approved by the state highway department. In addition, a committee which included a representative of the board, approved the council specifications for the projects, he declared.

The board has started construction on one project not included in the $2,881,147 program. This is the Ashland avenue bridge over the north branch of the river, a $1,200,000 job. Pits for the bridge substructure are being dug and fabrication of the steel has started.

Money Held by State.

The money for the improvement program comes from the city's share of the gasoline tax and is being held by the state while the board completes engineering work preliminary to the actual construction.

"We could not proceed more rapidly with construction on the entire program because the council estimates of the cost were not accurate," Mr. Link said. "In addition we have been held up by the delay of the state in approving our plans. Too, it should be understood that the engineering work is the greatest part of such construction. This now is out of the way and we are ready to proceed with construction as soon as contracts can be let."

REGISTRY BILL HEARING IS SET; BAR FILIBUSTER

G. O. P. Group Reaches Pact with Democrats.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Springfield, Ill., May 2.—[Special.]—A truce until next Tuesday was called today by the house Republicans in their threats to launch a filibuster unless the bills for permanent registration are reported out of elections committee and placed upon the house calendar.

A subcommittee headed by Frank Ryan [Dem., Chicago], as the repository of all registration bills, has called open meeting for Tuesday in the house chamber.

Two sets of measures are pending. One, the Schnackenberg bill, provides for permanent registration for Chicago and other cities with election boards. The second, the Koehler bill, sponsored by the Democrats, provides for statewide registration, compulsory in each county.

To Hear Parties' Leaders.

Michael F. Hennebry [Dem., Wilmington], head of the elections committee, said today he has sent invitations to P. A. Nash, Democratic national committeeman; Frank L. Smith, Republican national committeeman; Bruce A. Campbell, Democratic state chairman; Justius Johnson, Republican state chairman, and County Judge E. K. Jarecki to participate in the hearings.

In casual gatherings this morning the Republican members decided to defer any filibuster. One group was for starting at once to blockade advancement of measures, except the sales tax and the insurance code. Another group counseled delay with a view of giving the elections committee full opportunity to report out the bills. This advice prevailed.

Benjamin S. Adamowski, Democratic floor leader, said there last night that if, as Republicans were charging, the registration bills should be bottled in committee he would join in efforts to get them upon the calendar.

Democrats Aid G. O. P. Efforts.

Several downstate Democrats this morning wandered to the Republican side of the house with word that they were for permanent statewide registration.

"Prevailing opinion of the Republicans," said Leroy M. Green [Rockford], Republican leader, "was that any filibuster should be deferred to give opportunity for the open hearing Tuesday and that we would hold Mr. Adamowski to his promise to join in getting the registration bills to the floor, if the committee is backward. I prefer the Schnackenberg bills, but the Koehler bill, with some amendments, I believe is an A No. 1 bill. I think a statewide bill would go through. Most downstate Republicans would support it."

"We'll try to get the bills out of subcommittee," Ryan said.

"The outcome," Chairman Hennebry declared, "will be some sort of registration bill. It appears to me it will be a statewide bill. It would be unfair to have it apply only to cities with election boards. If permanent registration possesses merit in assuring honest elections, it would be good for the entire state. What is good for Chicago is good for Cairo."

U. S. FINGER PRINTS 3 IN ITS INQUIRY INTO ROBLES KIDNAPING

Tucson, Ariz., May 2.—(AP)—While a federal grand jury investigated the June Robles kidnaping, a government authority said today three persons involved in the year old inquiry had been photographed and fingerprinted, although they are not under arrest.

The government source said this was a "precuationary measure," intimating that if any of them should leave the state the photographs and fingerprints might prove useful in case indictments were returned against them.

KIDNAP REPORTER AND LAWYER FOR RIOT DEFENDANTS

Gallup, N. M., May 2.—(AP)—David Levinson, chief counsel for the defendants in the Gallup riot cases, and Robert Mainer, New York journalist, were reported kidnaped here tonight by a motor car party of masked men.

The kidnaping report was made by Phillip Stevenson, a member of the Gallup defense committee of Santa Fé, N. M., who said three carloads of men abducted Levinson and disappeared in the direction of Gramerco, a mining camp north of here.

An officer and two miners were fatally shot in the Gallup riots, which resulted from the eviction of an unemployed miner from his home.

Ten of 41 original defendants were held to the District court on murder charges for the death of Sherif M. R. Carmichael in the April 4 riot.

Levinson, a Philadelphia lawyer, Minor Stephenson and Clarence Lynch, a defense attorney, arrived here today to investigate phases of the testimony given at the Santa Fé preliminary hearing and of inquiring into the activities of United States immigration officers who came here after the riot.

RAPIST SEEKING FREEDOM FACES BATTLE IN COURT

Joseph Maria Abbate, who operated a religious cult at 2021 De Kalb street and twice was convicted of raping 12 year old girls whose mothers believed Abbate was a "celestial messenger" and could do no wrong, will encounter considerable opposition at the hearing on May 23 before County Judge Edwin L. Wilson of Kane county on his petition for release from the Elgin insane asylum.

First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbert F. Crowley was notified that Abbate is seeking release on a writ of habeas corpus, and said he would have an assistant in court to fight the granting of the petition.

Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago Crime commission, said he would protest the release of Abbate.

FIND GREEK CASTLE'S RUINS NEAR JERICHO ON TEMPTATION SITE

JERICHO, Palestine, May 2.—(AP)—Remains of a Greek castle have been found on the mountain of Jebal Quarantal, above Jericho, on the site of the temptation of Christ during the forty days in the wilderness. Dr. E. L. Sukenik, professor of archeology at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, reported the discovery today.

The scene is notable for the tragic event in Hasmonean history when, in 135 B. C., Simon the Maccabean was murdered by his son-in-law, Ptolemy, whom he came to visit, as reported in the apocryphal First Book of Maccabees.

At the summit of Jebal Quarantal, which was famed during the crusades as Quaranta, the remains of Greek civilization were recently discovered by Dr. Sukenik above the Greek monastery which is very near the top of the mountain. A number of stones have been found, including Ionic capitals, columns, and drums, and also the remains of a frieze and an entablature.

SALVATION ARMY IN CHICAGO TO HONOR JUBILEE

Celebration Will Mark First Work Here.

The Golden Jubilee of the coming of the "Blood and Fire" flag of the Salvation army to Chicago will be celebrated tomorrow and Sunday with meetings, a parade and a massed band concert.

The pioneer of the Chicago invasion, Col. William Evans, will be one of the chief figures in the celebration, which will start at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow with a meeting on Chicago avenue, between La Salle and Clark streets, where, on Feb. 22, 1885, Col. Evans and a little group began their Chicago ministry, the foundation of a work that has served hundreds of thousands in sickness, need, and hopelessness. The Chicago group became the mother corps [church] of the west and sent its soldiers over the world.

At 3:30 p. m. tomorrow a parade of 1,500 officers and soldiers, Life Saving Scouts and guards, with four uniformed bands and numerous floats, will start from the Central States Territorial headquarters at State and Superior streets for a march down Michigan avenue to Congress street, where they will give a band concert.

Concert in Lincoln Park.

On Sunday afternoon at 3:30 the territorial staf band will give a concert in the bandstand at Lincoln park. Mrs. C. K. Corsant, president of the women's division of the army, and others will speak. On Sunday evening a public massmeeting will be held in No. 1 hall of the army at 1512 West Madison street. Col. Evans and Brig. John Gay, corps officer in 1885, will be present.

Something of the difficulties of the early work in Chicago may be seen in a report made in "Salvation Fight" for the London congress of 1888. The first corps, in the old Bush temple, was reported as prospering. The report continues:

"The soldiers of the No. 2 corps have proven themselves worthy of the name. No. 3 opened its new hall by having a large plate glass window smashed to pieces, followed in a few days by a mob taking up chairs and breaking them over the heads of the soldiers, and then turning over the stove with fire in it. The officers of No. 5, in the center of a drinking element, was stoned, rotten-egged, cuffed and beaten. Roughs smashed all the lamps and windows and a nice organ which had been given us. Officers of No. 6 were pelted with stones while doing their visiting."

Real Heroes and Heroines.

"They were real heroes and heroines in those days," says a historical pamphlet of the army. "An officer tells of being located in Chicago as a stripling and of going without underclothing during the winter of 1888. It was spring before somebody presented him with a threadbare overcoat.

"An early day trophy was Charles Buckley, a man who had led a terrible life in sin and in prison," says this officer. "He had been driven from home at the age of 9 and found himself a penniless waif on the streets of Chicago. Beginning life as a waiter in a saloon, he went on from this cradle of evil to drunkenness and crime. He became famous as the 'Boy Burglar of Chicago.' He spent 17 years behind the bars.

"After a period of excessive drinking and opium eating, followed by several attempts at suicide, he made his way into a Salvation army barracks, where, though the infinite mercy of God, he found one who takes into his arms of love the vilest reprobates and makes them good and peaceable men. For years he marched through the streets under police espionage, but God brought him through it all, and he became a great blessing to men of his own class."

Shows Growth of Work.

How the work of the army has grown in Chicago is shown in the accomplishments of the last year. Among these are 12,208 baskets of food given out; garments, shoes, and furniture given to 17,884; persons treated in free dispensaries, 27,448; meals given without charge, 1,920,095; beds given, 479,337; total attendance at indoor meetings, 566,857; missing persons located, 138; labor placements, 1,080; children given care in day nursery, 8,166; unmarried mothers given care, 307; babies given care, 242; mothers and children given outings at fresh air camp, 1,050.

There is a special and desperate need, Commissioner William A. McIntyre says, for a new women's and children's emergency home in Chicago.

HAUPTMANN PLEA SAYS OUTSIDERS INFLUENCED JURY

Trenton, N. J., May 2.—[Special.]—Counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann today was denied permission by the Court of Errors and Appeals to take testimony to support allegations that the jury which convicted the German alien of the Lindbergh baby murder was not "properly sequestered."

However, the court granted the attorneys' application to include in the record the opening address and summation to the jury made by Attorney General David T. Wilentz, chief of prosecution, and the opening remarks of Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauch Jr. of Hunterdon county.

Hauptmann's lawyers charged in their brief that the failure properly to guard the jury of eight men and four women had resulted in undue and improper influence upon the jurors by persons beyond the court's jurisdiction.

Some of the undue influence on the jury, they charged, resulted from the daily presence of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and other prominent personages, the repeated outbursts of spectators in the courtroom, stories carried by press and radio before the trial, and the suggestions yelled to the jurors when they went out to eat, such as "Burn that Dutchman."

Falls Dead While Waiting to See Executor of Will

Mrs. Josephine Levelle, 67 years old, 3606 Cottage Grove avenue, a widow, collapsed and died of a heart attack yesterday in the Drexel State bank, 3944 Cottage Grove avenue, while waiting to talk with a bank official whom she had named as executor under her will.

TEACH PATIENTS HEALTH SECRETS! HOSPITALS URGED

Emphasis Placed on Disease Assailed.

Dr. William O'Brien, associate professor of pathology at the University of Minnesota, last night criticized the modern American hospital as failing in its mission because it concentrates its teachings upon disease rather than upon health.

Dr. O'Brien's talk was delivered at the Hotel Sherman before the evening session of the Tri-State Hospital Assembly, to which representatives from hospital organizations in Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin have come to thrash out institutional problems. He spoke on "The Modern Health Movement," and declared hospital officials have not taken advantage of it.

Calls Trend "Amazing."

This movement, the growing interest in personal health, he termed the "most amazing development in 20th century education." In schools, universities, and by the general public, information about health is being sought avidly, he said, out in the hospital, the logical source for its emanation, it is being withheld.

"Hospitals say that their primary function is the giving of health," he declared, "but this will never be realized until you combine teaching with giving. Your failure now lies in the fact that you are disease-minded. You teach the things of disease rather than the things of health!"

Health information already is given out in maternity wards, where a mother is shown how to care for her child, he said, but it should be extended to all departments.

"Teach Patients About Selves!"

"This group," he told the hospital officials, "has the best opportunity in the world—with a patient flat on his back—to tell him about himself. Teach him how to live! He wants to know. Make your hospital a center of information and education rather than a cloister where patients go in fear and trepidation."

Speakers at the morning session of the assembly, which will close its three day conference today, urged that training for hospital administrators and nurses be put on a professional level. The former now occupy their positions, according to Dr. Fred G. Carter, superintendent of Ancker hospital of St. Paul, "just through some trick of fate, because we happened to be on the ground when the opportunity opened and we stumbled in."

The afternoon session was devoted to annual business meetings of the various hospital groups. E. L. Erickson, director of Augustana hospital, Chicago, was reëlected president of the Illinois Hospital association. R. C. Buerki of Madison was reëlected president of the Wisconsin Hospital association, and Clarence C. Hess, administrator of the Methodist hospital, Indianapolis, of the Indiana association.

LAYMEN GATHER HERE TO SETTLE MISSIONS ISSUE

Protestant Delegates to Decide Course.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The national younger men's missionary congress of the laymen's missionary movement opened yesterday in the Stevens hotel. Today's, tomorrow's, and Sunday's programs, according to F. J. Michel, secretary of the movement, possibly will draw a total registration of nearly 5,000 representatives of nearly all Protestant denominations.

Although Mr. Michel explained that 100 missionaries, mission leaders, and denominational board executives will take part in the leadership of sessions, he added that the congress is distinctively a laymen's meeting designed to answer in laymen's language the purpose, need, and effect of the whole missionary enterprise. During peak years, Mr. Michel said, about 70 million dollars were spent annually for Protestant missionary work, adding that a fairly safe guess would list half that sum as the present cost of Protestant missions.

Effect of Depression.

With mission organizations of the various churches having emerged from deeper stages of the depression either confused or disorganized, several questions must be answered as the country and the world move toward its "new normalcy," Mr. Michel said. The first and most important question laymen are asking, he added, deals with money. It follows:

"Under all the circumstances of America and the world today, how are we justified in considering a nation-wide campaign for making Christ known throughout the world? It will require much money and many workers; on what ground can we ask for them? With what 'face' can we ask business men and other donors to include this among their many demands?"

The congress, Mr. Michel added, will spend much time in discussion groups today [Friday] on such "motive" questions as these:

"World brotherhood needs to be established somehow; what part may we expect missions to play toward that end?

Changing World Aspect.

"The rapid interweaving of national interests around the world—commerce, travel, education, diplomacy, religion—over against armaments, unemployment, industry, suggest that we must ask if these have any part of missionary responsibility?"

The main discussions tomorrow, Mr. Michel said, will be directed to determine if the spread of communism does not call for Christian missions as one antidote for the Reds.

The commoner complaints of laymen, such as "we should keep our missionary money at home" and "we should let Asiatics alone, their beliefs are good enough for them" will be threshed out, he said.

This morning Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago is to be the principal speaker. Among delegates from abroad to arrive last night were Dr. S. M. Jordan of Teheran, Persia; Virgil Havens of Africa; Seung Hak Cho, Corea; Ray E. Rice, India; Emory Ross, Belgian Congo, and C. J. Lin, China.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS SEEKS A HOSPITAL FOR WAR VETERANS

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—A veterans' hospital for southern Illinois, financed through the administration's 4 billion 880 million dollar work relief fund, was urged today before the hospitalization board of the veterans' administration. The project would cost $1,500,000.

Representatives William Arnold and Claude Parsons, Democrats of Illinois, made the plea before the board. No location for the hospital was suggested.

"The hospitals in Illinois and nearby states are crowded," Arnold declared, "and the proposed institution would serve stricken veterans in southern Illinois, western Kentucky, and southwestern Indiana."

Representatives from other states also appeared before the board asking for veterans' hospitals.

Sues Hospital for $25,000 After Son Loses Arm

Dr. Peter Pavluk, 5321 South Halsted street, and the Evangelical Hospital association of Chicago were sued for $25,000 damages in the Superior court yesterday. Frank Popovits, owner of a bake shop at 237 West 47th street, father of the plaintif, Frank Popovits Jr., brought the action, alleging that through the fault of the physician and the hospital it became necessary to amputate the younger man's left arm after it was broken in an automobile accident Sept. 27.

GET $2,000 DIAMOND LOOT.

Newton, Ia., May 2.—(AP)—F. O. Nelson, jewelry store proprietor here, was held up and robbed of his stock of diamonds valued at between $2,000 and $3,000 today by two bandits.

OLD EPISCOPAL COLLEGE WILL BE STATE PARK

Jubilee college, near Peoria, founded by Bishop Philander Chase, first Episcopal bishop of Illinois, and a considerable tract of land around it, will become a state park, according to an announcement of Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Chicago diocese of the church yesterday. The college, long defunct, was rediscovered a few years ago with its chapel used as a stable. Stained glass windows, gifts of Queen Victoria, were found to be in a restorable condition. After some dispute the title of the property passed into private hands and was given to the state.

Episcopalians of Chicago will make a pilgrimage to the new Jubilee state park on May 21 in connection with the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the Episcopal church in Illinois. Services at the old college will include addresses by Bishop Warren Lincoln Rogers of Cleveland and Dr. William F. Pierce, president of Kenyon college, Gambier, O., a college founded by Bishop Chase. Bishop Stewart will speak at a jubilee meeting in Peoria that night.

U. of C. Men Reherse for Satire on "Brain Trust"

The Blackfriars, men's dramatic organization at the University of Chicago, began rehersals yesterday for the musical comedy, "In Brains We Trust," a satire on professional participation in national governmental affairs. The show will be given on the campus May 10, 11, 17, and 18, by an all male cast.

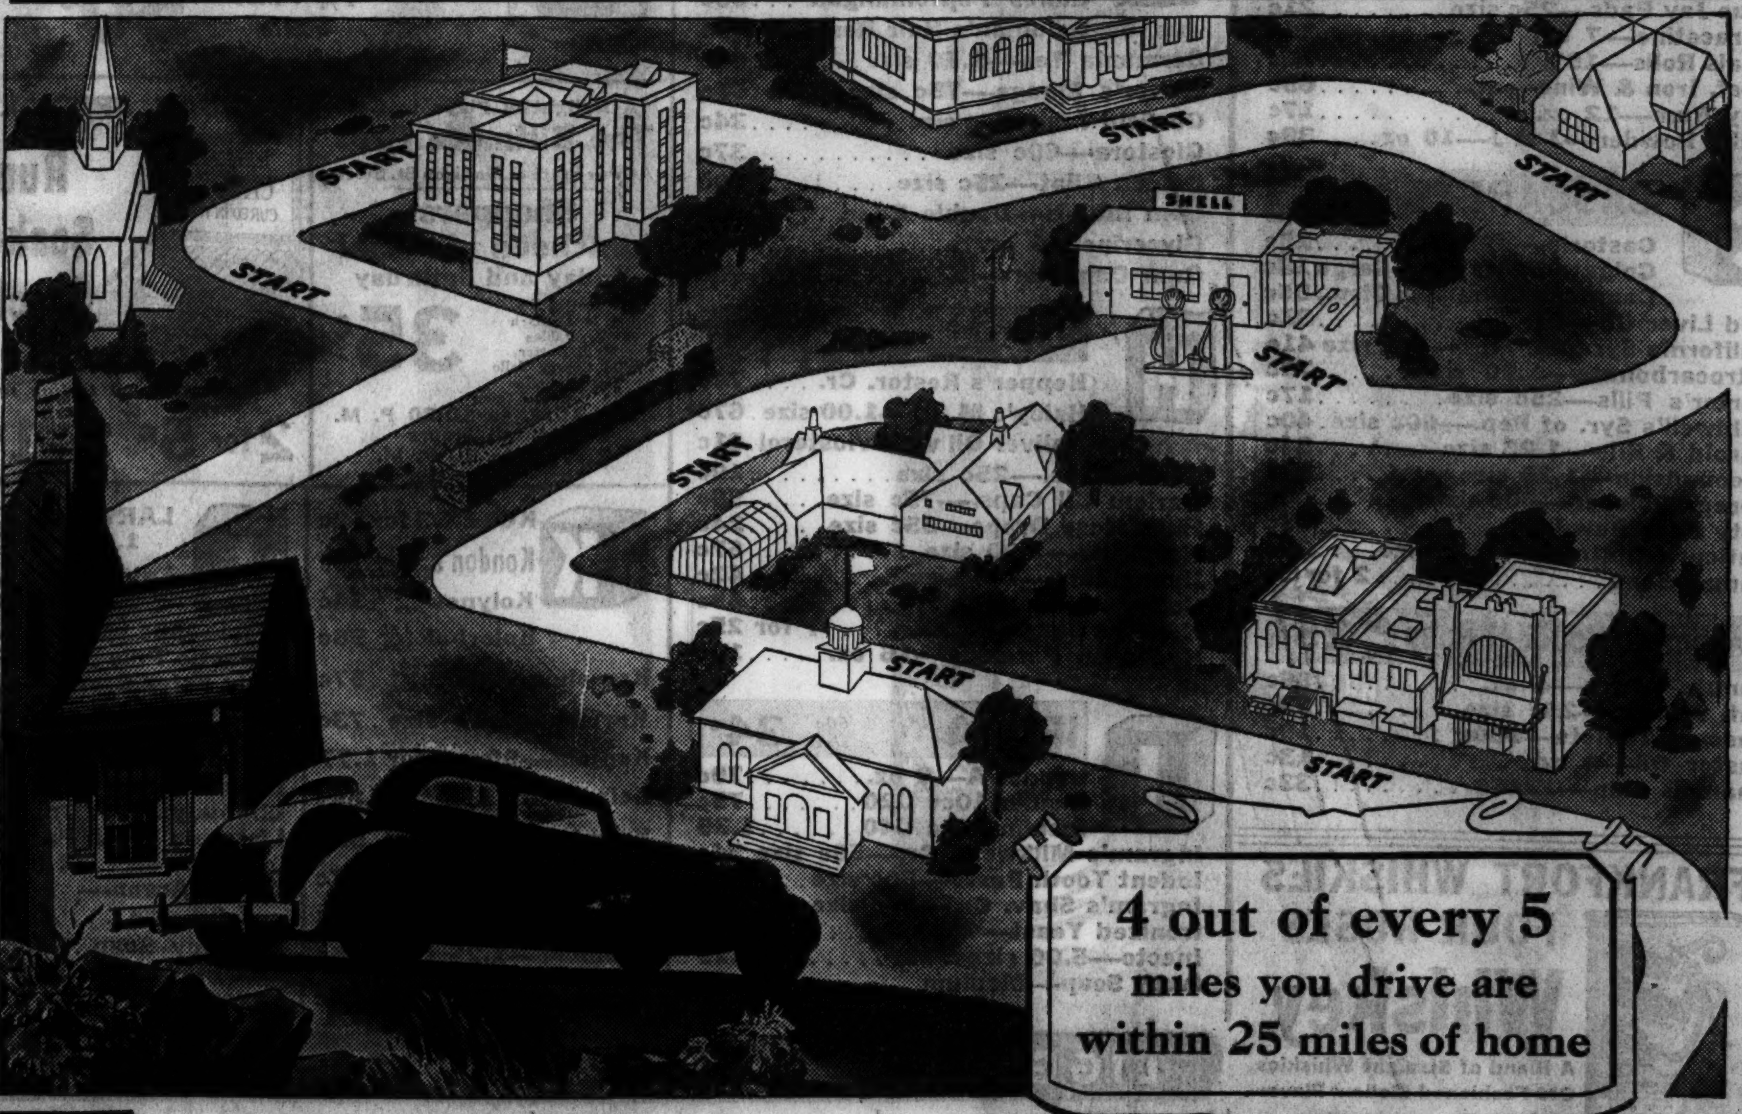
You often start your engine 15 times a day!



4 out of every 5 miles you drive are within 25 miles of home

Today's constant starting wastes your money

—if your gasoline doesn't have these 3 different kinds of power

KEEP track of the number of times a day you step on your STARTER! Then you'll realize that it's the SHORT TRIPS which run up so much of your mileage! Shopping, business and social trips account for 80 MILES out of every 100 you drive!

So you need a gasoline . . .

. . . that not only starts off fast and warms up your engine quickly

. . . that not only PICKS UP swiftly without using too much gasoline

But is thrifty in all these 3 ways!

In short, you need a gasoline that has 3 different kinds of power . . . and has these three kinds of power IN PERFECT BALANCE!

Super-Shell is the FIRST truly balanced gasoline! It is another great achievement by Shell engineers—the men who pioneered in such important developments as the "weather-conditioning" of gasoline.

Saves Gasoline 3 WAYS
1. Can save up to a cupful on every "cold" start.
2. Can save up to a cupful in ten minutes of rapid accelerating or hill climbing.
3. Can save up to a cupful in every hour of steady running, many motorists report.

CALLS FOR SOUND G.O.P. LEADERS TO RESCUE NATION

Senator Steiwer Assails New Deal Propaganda.

New York, May 2.—(AP)—Conceding what he said were "numerous political errors of the Republican party and the ineptitude with which it met some of the problems of the last decade," United States Senator Frederick Steiwer of Oregon tonight asserted that only a sound party leadership was needed to make the Republican party of today the "agency of rescue" for the nation.

Senator Steiwer spoke with former Gov. Henry J. Allen of Kansas and Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey in arraigning the New Deal at a forum meeting sponsored by the New York county Republican committee.

"The party lost in public esteem," Steiwer said, "because of hard times and because it was regarded as being too close to big business. It can no longer be credited with that dubious distinction. The defeats it met in 1932 and 1934 have proved a blessing in disguise.

Affections Given Democrats.

"Business looking for political favors has transferred its affections from the Republican party to the Democratic party.

"The list of New Deal advisers in various lines of business, including those officially connected with the government and those who operate unofficially, reads like a who's who of Wall street."

Assailing what he called the extent of New Deal "propagandizing," Steiwer asserted that from Sept. 1, 1933, to Sept. 1, 1934, Democratic administrative officials and congressmen had made 1,000 speeches over one broadcasting system.

Points to Propaganda on Air.

This "propaganda," he declared, had disguised the fact that "we have not received as much recovery as we have paid for."

"The people probably already have discerned the dishonest propaganda which assures conservatives that the Roosevelt administration is moving to the right while assuring the elements of discontent that it is just as surely moving to the left."

Former Gov. Allen, comparing what he termed the basic elements of recovery in England with what has been accomplished in the United States, asserted the abandonment of the gold standard by England could not be related to American abandonment.

"England went off the gold standard as a monetary and fiscal necessity. We went off as a matter of policy."

Allen attributed three principal factors to British recovery.

"The first," he said, "is the balancing of the budget. It brought the necessary return of public confidence, easy money and expanded credit. Confidence conspired with capital.

"The second cause of England's recovery is the result of the tarif law.

"And the third is a housing program. In England, they have a housing program that actually builds houses."

Plans to Rehabilitate New Jersey.

Gov. Hoffman said that New Jersey, under a Republican administration, was laying down plans for the rehabilitation of the state government.

"As a Republican governor," he said, "I have determined to resist, with every ounce of energy at my command, practices that will place a millstone around the necks of our children and mortgage the future of our boys and girls. . . .

"In New Jersey we must get away from the false philosophy that prompts many people to believe that we can destroy business and then expect that business to produce the funds necessary to carry out our costly experiments and bring about recovery.

"In line with this is the erroneous conviction, firmly fixed in the mind of the President, that to bring back prosperity we must have higher prices." . . .

"Apparently this idea was based upon some historical research showing that at every time we had prosperity we had higher prices, leading to the conclusion that high prices produce prosperity.

"This, as one of my friends points out, is the thinking of a 10 year old child who notices that every time the room gets warm the thermometer goes up."

200 DIE, 500 HURT IN TURK QUAKE; THOUSANDS FLEE

ISTANBUL, May 2.—(AP)—Panic stricken thousands camped in fields tonight as minor shocks continued in he wake of a violent earthquake which killed more than 200 persons and seriously injured 500 in the Kars district, on the Turkish-Russian frontier.

Fifteen villages were partially destroyed by the quake, which disrupted telephone and telegraph lines.

Homeless multitudes were reported to be suffering from an acute shortage of food and medicine. Relief agencies went to the aid of the inhabitants. At least 16 children were known to have been victims of the disaster.

DIES IN THREE STORY PLUNGE.

Carl Strohm, 63 years old, 3052 Osgood street, a cabinet maker, fell or leaped to his death yesterday from the third floor of the building where he lived. Other occupants of the building told police that Strohm had been despondent over ill health.

Tokio Police Launch War on Blackmailers; Nab 1,000

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, May 2.—One thousand so-called gangsters were arrested today as police inaugurated a campaign against petty blackmailers who infest Tokio. A typical offense alleged to be common is the extraction of money by threats of exposure from prominent rich men who may maintain two establishments.

MINER IS TARGET FOR BULLETS OF UNION LEADER

Taylorville, Ill., May 2.—(AP)—Frank Markunas, 26, an employé at Peabody mine No. 9, near here, was shot and perhaps fatally wounded tonight by Ray Tombozzi, leader of the Progressive Miners' union, who immediately surrender to Sherif Ed Marvel.

Tombozzi and Markunas were not acquainted and no argument preceded the shooting, which occurred in front of the Elite café.

Tombozzi was reported to have told Sherif Marvel and State's Attorney John Coale that he believed he was shooting "Brig" Young, a boss at Peabody mine No. 58. Statements were given to both officers by Tombozzi and witnesses.

SUICIDE VERDICT RETURNED.

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane in the death of William Gallagher, 49 years old, 5132 Madison street, who shot himself Wednesday night.

FRAUD CHARGED BY SUNNYSIDE'S HOME OWNERS

Answer to Corporation Suit Filed.

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—Charges of fraud and profits in excess of the limit of 6 per cent fixed by law were made today against the City Housing corporation by 36 home owners at Sunnyside Gardens, Queens, against whom the corporation had started foreclosure proceedings. The charges were contained in an answer to the foreclosure filed in the Supreme court, Jamaica. The home owners are among a group who have refused to pay interest pending a readjustment of the rates and partial liquidation of second mortgages.

It is alleged in the answer that the company advertised itself as a nonspeculative, semi-philanthropic organization designed to promote better housing and limiting profits to 6 per cent. The home owners say they have now discovered that the company made "a large, inordinate, excessive and speculative profit, vastly in excess of 6 per cent" on land and buildings.

Notables on Advisory Board.

The answer declares that the corporation, of which Alexander M. Bing is president, enlisted the aid of many distinguished citizens to sponsor its activities as an advisory board, that the advisory board had no active connection with the company's affairs, and that some of its members have expressed sympathy with the plight of the home owners.

The advisory board, as listed in the answer, contains the names of Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, mother of the President; the Rev. Henry Darlington of the Church of The Heavenly Rest; Raymond V. Ingersoll, borough president of Brooklyn; Sam A. Lewisohn, Lillian D. Wald, John A. Kingsbury, Mary Simkhovitch, Lawson Purdy, William M. Chadbourne and other persons active in social work and civic affairs.

Mortgages Secure Bonds.

Several of the members of the advisory board, including Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, are holders of second mortgage bonds, and President Roosevelt holds some bonds in trust for his mother. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is listed as a stockholder.

Although not stated in the answer papers, it is the desire of the protesting home owners to liquidate the second mortgages at present market value, according to Charles L. Weis Jr., chairman of their committee.

The bondholders are not alleged to have shared in the alleged excess profits.

U. S. TO DISMISS ITS CHARGE AGAINST 2 BREMER DEFENDANTS

St. Paul, May 2.—(AP)—The federal government will ask dismissal of charges against two of ten defendants on trial for conspiracy to kidnap Edward G. Bremer, it was learned from a reliable source tonight as the prosecution neared completion of its case.

WYNONA BURDETTE.

Mrs. Edna [Rabbits] Murray, the "kissing bandit" who escaped from the Missouri prison while serving a 25 year term for robbery, and Jess Doyle, Kansas City mobster and self confessed bank robber, will be absolved of connection with the $200,000 Bremer abduction, it was learned.

The government's only hope of linking Doyle and Mrs. Murray with the conspiracy was through the testimony of Wynona Burdette, sweetheart of the fugitive Harry Campbell, but failing when she was on the stand today, is now prepared to ask the dismissal, it was reported.

Johore Votes $2,500,00 for British Singapore Defenses

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 2.—A gift of $2,500,000 to speed up construction of the Singapore defenses was voted today in commemoration of King George's silver jubilee by the council of state of Johore, the richest of the Malay states. King George sent a message of appreciation to Sultan Ibrahim in which he expresses the hope that the gift will "enhance still more the cordial relations which existed between this country and the state of Johore throughout my reign."

CIRCUS DONATES 3 LIONS TO ZOO IN LINCOLN PARK

Three Barbary lions, a male and two females, were donated to the Lincoln park zoo yesterday by the Cole Brothers-Clyde Beatty circus, now showing at the Coliseum. The animals, all over 7 years old, were used in the animal act of Allen King, who explained that he had purchased younger animals.

Floyd Young, director of the zoo, said the lions would be kept in separate cages for several days.

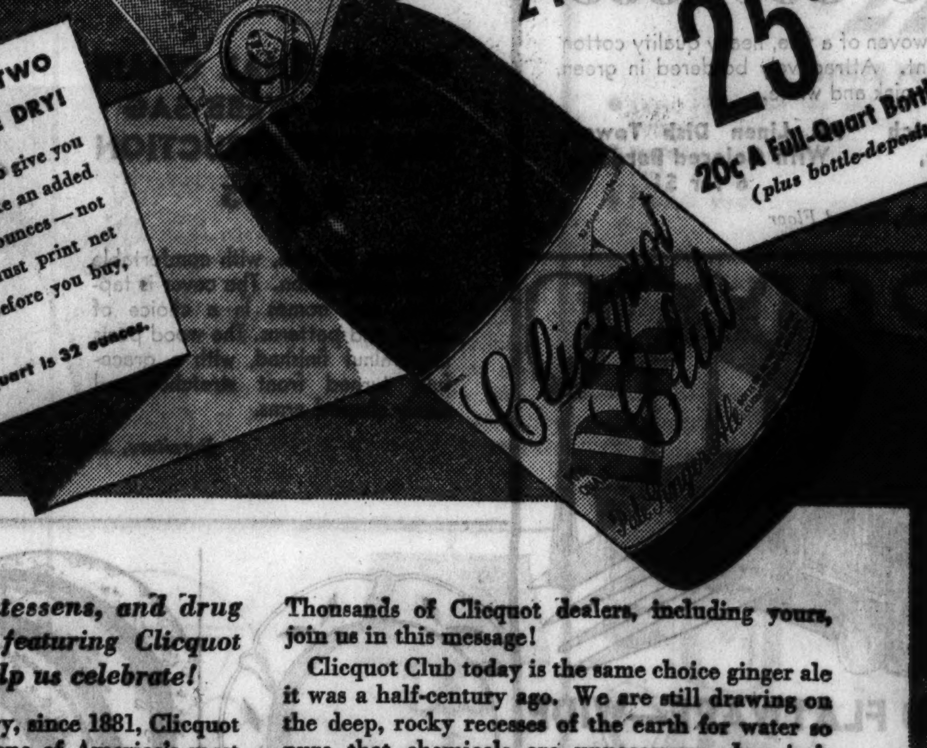
Clicquot Club's 54th ANNIVERSARY!



2 FULL-PINT BOTTLES 25c
20c A Full-Quart Bottle (plus bottle-deposit)

AN EXTRA DRINK IN EVERY TWO BOTTLES OF CLICQUOT CLUB PALE DRY!

Every two full-pint bottles of Clicquot Club give you enough extra ginger ale (8 ounces) to make an added drink! That's because a full pint is 16 ounces—not 12 ounces! All ginger ale makers must print net bottle-contents on the label. Look before you buy, and get your money's worth!

A full pint is 16 ounces . . . a full quart is 32 ounces.

Grocery stores, delicatessens, and drug stores everywhere are featuring Clicquot Club this week to help us celebrate!

FOR MORE than a half-century, since 1881, Clicquot Club Ginger Ale has been one of America's most distinctive drinks—appreciated and enjoyed by those who like fine living.

During its lifetime, Clicquot Club has defied the accepted idea that quality and quantity don't go together! For this fine ginger ale comes to you in full-quantity, honest-measure bottles—full pints and full quarts! And in every two of Clicquot Club's honest-measure pints or quarts, you get enough extra ginger ale to make an added drink!

We could not let this 54th Anniversary go by, without expressing our thanks for your patronage.

Thousands of Clicquot dealers, including yours, join us in this message!

Clicquot Club today is the same choice ginger ale it was a half-century ago. We are still drawing on the deep, rocky recesses of the earth for water so pure that chemicals are unnecessary. Jamaica's richest ginger is still being blended with our aged taste-heighteners. And, of course, Clicquot gives you long-lived effervescence through carbonation under refrigerated pressure!

Hot, humid days are at hand. You will appreciate Clicquot Club more than ever, within the next few weeks. Imagine a tall, frosty glass of this fine ginger ale . . . tiny, bright bubbles swirling and eddying. Here is a drink! Make certain you'll have an ample supply. Order a case of Clicquot Club during this 54th Anniversary Week!

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

SILENCE IS CONFESSION.

Republican members of the legislature have been brought to the point of threatening a filibuster in an effort to force the Democratic majority to give consideration to the bills for permanent registration of voters in Chicago. It is a shameful commentary upon the leadership and membership of the Democratic political machine in Chicago and the state that such a threat should be necessary.

The opponents of the bills have as yet refused to state reasons of any weight for their opposition to these measures, which will accomplish the doubly beneficial purpose of saving taxpayers large sums now spent on the conduct of elections, and of providing effective restraints on illegal voting. They pin their hope of beating the bills on sheer, dumb inertia.

By their silence they plead guilty to a double indictment. First, they are willing to continue useless expenditure of tax funds. Second, they confess by their silent opposition a determination to retain the benefits of wholesale vote frauds which the permanent registration system would largely prevent and, so doing, to disfranchise thousands of honest voters and retain control of government in the city and state by corruption at the polls.

THE NEW CLOCK.

A grim reminder of the ghastly pace of death and injury on the highways is THE TRIBUNE'S new trafic toll register for 1935, Hands of Death. The year is only four months spent, yet the clock is already outgrown as to casualties and has been replaced by a clock which will run up to 20,000 instead of the 5,000 of the first clock now passed.

We hope this reminder of the ceaseless tragedy of the highways will induce greater caution among motorists and intensify the efforts in every practical way to make the highways safer for motorists and pedestrians. By far the most important measure of safety is elevation, for, as the statement carried each day under the clock reminds us, over 98 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

ON BEHALF OF THE COMMUNITY.

A person accused of felonious crime in Illinois must be indicted by a grand jury, given a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury of the district where the crime occurred. He must be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation and confronted by the witnesses against him and have compulsory process to obtain his own witnesses and the assistance of counsel. He must not be tried twice for the same offense or compelled to testify against himself. His house and papers must not be unreasonably searched or seized without warant. Excessive bail shall not be required or cruel and unusual punishment inflicted. All these protections the constitutions of the United States or of Illinois give him.

This is the supreme law written for the protection of individuals accused of crime, but the 125,000,000 people of the United States and the 7,000,000 people of Illinois who are not charged with crime have been careless of law for their protection. Worse than this, they have provided a system of legal procedure and judges elected by popular ballot to insure that one charged with a criminal act gets every advantage that the law caste, or profession, and the judges and legislatures, mostly made up from the law profession, can give him for hire, with emphasis on a technical ritualism rather than social stability and common justice.

In view of this situation as summarized by a member of the Chicago bar he suggests the following code:

All prosecuting or other officers in courts shall stand impartial, dispassionate, and unprejudiced between the people and the accused.

In criminal trials the judge may receive suggestions from counsel, but he alone shall question and select the jury and prevent crowding, violence, disorder, and irrelevant proceedings.

The state and the accused shall each have not more than 20 peremptory challenges.

The accused shall be presumed to be innocent until judgment is pronounced. No evidence shall be given of confessions or admissions not made in open court.

The judge impartially shall comment on the evidence and charge the jury only as to the law.

The verdict and judgment thereon shall be final. There shall be no appeal or writ of error from a judgment on a verdict or by a judge if accused waive jury trial.

One adjudged guilty may move for a new trial, but thereupon the burden of showing innocence, error, or injustice shall be on him and he shall be subject to examination, public or private, as he may elect, by the judge, or his appointed deputy, physician, or attorney, and if motion for new trial be denied may petition the Supreme court in a felony case, or the Appellate court in a misdemeanor case, assuming the burden of showing innocence, propriety of a new trial, discharge, change of sentence or penalty upon any claim of error in trial or plea of mercy, and the Supreme or Apellate court may reverse, remand for further proceedings, remit, or modify the penalty.

ENCOURAGING TAX EVASION.

One of the most formidable obstacles to the financial recovery of Chicago local governments is the disposition of politicians to tinker with the tax collecting machinery under the pretense of "relieving the taxpayers." A thoroughly vicious example of this tinkering is the Fitzgerald bill, now pending before the state senate following its passage by the house.

This bill makes it mandatory upon the Cook County court to reduce penalties and interest on delinquent taxes by 50 per cent whenever the taxpayer asserts that he did not withhold payment willfully. The bill provides further that under the same circumstances home owners owing delinquent taxes may be relieved of all penalties and interest.

The exaction of penalties and interest for failure to pay taxes on time is the only real weapon which government has to enforce the collection of general property taxes. It is a just provision, particularly at the present time, when our local governments are running on borrowed money because of tax delays and tax delinquency.

It is only fair that the delinquent taxpayer who, willfully or not, has added an interest burden to the operating costs of local government through his failure to pay on time, should liquidate that burden by payment of penalties. That the penalties go to the county government alone, instead of to the governments which had to pay the interest, is immaterial. By its use of penalties and interest the county competes that much less with the other governments for the general tax dollar.

Removal of these penalties will be the most powerful influence which can be imagined in encouraging tax delinquency in the future. The taxpayer who paid his bill on time sees that his neighbor, who failed to pay, suffered no penalty. What is his natural reaction when he gets his next bill? It makes no difference that the Fitzgerald bill applies only to taxes for 1932 and prior years. With such a vicious precedent it will be simple two years hence to urge passage of another bill abolishing penalties on 1933 taxes now in collection and on those for 1934 and 1935.

Considering the course of other taxpayer "relief" movements, it requires no fantastic imagination to foresee the next step in this procession of attacks on our revenue system. Shortly we may expect arguments that since the taxpayers who have not paid their bills are to be relieved of penalties, those who have previously paid delinquent bills, with interest and penalties, are still more deserving and should have their interest and penalty payments remitted.

Such a course of action would bankrupt the county government, if it is not bankrupted sooner by the profligate actions of the present county board, and it would not be long before it completely stopped tax collections in Chicago.

THE LANCER AND THE BRITISH RAJ.

Although Maj. Yeats-Brown, the author of the "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," has given his full approval to the Hollywood picture based on his opus, certain injured British susceptibilities have reached the point of a question in the house of commons. The author's critical impulses may have been quieted by the opulence in which his work was clothed and by the returns from the box office. In any case he testifies for the picture, upholding its verities and maintaining that it serves not only the purpose of the British raj but the virtues of the warlike races of India. It ignores mystical India. It is only one life of the lancer. Yoga is missing and Yeats-Brown might have complained of that, but he doesn't.

This clearance is not satisfactory to various ex-colonels of his majesty's foot and horse now in the red faced sunset of their days in London. It appears to have been an outrage for these damned American actors and damned American producers and damned Hollywood to have touched a sacred subject. When India is touched the colonels will touch it, not always as at Amritsar, but in each case as needs be. The colonels, down deep, may have been irritated by the feeling that they never could be as good as Hollywood.

American movies are in a capricious mood, capricious unless it has a business objective, of building up the British prestige. To the "Lancer" must be added "Clive of India" and the "Iron Duke" among current exhibits. The producers, although habitually careful of their detail, may get a buckle wrong here or a salute wrong there and yet if criticism will pass over these errors, such existing, and the colonels find them, the end result is glorification, a better job than Kipling did because wider spread. Its political effect at home ought to satisfy even Mr. Winston Churchill.

Presumably the invaluable work is being done without cost to Neville Chamberlain and the exchequer, for reasons sufficient to Hollywood. Nevertheless parliament is asked if nothing is being done to stop it and if not why not.

It might be well for the American producers to come back home and leave the British raj to its own exploitation.

Editorial of the Day

[Los Angeles Times.]

With crooked thinking on a national scale for an example, it is not surprising to find communities and groups that can't think straight. The cerebral dust storms of the La Follettes, of Huey Long, of Father Coughlin, are only local eddies in a national blizzard that has its epicenter in Washington.

California rather prides itself on its immunity from the physical phenomena which have plagued most other states. When it comes to psychological Santa Anas, however, Sinclairism, the Utopian movement and the Townsend plan have given us a place well up front among contributors to the general mental murkiness.

Weather men say that wind storms are the result of hot air rising from the centers of such disturbances. Brain storms are produced in exactly the same way.

What we need is a rain of common sense to lay our mental dust.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

I'VE STRUGGLED HARD between hazarding one silver dollar [a buck in the American language] on some horse that's going to run in the Derby Saturday, or taking the aforesaid dollar down to the Navy Pier and chucking it into the lake. I was bitterly reflecting that almost every horse I bet on in the Derby [there have been some happy exceptions] turns out to be a dog and doesn't come galloping in under the wire until about three days after the Derby is all over. Which gave me a great idea. I was saying to myself, "Now what dog shall I hang my dollar on?" when, in looking down the list, I saw the name "St. Bernard." St. Bernard himself is no dog, I hope, but he's named after one of the finest breeds of canines that there is. So I think I'll ask the bookies to put me down for one buck on St. Bernard. But I'll tell the bookie that if a horse gets into the Derby named Police Dog to pull down my bet. Police Dog would jump at St. Bernard and try to bite off his tail, and St. Bernard would forget about the big race and turn on Police Dog and chase him, howling for mercy, to the top of the grand stand.

SONNET IV.

God knows it is not wise to walk alone,
Or but companioned by the climbing moon,
When melancholy, like a mountain grown,
Doth with the aching memory commune;
Sad solitude, arch-enemy of love,
Fellow to melancholy and despair,
Sound not for any alchemy whereof
Sorrow is gilded over and made fair;
Seek rather then the busy haunts of men
And all their present clamors, whom the past
Grieves not, nor any more the future, when
They count their silver coins and sleep at last:—
Dreams solely through the unexploited night.

PYGMALION.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE, just celebrating her sixth birthday, starts a new movie contract at $1,250 a month. O well, there weren't any movies when I was six years old, of course—naturally.

STILL, it isn't what a person earns at six that matters so much. They can't buy expensive cars then or go to night clubs or tell the publican to send 'em up a couple of cases of the best Scotch and never mind the cost. No, a large fat salary at six isn't so good as one at thirty-six or forty-six or sixty-six. At six they just waste their money on dolls, and at thirty-six or forty-six or sixty-six they can waste their money on so many different things.

GOOD WISE MOTHER.

I shall return to her at last, to earth,
My good wise mother, after years of pain
A tired child, I shall go home again.

And she will take me to her gentle breast
Compassionately, with no hint of blame
For all my blunders; she will let me rest,
Not even asking of the way I came.

ADELAIDE LOVE.

BETTER HANG ON to the family silver and the silver medals you won at the county fair in the bicycle race and the silver headed cane that grandpa left you and the silver tablespoons that the boys at the office gave Henry "when we were married," and the old fashioned silver watch as big as a turnip that belonged to pa, and all things silver, including silver hair among the gold and the dimes that little Junior has saved up in his bank. Silver is going up so fast and getting so valuable that pretty soon we'll be speaking breathlessly of silveraires instead of millionaires.

AND IN FACT silver is getting so important and the lads who own the silver mines and everybody who manages to get hold of a considerable quantity of silver will be so powerful that we will have to change the old adages. In the future they'll read: "Silver! Silver! Silver! Bright and white, that makes men pilfer." And some future political orator, after silver has run riot for a long term of years, will paraphrase William Jennings Bryan's famous utterance and shout on the platform of a national convention: "You shall not press down upon the brow of the white collar boys this crown of thorns—you shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of silver!" How the world does change!

FOND PAPAS and admiring teachers who love to report the quaint sayings of the little ones lost a grand opportunity yesterday when a newspaper had a headline, "Plan to Blow Up Cofferdam to Free Western River of Ice." Now that's a fine idea for a smart saying of some cute little tot. It could go like this: Little Jimmy was asked to use the word "cofferdam" in a sentence and immediately said, "Our cow has got a cold, and pa says if she don't get any better she's liable to cofferdam head off." Now, that's as cunning a saying of the little ones as any of 'em. And I thought it up myself.

INDIANA IDYLL.

I must go home with spring half blown,
Not so many days must pass
Before I feel the touch of rain
And walk on friendly grass;

Before I see the sweet sun-pools
Of garden daffodils—
The rose-flesh of new paw-paw leaves,
The neighbors' friendly sills.

There are no buds like those where spring
Has memories to spare—
I must go home and see if those
Blue hyacinths are there.

LILA TERRY.

LILACS are such lovely things; I'd rather have a lilac blossom than an orchid. Peach blossom queens and gooseberry queens and cherry queens and prune queens and all the other thousand varieties that bob up every spring we can't help, but why must there be lilac queens? O dear, O dear!

THE DANGEROUS HOUSE FLY

THE common house fly will soon be with us and now is the time to lay plans for freedom from this filth spreading pest. Of the several varieties of flies that may infest the house the common sort is known as "musca domestica." Regardless of the derivation of its Latin name, the "domestica" part is most appropriate. The fly feels "at home" and claims acquaintance with everything in the household, animate and inanimate—particularly food.

The rapid increase of this annoying insect may be understood when we realize that each female lays about 120 eggs at one time and that a fly generation is only ten days. Hence there may be twelve or more generations in a single summer. It requires 2,880 flies to weigh an ounce, and it has been estimated that in forty days the descendants of a single female will, if all the offspring survive, weigh 280 pounds.

The eggs, which are laid in masses, hatch into maggots in from six to eight hours. These larvæ or worms are fully developed in four or five days. In another five days an adult fly emerges from each brown case [pupa] formed by the worm. During cold weather the larvæ or pupæ forms are found hibernating around rubbish piles or beneath the soil. Stable manure, refuse piles, poultry houses, etc., provide suitable breeding places.

Because they are winged, flies will travel for miles in all directions more or less independently of currents of air. Their range of travel is shorter in towns than in the open country, largely because of the availability of food. A few years ago two investigators liberated several thousand marked house flies after setting traps at varying distances from the point of departure. The maximum distance traveled by any one recaptured fly was 13.1 miles.

As bacteria carriers they are excelled by none of nature's creatures. The body and legs are covered with bristles and the insect crawling over infected material collects bacteria, carrying them to food in restaurants, homes, food shops, etc.

How many bacteria can a fly carry? Early in the season the number of bacteria on flies is comparatively small. Later as the fly travels and acquires a better knowledge of geography the totals may vary from a few thousand to several million. In a midseason experiment the average number of bacteria found on 415 flies was about one and one-quarter million. These were surface bacteria only and the figures do not include the much larger number in the intestinal tract. Much of the spread of bacteria is due to deposits of fly excreta.

It is not an uncommon sight to see flies clustered about the top of a milk bottle that has been left on a doorstep and from which milk is later poured without thorough cleansing of the rim of the bottle. In the process of capping, a drop or two of milk may be spilled and flies will sow their infected material in this food. Numerous instances are on record in which flies have been proved to be responsible for the spread of typhoid fever, dysentery, tuberculosis, and various types of intestinal diseases, particularly those that affect babies and young children in the summer time.

Any cleanup campaign must destroy the breeding places of flies. To "swat the fly" is well-nigh futile, as these insects can breed faster than a million swatters can kill them. Homes and restaurants may provide adequate fly exterminators, fly traps, fly poisons, or fly sprays. These devices will add to our comfort and assist substantially in preventing fly borne infections, but fly breeding will go on just the same unless more vigorous measures are employed.

MORE MEDICAL SUPERSTITIONS.

M. M. C. writes: At the home where I am staying there is a baby who was 1 year old in February. The mother says she will not wean her until May because in May the birds are settled, and the child will be more settled and satisfied when she grows up. She said her mother weaned her in May and that is why she has been satisfied to stay in one place while her sister is always moving from one town to another. She thinks it is terrible to wean a baby before it is a year old.

H. writes: Some people who were born in Europe told me of cases of cuts in which the blood refuses to clot. The peasants would place bread soaked in water or cobwebs on the cuts and, presto! bleeding would cease. Also, that there were special people gifted with the power to clot blood by holding a finger over the wound and saying several words. All poisonous snake bites were taken to a healer, who gave nothing in the way of medical treatment but recited some mysterious words over the bite and the person did not die. I pointed out that the snakes were probably not poisonous.

REPLY.

Superstitions linger for centuries, but the world does move and, some day, education will banish most of our fears that are responsible for beliefs in hocus pocus.

In the 18th century surgeons used cobwebs to stop hemorrhages. Of course, the wounds were generously infected, but then most wounds were in those days. During the ill fated Walcheren expedition in 1809 every English surgeon has recourse to boxes of cobwebs.

WHOOPING COUGH SERUM.

Mrs. M. L. writes: 1. Is whooping cough serum now perfected? 2. Is it safe to give it to a 9 month old baby?

REPLY.

1. Yes.
2. Yes.

IT'S HAY FEVER.

E. H. writes: I have been suffering this spring with hypersensitive rhinitis. What is the cause and treatment?

REPLY.

This is a symptom of hay fever or allergy. You are no doubt sensitive to the early pollens that come with the first growth of plants in the spring. You can be tested for sensitivity and a vaccine may be used.

SHARE IN ESTATE.

Chicago, April 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My first cousin, who lived in New York, died last year. Her nearest relatives are four first cousins, one living in New York, my two brothers, and myself. 1. In her last will she left me $500 and nothing to the other three first cousins. I wrote to the lawyer acting as administrator, but received no answer. 2. A distant cousin wrote me that if my brothers and I opposed the probation of the last will the money would go to the state, as we were too distantly related to inherit. Naturally I concluded the first will was destroyed, so we did not oppose the probation. Later I found out that they saw the first will with her when she went to the hospital two days before she died. In December, 1934, I received what was willed to me and thought everything was over. A few weeks later a lawyer who is representing the administrator called to see my brothers. He had papers for them to sign signifying that they were satisfied with the disposal of the property. They did not sign. 3. What will be done now?

K. E. R.

1. We assume that you mean that she left the bulk of her estate to other parties.

2. This is merely a bluff. There is no such rule.

3. It seems probable that the estate can be closed without the signatures, but if the estate is substantial there are enough suspicious circumstances to warant going over your facts in a personal interview with an attorney. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

PROPERTY REDEMPTION.

Rankin, Ill., April 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. If a tract of farm land is sold for taxes, how long is given the former owner to redeem? 2. What penalty must he pay to redeem it? 3. When, if ever, does the purchaser of this land receive a clear title to it? 4. What rights has the purchaser, and [5] can he get possession of this property and receive income from it pending redemption? 6. I have been told that tax titles are worthless. If that is true [7] what advantage would there be in buying them? The property in question is in Illinois.

S. C. W.

1. Two years. After that a tax deed will issue which will be a serious cloud on the title.

2. Ordinarily about 1 per cent per month, plus advertising costs, etc. The best way to get the exact figures is to ask the county clerk for an estimate for redemption.

3. If, at the end of two years, he receives a tax deed, and then pays the taxes for seven years, he will, in general, have a clear title unless the property remains in possession of some other person.

4. See 3.

5. Ordinarily not.

6. We would say that they are not good as to titles to the real estate, but they have value as liens.

7. When the original owner wishes to sell, it will be necessary for him to clear the title. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CONSTRUCTION CONTRACTS.

Chicago, April 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. I intend building a small bungalow, giving the contract to a general contractor, and wish you would advise just how I can protect myself when giving him the cash to pay off the subcontractors. 2. Will he have to bring them to me individually and I to pay them, or if I give him the money to pay them, how will I know he has paid them in full? 3. If I get a waiver of lien from each of them and from him, will that protect me?

C. C. M.

1. It is a common practice to pay out in instalments as the work progresses. If you do not trust the contractor to make even the instalment payments you can arrange for the subcontractors to meet you and receive their checks from you.

2. What is advisable depends largely on the contractor's reputation.

3. Yes. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

A COUNCIL FOR DEFENSE.

Chicago, May 1.—As a citizen, watching carefully the trend of affairs in the nation, I wish to heartily indorse the proposal set forth in your editorial this morning entitled "Defenders of the Republic."

I am one who would not call himself a Republican or a Democrat, a New Dealer [or a complete anti-New Dealer], but I do believe, for the good of this nation, it is high time the great rank and file of "balanced thinking" individuals the length and breadth of the land do concentrate or coördinate their efforts in some sensible way.

I think you have proposed a sensible thing when you suggest that such organizations as the Crusaders, the National Civic federation, the National Security league, the Paul Reveres, the Sentinels of the Republic, the American Liberty league, the Constitutional Protective union [and I would by all means add the Commonwealth Club of California, whose activity is grounded on "Get the Facts"], etc., should have a central coördinating body. And this suggestion of yours is worthy of immediate action. These organizations can well afford to take steps at once to informally discuss the possibilities for such a central body. The way things are going in the country today demands nation-wide organization to prove just as quickly as it can possibly be done that voluntary, coöperative, honest-to-goodness government can be had in this land in lieu of its opposite.

A CITIZEN.

TO COMPLETE THE ARGUMENT.

Chicago, April 21.—Dr. Wilhelm Tannenberg, German vice consul in Chicago, proves himself a very capable advocate of Hitler and the things he stands for. All that Mr. Tannenberg has to do now is to furnish conclusive evidence that the reichstag fire was started by the communists [which the German government failed to do], show cause why the Jews ought to be starved to death, give proof of the German rulers' peaceful and benevolent intentions toward other nations, and then his case will be quite complete.

CURT WEBER.

A GEOGRAPHY LESSON.

Chicago, April 18.—There is real geography in the map in today's TRIBUNE. The flight of the Clipper from Alameda to Honolulu is well shown. I am inclined to think that pupils would make much better progress in geography if we had no course of study in geography. The use of the daily press is better than the textbook.

NOTE FROM MUCH EXPERIENCE.

Chicago, April 28.—I have lived through Tweed, Hanna and Penrose. But this current capitol mob makes them innocent children, diapered in ethics.

JOHN A. THIEM.

HUE AND CRY.

Chicago, April 20. — Why the sudden hue and cry that is being raised by Mr. Hayes, Gen. Clinnin, and the American Legion because the youth of this city will not rush to the defense of their country? Are we at war, or being invaded by a foreign nation? Did the present members of the American Legion, of which Mr. Hayes was formerly commander, rush to this nation's defense in the world war, or were they drafted against their will by a President who was reëlected for a second term on the campaign slogan "He kept us out of war!"?

By what authority do the American Legion and the R. O. T. C. in the high schools attack American citizens for exercising their constitutional right of assembling peaceably? Or what peculiar quirk of the mind leads Gen. Clinnin to vilify and abuse members of the antiwar movement in the name of patriotism when he knows that patriotism in the last war meant the risking and losing of thousands of lives at a dollar per day, while patriots like Mr. Grace stayed at home in pefect safety to collect millions of dollars in bonuses?

In case of invasion by a foreign nation I shall be the first to offer my four boys to defend the country, but I shall refuse to send them to Europe to be shot, for I know that when we send soldiers overseas it will be for the sake of profit, and profit alone!

JAMES PORGES.

MATERNITY LEAVES FOR TEACHERS.

Chicago, April 24.—I would like to add my voice to the cry about the "maternity leave" granted by the board of education of this city. The leave must be taken by the fifth month, and application for reassignment can first be made one year from the date of birth of the child. At that time the teacher's name is placed at the end of the assignment list, which is now five years long. At that rate a teacher who becomes a mother must give up her income for approximately six and one-half years. This isn't fair. Why can't some other arrangement be made? If the board of education doesn't wish to keep a position in a school open for a year and a half, why can't the teacher-mother be placed in some other school where there is a vacancy when she applies at the end of the child's first year?

When a sabbatical leave or a five months' leave for study or illness is granted, the teacher's position is held open for her, while we who have children are given no consideration. Perhaps the Parent-Teacher association could help us in our dilemma.

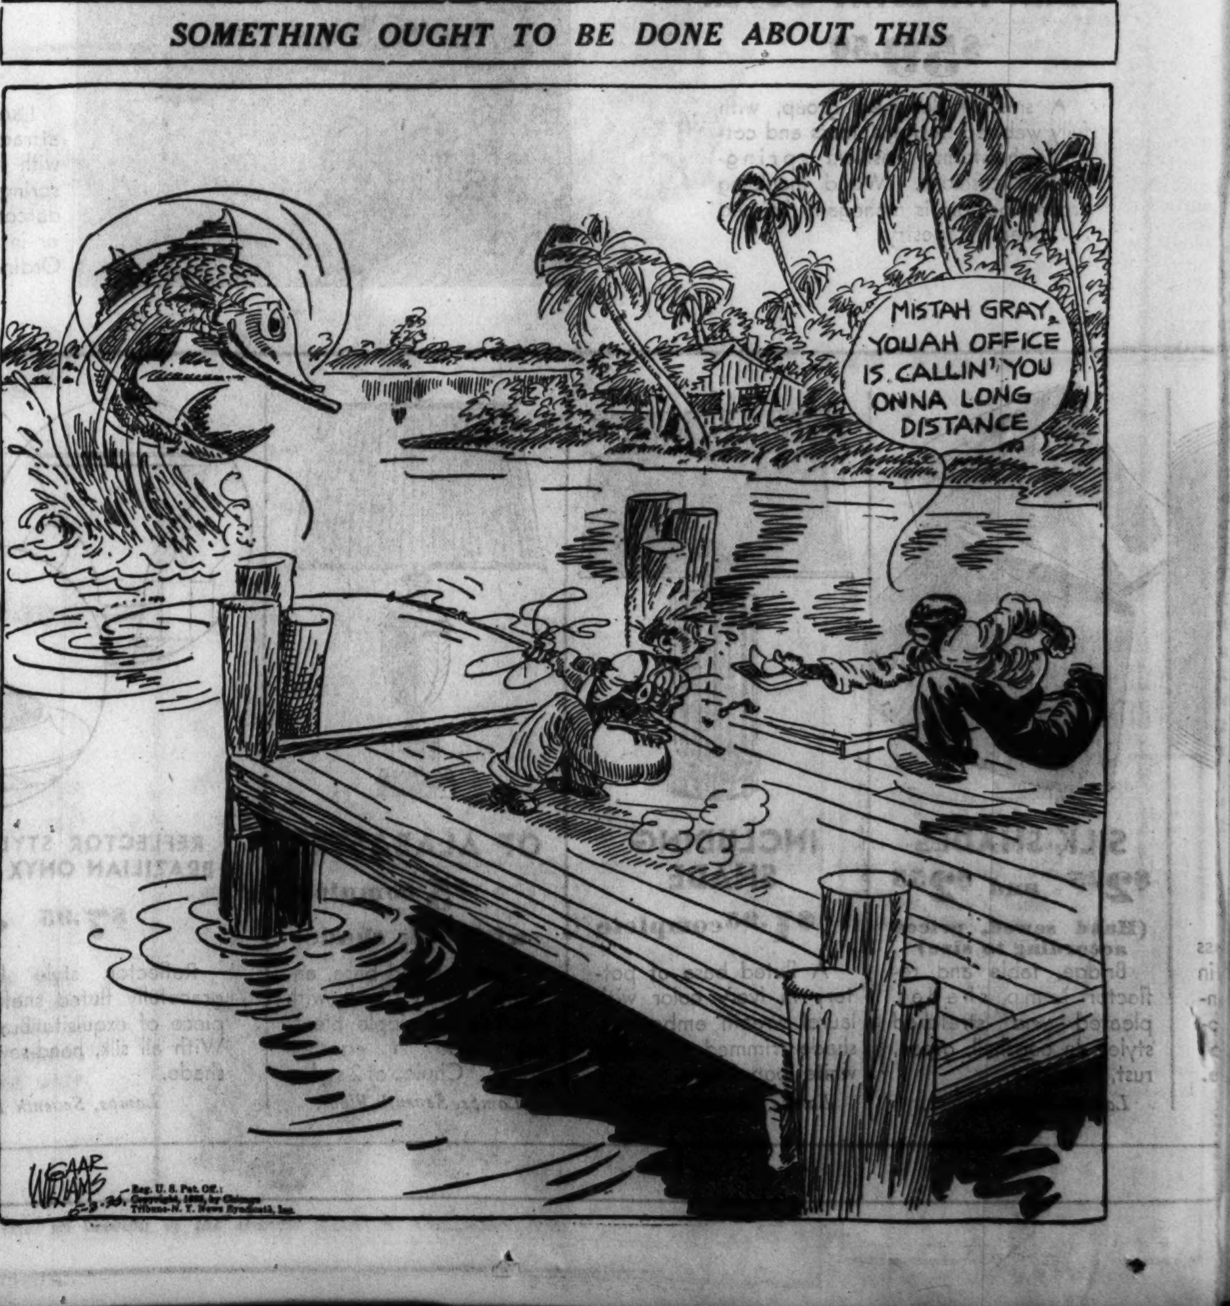
SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE ABOUT THIS



$500,000 SUIT FILED AGAINST PATTEN ESTATE

Bunker Hill Club Charges False Prosecution.

Suit for $500,000 damages, charging false and malicious prosecution, was started in the Superior court yesterday against the estate of the late Amanda Louise Patten, widow of James A. Patten, the "wheat king," and nine other defendants.

JOHN L. PATTEN.

The bill, filed by Attorney John O. Wagner in behalf of the Bunker Hill Country club, west of Niles, alleges that the defendants were instrumental in bringing an involuntary bankruptcy suit against the club, which ended in a verdict for the club. All except $50,000 of the total amount sought in the suit represents punitive damages.

Mrs. Patten's estate is involved in the case through its holding of a portion of $80,000 in notes given by the club to its organizer.

Nine Other Defendants.

The nine other defendants include the Chicago Title and Trust company as co-executor of the estate; John Lowrie Patten, 1426 Ridge avenue, Evanston, son of Mrs. Patten and a co-executor; Ralph W. Olmstead, 5339 Ferdinand street, a co-executor, and Frank Schofield, 7 South Dearborn street, attorney for Mrs. Patten, who died last Jan. 26.

Other defendants are John McElhatton, manager of the Illinois Country club, a plaintif in the bankruptcy suit, and his son, Shaun, 729 South Greenwood avenue, Park Ridge; George C. Schmitz, 531 Laurel avenue, Wilmette; Attorney Russell J. McCaughey, 38 South Dearborn street, McElhatton's lawyer, and Attorney Martin K. Isenberg, 7 South Dearborn street, one of the plaintif's lawyers in the bankruptcy action.

Paid $40,000 for Stock.

Attorney Wagner said John McElhatton in 1925 induced B. F. Andresen, former wholesale butcher, to start the Bunker Hill club, and subsequently became director and assistant manager and was given 250 shares of the club's preferred stock and 450 shares of its common stock.

In 1926, according to Wagner, McElhatton was paid $40,000 for his preferred stock, after threatening trouble unless he received the money. In 1927, Wagner said, McElhatton demanded $80,000 more for his common stock and was given eight $10,000 notes by the club.

After paying 5 per cent interest on the notes until 1932, Wagner said, the club was advised that its purchase of the stock had been illegal because the other stockholders had not been consulted. Accordingly it sued a year ago in the Circuit court for cancellation of the remaining notes and recovery of the money it had paid. Judge Harry Fisher found for McElhatton, and the club's appeal is pending before the Appellate court.

Suit in Bankruptcy Filed.

Despite the fact that the matter was pending in the state courts, the bill sets forth, the bankruptcy suit was brought in the federal court last Jan. 17. The action, according to the bill, was brought at the instigation of Mrs. Patten and her son, McElhatton and his son, and Schmitz, who together held the $80,000 in the club's notes. After Mrs. Patten's death her executors continued to prosecute the action, it is alleged.

A jury in the bankruptcy case found the club to be solvent, and Federal Judge William H. Holly refused to appoint a receiver.

Marion Claire, the singer, arrived in Chicago on the Century yesterday after having completed her 250th performance in "The Great Waltz," which has been running in New York since September. The work of playing Resi, the leading rôle, was such, Miss Claire said, that she came home "to turn to spring house cleaning for a good rest." She was met at the train by her husband, Henry G. Weber, orchestra conductor and pianist of radio station W-G-N, and their son, Henry Jr., who is 2½ years old. Mr. and Mrs. Weber plan to remodel their home in Lake Bluff during her stay.

gional reserve banks possessing a high degree of autonomy.

"The centralized control of credit resulting from such a fundamental change would amount to little short of political dictatorship over the individual deposits and credit of our people. The bill as drawn does not so much affect bankers as the depositors in banks."

Resolution on NRA.

"Uncertainty surrounding the scope of legislation to supplant the present National Industrial Recovery act makes it appear that the United States Chamber of Commerce reaffirm and supplement the proposals adopted through referendum.

"We believe that the present law should be allowed to expire in June of this year, but that prior to expiration substitute legislation should be enacted for a definitely limited period on a temporary and voluntary basis.

"Such new legislation should permit voluntary codes of fair competition by industries actually engaged in interstate commerce and should provide that industries which submit codes be required to agree to minimum wages, maximum hours of labor, and abolition of child labor; that code approval and administration be under the general jurisdiction of a quasi-judicial body, and that there be no provisions for imposing or amending codes by executive or administrative authority, although such authority should have the right to terminate approved codes. New legislation also should permit agreements between competitors which, upon receiving governmental approval, would be free from penalties of the anti-trust laws.

Assail Extra Judicial Methods.

"The collective bargaining provisions of the present law have definitely disproved their worth. Further, we are of the opinion that efforts to enforce obedience to codes by extra judicial methods, such as the Blue Eagle, withholding or withdrawal of government contracts, and appeals to public prejudice, are contrary to our national traditions."

When the leaders of the chamber sought to draft this last resolution so that it would approve federal aid to the aged while passing over unemployment and old age insurance, a revolt broke out on the floor and Mr. Baldwin and representatives of the Illinois Manufacturers' association succeeded in striking it out.

Other resolutions passed by the meeting rapped government competition with business, the pending AAA amendments, and the 30 hour week and labor relations bills. Approval was expressed of proposed unified regulation of all transportation and utilities, of retirement of marginal farm lands, and of aid to the merchant marine.

Despite the hostile tone of the convention and of the conversation among delegates, both Mr. Sibley and Mr. Harriman sought to belittle the wide open breach between business and President Roosevelt.

Fails to Send Greeting.

Failure of the President to send a greeting to the convention was shrugged aside figuratively by Mr. Harriman.

"We invited him to come, and he hesitated a long time and finally said he didn't want to come without making a speech and that he did not have time to write one. No slight or implication of a slight was intended," Mr. Harriman insisted.

"I am sure of that," Mr. Sibley echoed. "When there is an honest disagreement of opinion between honest men, the disagreement must be stated. We hope to present these things across the table in a friendly fashion. I certainly will call on the President as soon as I can. We were at school together."

Bound by Resolutions.

Sibley admitted the chamber, including himself, now is bound to campaign for the principles set forth in the resolutions even though they are hostile to the President's program.

Beside repeating the denial that any slight was intended when no greeting was sent, the White House is understood to be considering the Harriman appointment to the FHA. Although this appointment had been probable for some time, it now becomes particularly apt as a peace gesture.

WORK STARTED ON OAK STREET BEACH STATION

STORM DAMAGES 150 BUILDINGS IN LOUISVILLE

Four Die in Arkansas; Three in Kentucky.

Louisville, Ky., May 3 [Friday].—(AP) —A storm which earlier in the night killed three Kentuckians damaged more than 100 homes and some 50 business buildings here early today.

The damage here was to roofs, windows and the like. No serious injuries were reported.

The storm raged over Kentucky and Indiana most of the night. Heavy rains were accompanied by furious blasts of lightning. Communications were broken off between many points.

C. C. Bennett, 50, and Malcolm Flanigan, 31, were struck by lightning while they stood under a tree on Bennett's farm in Henderson county.

Thomas Spencer, 16, of Rice Springs was hit on the neck by a bolt when he ran for shelter.

Kentucky's capital, Frankfort, was without lights and other services. The power failed there at 11:52 p. m. last night. Early today it had not been restored.

Blimp Loses Costly Helium.

Several thousand dollars worth of helium gas was lost at Bowman field, airport here, from a Goodyear blimp which came to Louisville for the Kentucky Derby festival. A 50 mile an hour wind ripped down on the dirigible. Moored to a mast with nobody aboard, it could not be released to ride the gale before the damage was done.

Pilot H. W. Crum ordered the bag deflated. Airport Superintendent Col. Henry W. Rogers said the blimp stood on end when the gale first struck it.

Streets in the business section were littered with flags and other Derby festival decorations torn from their places by the gale.

Four Killed in Arkansas.

Little Rock, Ark., May 2.—(AP)—Four persons were killed and 10 injured today as wind and electrical storms swept through Arkansas, accompanied by hard rains.

Two children were killed during the storm in Mississippi county, one near Osceola and the other on a plantation at Frenchman's bayou. A 17 year old boy was killed when struck by lightning while plowing in a field near Texarkana. A woman was killed by lightning near Pine Bluff.

Six members of a family were injured seriously when lightning demolished their home at Stella.

Tornado Wrecks 16 Houses.

Jasonville, Ind., May 2.—[Special.] —A tornado swept the north part of this place today, injured nine persons, destroyed sixteen houses and some smaller buildings and unroofed others, causing damage of at least $50,000. Seventy-five persons were made homeless.

The tornado struck in the south part of the city, following the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad tracks through town, cutting a swath a block wide. Torrents of rain accompanied the wind. The wind carried the bed of Frona Gentry, 7, out of her home to the street. The mattress protected her from shock and she was not awakened.

Mrs. Frank Sexton, 35, suffered a broken shoulder. She may lose her sight because of injuries from broken glass.

Two Homes Damaged.

Herrin, Ill., May 2.—(AP)—Lightning damaged two homes here today, knocked a boy down and caused about $1,000 damage at the Consolidated Coal company mine No. 7.

Houses Are Unroofed.

Harrisburg, Ill., May 2.—(AP)—Wind unroofed several houses in this vicinity today and tore down bill boards.

J. PLUVIUS TEASES COLORADO DUST BOWL WITH TWO HOUR SMILE

Springfield, Colo., May 2.—[Special.] —Wondering children and joyous grownups reveled today in the first moisture of the year in Baca county as rain splashed into the little dust bowl of the southwest. The brisk two hour shower here was said to be the greatest fall in this area in three years.

Small children, who had never seen such a downpour, were frightened when they first heard it beating loudly on roofs, and even older folks declared they had almost forgotten what rain was like.

But the rain was hardly over before the same type of wind that has tortured the region with incessant clouds of dust for weeks threatened again. Residents angrily watched as it swept moisture laden clouds along and appeared to be blowing the rainstorm away.

Dust aggravated pneumonia today claimed a second child of Norman Dwight, Elder, Colo., farmer. His 18 month old daughter died. A son died Saturday. Three other Dwight children, suffering from the malady, were placed in an emergency hospital today.

Chancellorsville Battle Is Repeated in Miniature.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 2.—[Special.]—The thrilling episodes of the bloody battle of Chancellorsville, seventy-two years ago, were refought today in a spectacular sham battle. The actors were 1,600 United States marines, Virginia Military institute cadets and United States cavalry. A crowd of approximately 25,000 spectators, including many state and national dignataries, watched from the green hills surrounding the Chancellorsville battlefields.

All of the spectacular features of the old fight were embodied in the sham battle this afternoon. Infantry advanced, cavalry charged as bugles sounded and cannon roared. There was the rattle of rifle fire. But the horrors of battle were lacking.

Marines Lose the Battle.

The United States marines, enacting the part of Maj. Gen. Joe Hooker's Union army, found themselves for the first time in their history in battle without "the situation well in hand," for they lost to the confederates, represented by 600 cadets of the Virginia Military institute.

The marines were in the rôle of men of the amy of the Potomac, the cadets the men of Gens. R. E. Lee and "Stonewall" Jackson, the Army of Northern Virginia.

Gen. Lee's dramatic remark, "I have lost my right arm," when he learned of Jackson's death, was echoed in the enthusiasm of the cadets wearing the gray uniforms of the confederate army as they charged across Fairview Heights this afternoon to attack the marines.

This morning at the bivouac stone, last meeting place of Lee and Jackson, Dr. Douglas Freeman, southern author, described to the crowd the desperate situation of the confederate army on May 1, the day that Gens. Lee and Jackson met and planned the battle. Dr. Freeman told how Jackson had executed his famous forced march, and extricated the confederate army from a position that imperilled its existence.

Jackson Fatally Wounded.

Jackson was mortally wounded during the battle by his own men. Today Dr. Freeman said that famous infantry commander had won "an amazing victory at the cost of his own life."

As the Virginia historian concluded his remarks, the cadets marched past the crowd, down the Old Furnace road, just as Jackson's troops had passed along early on that morning 72 years ago on a march that resulted in the flanking of Hooker's army and its defeat. The cadets were supported by the famous Third United States cavalry.

Following the troop movement the crack riders of the Third cavalry gave an exhibition drill as 36 marine planes, in contrast to the fighting of 72 years ago, zoomed overhead. Immediately after they had concluded their stunts they flew over the National cemetery and dropped several hundred wreaths. There 16,000 Union soldiers are buried.

Included among the spectators were Gov. George Peery of Virginia and his staf; Mrs. William Becker, president general of the D. A. R., and the military attachés of Great Britain, Italy, Germany.

The actual battle lasted three days, while the sham battle condensed the major moves into a few hours.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

A New Crop; Foxes!

May 2, 1935.

The boys on the Yorkville experimental farm yesterday presented the Brookfield zoo with two foxes, each seven weeks old.

These were two of the nine which were dug out last Sunday when one of the boys accidentally ran into the den while repairing a well in the field southwest of Louis Thurow's house.

The digging started about 10 o'clock Sunday morning, and continued until a heavy rain drove the men to shelter about 6 o'clock. The shovel brigade had to go down 5½ feet to reach the fox den.

A special permit was issued to the farm by the state department of conservation in order that the young foxes might be held in possession of the farm until some disposal of them could be made. At present they are being kept in a pen in one of the tool sheds and fed on bread and milk, cooked cereal, and chopped meat.

The term "sly as a fox" certainly is an apt one, if all foxes are like these. When any one approaches they climb all over one another in an effort to escape the notice of the visitor. Occasionally one of them will peek out from under the fur of one of his brothers to see what he can of the outside world.

The wild geese that stayed on the duck pond for a long time haven't returned, so Rawlings has decided that the six visitors have gone north for summer and will not drop in for a visit again until autumn. But the pond has had several interesting feathered visitors lately. The other morning Rawlings saw a couple of coots or mudhens swimming around the mallards and geese while looking for a meal. Other interesting visitors were black crowned night herons. These birds must find the duck pond to their liking because they can wade around the edges and "spear" a bullhead or pick up similar food.

It is evident that boys and girls like kid goats, if response to THE TRIBUNE contest is a fair sign. This department is giving away a goat to the boy or girl who can write the most convincing letter telling us why he or she deserves the boat, and telling us of his or her facilities for giving the kid a good home.

Bill Zack, who is 12 years old and lives in Sheffield, Ill., evidently will be a good business man some day. In his letter asking for the goat he says, "My best friend has a young goat and we could keep them together so they would not be lonesome. His goat is a nanny goat, and we could mate them and raise little goats. Then if you ever needed a goat we would gladly send you one."

Peggy Hardin, who lives in Evanston, writes me as follows:

"I know I would like the billy goat and am sure I could take good care of him. He would be a lot of fun for my town friends that come out to see me."

Society Folk Start Annual Trek to Derby

Many Chicagoans to See Classic Tomorrow.

BY JUDITH CASS.

BY air, rail and motor Chicagoans have started the annual trek to Louisville, for tomorrow is Derby day and the mad scramble is on that occurs every spring when the classic race at Churchill Downs is run. This is the sixty-first year that residents of Louisville have been hosts to horse lovers from all over the country for the Kentucky Derby and for the sixty-first time the hotels, clubs, and hospitable hosts of the Kentucky city have been planning for weeks to give their guests the most marvelous time possible.

This year Louisville arranged a Festival week, but most of the Chicagoans who will be at the Derby won't reach Louisville in time for anything but to dash out to the track Saturday and then, later, in the cold, gray dawn of Sunday, to start home. Some who are to be guests of Louisvillians will make it a point to be there by tonight for the River Valley club party, and those lucky ones also are apt to be invited to Robert and Sevier Bonnie's famous Derby breakfast tomorrow morning. After the races there will be another ball at the River Valley club, where Louisville hosts and their visitors have celebrated winning—or losing—at the Derby for seventen years. Mint juleps are the favorite means of sustenance during the gay week-end; in fact, sometimes when a Derby visitor has returned home his memories are more of the Kentucky Bourbon he has consumed than of the fine horses he has seen.

Dozens of Chicagoans to Be on Hand for Classic.

With raincoats over their arms or in their bags—it's almost certain to rain on Derby day—dozens of Chicagoans have gone or are going today to Louisville. The Darrow Fultons left by motor Tuesday to be members of the same gay party that has assembled for several years in a house that the Stuyvesant Peabodys take each year for Derby week. The Peabodys went down by train and so did their son, Stuyesant Jr.—Pat couldn't get away from his job of news reporter even for the Derby—Gerald Cudahy, Miss Harriet McLaughlin and Miss Katherine Harvey of Kansas City, who has been visiting Miss McLaughlin.

The Farwell Winstons and Mr. and Mrs. Mason Phelps are leaving today to motor to Louisville where the Winstons will visit her sister, Mrs. Philip Noland, and Mr. Noland, and the Phelpses will be with Mrs. Henning Chambers. Arthur Meeker, Howard F. Gillette and Philip L. Reed are going on a special train with a group of about thirty men. William Whipple Miller and Stewart Boal are driving down today and it is to be hoped that they will have better luck than Mr. Miller and a friend had last year when they essayed to fly down and, due to engine trouble, listened to the race in the middle of a cornfield about forty miles out of Chicago.

Many Prominent Names in Derby Parties.

The Talcott Griswolds, Miss Durie Malcolm, Robert Spiel, Watson Newhall, Mrs. Francis Manierre, Mrs. Thomas Connors, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Hughes, Mrs. Charles M. Kittle, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Beuttas, the Taylor Strawns, the J. McWilliams Stones, the Frederick Woodruffs, Vincent Bendix, Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Morehead, the Lloyd Maxwells, and the Charles B. Shaffers are among other Chicagoans who have planned to be at Churchill Downs tomorrow. Mr. and Mrs. Shaffer will have with them in their box their daughter, Miss Barbara, and a group of her friends including the Richard Athertons, Frederick Friestedt and Edward Benninghoven, all of Chicago, and Miss Louise Boldt of New York. This party is spending the week-end at the Shaffer farm in Lexington.

History Does a Repeat Act in This Family

Twenty-eight years ago last Dec. 23 two sisters, Mrs. Sidney Smith Gorham and Mrs. Henry Whitwell Wales, both of whom then were residents of La Grange, were receiving congratulations simultaneously on the birth of baby sons. The young men, who were to be named Sidney S. Gorham Jr. and Robert Willett Wales, put in an appearance within a few hours of each other.

Yesterday history repeated itself in an interesting manner within this family. At 3 o'clock yesterday morning Mrs. Wales' son and daughter-in-law, now Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Wales of Winnetka, became the proud parents of a baby daughter. At 3:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Sidney S. Gorham Jr., whose home is also in Winnetka, were being congratulated on the birth of a tiny son.

There is another unusual parallel in the family in the fact that the senior Mr. Gorham and the late Henry Whitwell Wales were partners in law from 1906 until Mr. Wales' death less than two years ago. Now young Mr. Gorham and Robert Wales are law partners in this same firm.

Mr. and Mrs. Wales' daughter was born at the Evanston hospital and has been named Elizabeth Ann. She is their second child for they are the parents of a son named Gwynn Huntington. Before their marriage in 1931, Mrs. Wales was Solace Huntington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gwynne Huntington of Columbus, O.

Mr. and Mrs. Gorham's baby boy, who put in his appearance at the Presbyterian hospital, is their second child. He has not been named. Sidney S. Gorham III. was born Jan. 17, 1932. Before her marriage the junior Mrs. Gorham was Corinne McVoy, daughter of Mrs. Fortunato Jerace.

As well as being a senior partner in the firm of Miller, Gorham, Wales and Adams, the senior Mr. Gorham is well known as a former president of the Chicago Bar association and as the present chairman of the board of directors of the John R. Thompson Co. As father of the Illinois automobile license law, he has always carried license No. 1 on his personal automobile.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—The Women's International league gave an anniversary dinner tonight honoring Miss Jane Addams. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was the guest of honor and principal speaker. Other speakers were Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior; Miss Addams, Dr. Alice Hamilton, Sidney Hillman, and Gerard Swope.

Mrs. Roosevelt this afternoon gave a reception for the women who came to Washington to celebrate the anniversary of the league.

Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the secretary of state, was entertained at luncheon today by Señora de Bayle, wife of the chargé d'affaires of Nicaragua, at the legation.

Fiftieth Birthday Marked by Woman's Press Association

Two hundred members of the Illinois Woman's Press association celebrated the 50th anniversary of the founding of their society with a dinner and pageant at the Lake Shore Drive hotel last night. Miss Caroline Alden Huling, 2241 Geneva Terrace, a charter member, was guest of honor. The organization is said to be the oldest group of women writers in the world. Following the dinner, a pageant depicting the rôle of women through the ages was given under the direction of Mrs. Minna H. Schmidt of the University of Chicago department of costumology.

Hats of White Smartest for Street Outfits

Shops Showing Dazzling New Numbers.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Again white goes over the top of the smartest new street outfits. White hats of starched or unstarched pique, dazzling white accents for all dark sheers and slim one piece linens and cottons. White dull straw, wide of brim and simply trimmed with bow and band, or glistening white fabrics and straw trimmed with flowers and flower wreaths. This is one spring you can pile the flowers on your hats from the tiny buds to the huge outsize blossoms such as carnations, cornflowers, and violets, as well as large white daisies with golden yellow centers.

A soft white pique with a big basket weave is used for a hat made with half a brim, that is sort of a visor cut in front and has two colored carnations tucked at the base of the flat squarish sort of a crown. Another white has just a flattened out bow of the material, and still another has a fluted pie crust upstanding halo effect of the white piqué around a skull cap effect of either black or navy blue. Picture hats are returning just in time to shade your eyes from the too ardent rays of a summer sun. There's one knockout of stiffened white piqué with a wide drooping brim that has a shaped inky black velvet crown, two deep red roses and a bow of emerald green corded ribbon about an inch wide fastened directly at the center of the crown. It's the last gasp in romantic headgear, and if you don't fall for this alluring flatterer you'll miss a lot of fun.

Natural tinted leghorns are already unpacked; these, too, are wide of brim, artfully trimmed with but a bow and band of velvet ribbon or a single blossom, but what is headline news is the return of veils—and we mean veils; not the skimpy scrap of veiling of former years, but luscious, lovely long affairs of decoratively fragile lace.

Fashion photograph . . . dots with all kinds of dash, in white, against a navy blue background fashion this matching set of neck scarf and pouch handbag of taffeta silk. The hat is the newest trick in town, a copy of one worn by Marilyn Miller. It is of white cotton fabric slightly stiffened with stitching and has a sharply pointed brim with a point directly in front. It is one of the best summer off-the-face hats and has a bow and band of navy blue grosgrain ribbon around the shaped crown. Hat and matched accessories are available in a Chicago shop.

Eye Care Has Importance in Beauty Routine

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Somehow, I always feel a little disheartened when I approach the subject of eye care. I find the average woman simply will not do a thing about her eyes until one day she discovers she can't get the telephone numbers right. Then she sighs a bitter sigh and says: "It's eye glass time for me!" I'm thinking of a particular individual whose incessant rubbing of her eyes is not only an unhappy nervous gesture, but the pale and sickly eye that looks out upon one after the rubbing indicates the need of prompt attention. She scorns the suggestion of glasses. But there's that deepening, perpendicular line between her brows that is steadily growing deeper.

I asked a prominent eye glass manufacturer recently why one sees so many more people wearing glasses nowadays than formerly. I had particular reference to children. He answered that eye troubles were no more current, but formerly people never thought of looking to the eye as the seat of a number of physical disorders.

He, at the time, showed me illustrations of how glasses now are being manufactured to conform to beauty standards for women. How a certain type of glass was for a certain type of woman, how the bridge of the eye glass had been improved, and the shape of the rims. Also, how one could get the palest tortoise shall glasses that are comparatively unnoticeable.

Then, another feature about eyes, as they are generally treated, is that they're often not treated at all, even by women who spend a great deal of time and have the time to spend on facials and hair work. Sometimes the eyes aren't bathed at all, as they should be, and this, by the women who cleans with creams entirely! The eyes will stand a great deal of water splashing and be grateful for the muscle release. Hot water, followed by cold splashings, is most envigorating. Those little herb pads for tired eyes are great little topics if one is going out.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The operatic twins gave a few more sheaves to the laurels already won by the San Carlans. There was something of a change over the customary order in the way of newcoming singers and, in the first item, of a new conductor, who, in spite of independent and unrehersed ideas, put the Mascagni opus over with a lot of energy and dramatic as well as musical logic. They say that Conductor Peroni spent his unexpected recess by sitting in his dressing room and giving a bit of extra study to "Lohengrin," which will be sung tonight.

Miss Richter disclosed herself as an artist of merit. Admitting that she looked unhappier than most operatic heroines are supposed to do—at that Santuzza is entitled to considerable unhappiness—her singing and acting were sound and believable, and at the climactic points rose to a real thrill. And Mr. Rayner, appearing here for the first time since 1933, was an artist to be welcomed by the most exigent of opera companies, with the voice, manner, and ability of impersonation that makes the real operatic singer.

Time went on and there was other music to be heard. But it is desirable to note that Mr. Thomas sang the "Pagliacci" prolog in a way that could hardly have been bettered by his many illustrious predecessors in the part. It had vocal quality and dramatic urge and both of high quality.

Taking a trip to Orchestra hall, the glee club of the Association of Commerce, directed by Arthur Dunham, was found in its best estate, a seemly, sonorous, and well drilled organization, singing historically in the range from Palestrina to Dunham, emotionally in the range from Wagner's "Die Meistersinger" to a folk song. The club's prize winner in the contest for the best singer in the Chicago public schools was James Burdette, baritone, from the Senn High school. He was announced by George W. Rossetter, last year's president of the Chicago Grand Opera company, but, being a victim of the Chicago spring climate, was unable to sing. Wesley Summerfield, tenor and Carman Learn, baritone, were soloists among the club members.

Rosalyn Tureck, pianist and a former Chicago resident, was awarded first place in the contest of the National Federation of Music Clubs now in session in Philadelphia. This entitles her to a prize of $1,000. As she also won the Schubert award she will be assured of a professional appearance with the Philadelphia orchestra. A graduate of the Tuley High school, she has lived in New York for the last four years, but is expected to return to Chicago within the next three weeks.

SOYBEAN CROP INCREASES, YET PRICE GOES UP

Agronomist Expects More Acreage Gains.

One crop, now popular in Ohio, was produced last year in a quantity half again as large as in 1933, yet the price rose. This crop, unique in this respect among all other farm crops, is the soybean.

J. B. Park, agronomist for the Ohio Agricultural Extension Service, says this lively interest is continuing and that farmers intend to plant 10 per cent more acres to soybeans in 1935 than they grew in 1934.

But Prof. Park does not expect a sharp price decline in the face of this increased acreage. There are too many expanding outlets for the soybean as a grain for manufacture into soybean oil.

Good "Pinch Hitting" Crop.

And as a "pinch hitting" crop for hay when other crops fail, the soybean has no equal, he says, adding that on acid soils the soybean should find a regular place in the crop rotation.

The soybean oil mill, primary outlet for soybeans as a grain, produces two articles—oil meal and oil. The most important use as a meal is in mixed feed for cattle and other live stock. It competes with cottonseed and linseed meals in that market.

Soybean oil meal has uses for which other oil meals are not suited. Soybeans yield a vegetable casein from which an excellent glue is made especially suited for gluing wood. Soybean casein is entering the field of the semi-plastics that can be stamped and molded into countless articles competing with hard rubber, cellulose products, and other materials.

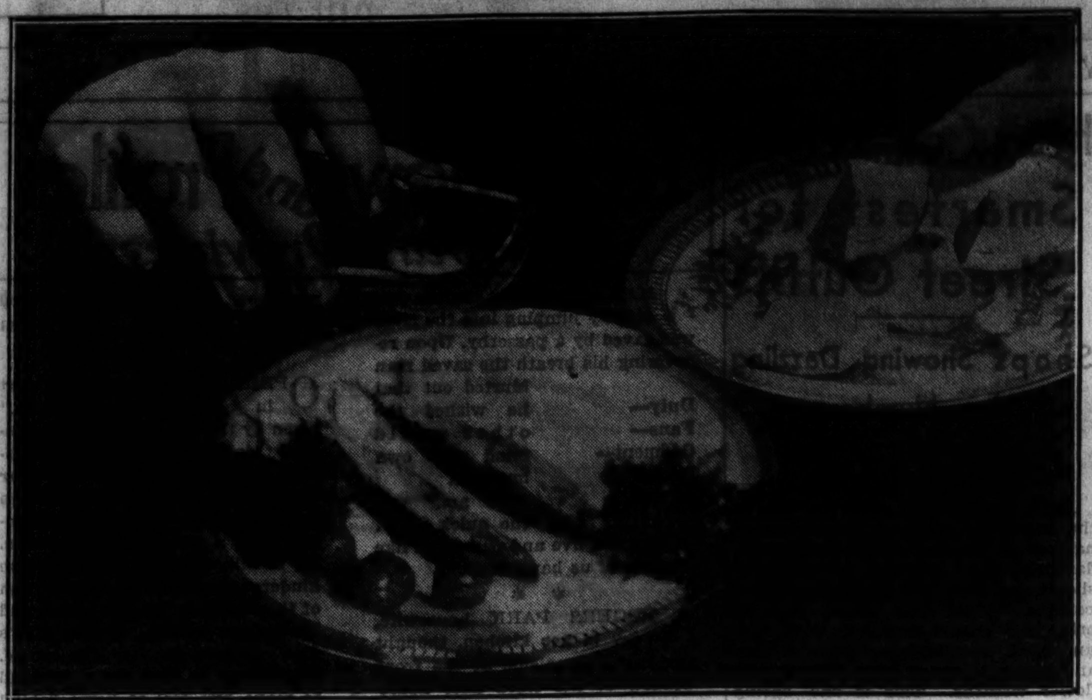
Flour Market Expands.

Soybean flour, made from oil meal and whole soybeans, is enjoying an expanding market. Its largest single use is in the manufacture of pork sausage; mixed with pork sausage it improves the consistency and nutritive value without impairing the flavor.

Just as diverse are the uses of soybean oil, Prof. Park says. Its chief use is in paints, in competition with linseed oil. White enamel containing a proper amount of soybean oil does not turn yellow.

Large quantities are used in the manufacture of linoleums, and a superior core binder for foundry use is made from soybean oil. Important amounts are used in edible products.

POPULAR LEMON GADGET



The serving of lemon slices with fish or iced tea too often results in juice soaked finger tips. The juice also squirts in every direction. That's why this little polished utensil is finding immense popularity. The lightweight gadget of stainless metal is passed with the lemon sections, eliminates picking up the fruit with the fingers, and squeezes out every drop of juice. The article is on sale in a Chicago store.

SPAGHETTI SOUFFLE RING.

Cook one-half package of spaghetti [broken in four inch lengths] in boiling salted water until tender. In the meantime prepare a white sauce with two tablespoons each of flour and butter, seasoning, and two cups of milk. Cool slightly and stir in three beaten egg yolks and the spaghetti. Then fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in a buttered ring mold in a pan of hot water in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] for half an hour or until firm.

HERE IS HEARTY MEAL PREPARED IN HALF AN HOUR

Here's a hearty meal which may be prepared in thirty minutes:

Mint-Grapefruit Cocktail
Fried Ham Steak with Rice and Gravy
Endive with French Dressing
Hot Gingerbread with Whipped Cream
Coffee

The cocktail is cold grapefruit juice poured from the can with an after dinner mint dissolved in each glass, or a sprig of fresh mint for garnish. The boiled rice may be ready in the refrigerator and reheated for serving with the friend ham steak and pan gravy. French dressing for the salad comes ready bottled to be poured over crisp endive.

The dessert is made in but a few minutes. Use a package of prepared gingerbread mix, add water, and bake in a moderate oven while the first courses of the meal are being eaten. Serve with whipped cream and hot coffee.

EXPERIENCE COUNTS AND KANKAKEE'S OLD FIREMEN SAVE CAT

Kankakee, Ill., May 2.—[Special.]—A fire alarm was sounded today and both Kankakee's fire departments—the old one that has had the jobs for two years and won't quit and the new one that was appointed by the incoming city administration but can't get possession of the fire fighting equipment—rushed out.

There was no fire, but a cat was stranded in the top of a high tree. In this emergency the oldtimers showed the value of experience and rescued the cat before the newcomers could prove their abilities in this line.

The old fire department members maintain that they are under civil service and that the new city administration headed by Mayor Roy Taylor, which took office on Monday, has no night to fire them. The newcomers are sleeping in the firehouse and Kankakee has, in a manner of speaking, 30 firemen instead of the normal 15.

LAUGHING GAS DEVICE WHIPS CREAM TO A 'T'

Pint Fluffs Into More than Two Quarts.

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—The way science has learned to whip cream is downright cruel, it developed before the American Chemical society convention. The knockerout of this tough opponent of the housewife's wire beater and elbow grease is our old friend from the dental parlor—none other than "Kid Laughing Gas." Two University of Illinois chemists, G. Frederick Smith and C. A. Gets are managing the new champion of the kitchen.

A Fluffy Inflation.

Their method, as related to the assembled chemists at Hotel Pennsylvania, results in a 450 per cent inflation, a pint of cream being whipped into more than two quarts of pie topping and cream puffing.

When the new technique is marketed, a container resembling a seltzer siphon will be delivered to the housewife for refrigerated storing. In use, the consumer pushes a siphon button and releases cream in any desired amount.

Under the old elbow grease scheme everything had to be just right for the kitchen mechanic to whip cream to a 100 per cent expansion—the cream had to have the right fat content, sufficient age and the proper temperature.

No More Air Eating.

In the new method, instead of whipping ozone into the cream, an odorless, nontoxic, tasteless gas will be injected into the cream container under higher pressure. Laughing gas—nitrous oxide—is used at present. Gets and Smith said.

Another kitchen triumph chalked up for chemistry was described as leveluse sugar in a form which will not absorb moisture and form lumps. It is described as derived from the Jerusalem artichoke.

Romance comes to the girl who guards against COSMETIC SKIN

SOFT, SMOOTH SKIN wins romance—tender moments no woman ever forgets! So what a shame it is when good looks are spoiled by ugly Cosmetic Skin. It's so unnecessary to risk this modern complexion trouble—enlarged pores, tiny blemishes, blackheads, perhaps.

It is when stale rouge and powder are left choking the pores that these signs of Cosmetic Skin appear. That's why every day more and more women are adopting Hollywood's beauty care to guard against this danger.

Cosmetics Harmless if removed this way

Lux Toilet Soap is made to remove cosmetics thoroughly. Its ACTIVE lather guards against dangerous pore clogging because it cleans so deeply—gently carries away every vestige of dust, dirt, embedded powder and rouge.

You can use cosmetics all you wish if you remove them this safe, gentle way.

Remember, this is the fine, white soap 9 out of 10 screen stars have used for years. It will protect your skin—give it that smooth, cared-for look that's so appealing.

PREVIEW THESE CHOICE APARTMENTS

It will save you time and worry. Check the offers of apartments in today's Tribune.

For your convenience, apartments advertised in the Tribune are grouped by sections of the city and by number of rooms. In a few minutes you can read the descriptions of attractive apartments in the neighborhoods you prefer, compare their advantages and clip the most desirable offers for leisurely, personal inspection later.

PRICES OF FOOD CONTINUE THEIR DOWNWARD STEP

However, Declines Are as Yet Moderate.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

For the third consecutive week Chicago housewives will find food prices today and tomorrow continuing on a slightly downward trend. While no great price changes have been noted during the week, TRIBUNE reporters, in making their weekly survey in Chicago and suburbs, found lower price tags on more than a dozen of the staple foods than prevailed a week ago.

Butter, which reached its highest price so far this year about one week before Easter, is being offered this week-end at about two cents a pound less than last week's prices and about six cents a pound under the peak price of three weeks ago.

New Cabbage Easier.

Supplies of new cabbage are being increased daily on the wholesale markets, with prices in retail stores gradually easing up. Dealers expect this downward price tendency to continue for some time, since the results of early season freezes in some of the southern states are disappearing and later plantings of cabbage in those areas are coming into full harvest.

Strawberries continue low with practically no change from last week. Grocers report that some housewives are taking advantage of the prevailing low prices and are making their year's supply of strawberry preserves and jams, while others are waiting with the hope that the price may go still lower as the harvest moves northward.

Tennessee and Mississippi strawberries are now on the Chicago market, but the bulk of the supply is still coming from Louisiana.

Asparagus Prices Low.

Prices on fresh asparagus continue low in keeping with liberal supplies on the wholesale markets. Recent cold weather in Illinois has checked shipments from gardens in this state and has kept asparagus from going still lower, dealers say.

Fresh tomatoes, green beans, and rhubarb are among the green vegetables that are being offered at rates lower than those asked last week. Supplies of fresh tomatoes are increasing from week to week on the wholesale markets, most of them coming from Florida and Mexico.

Shipments of rhubarb from gardens near Chicago have been retarded by the cold weather of the last few days, but western supplies are increasing, especially from California and Washington. Green beans are being offered in increasingly liberal quantities from southern gardens.

Spinach Takes a Drop.

Spinach, considered unusually high for the last several weeks, has taken quite a drop in price since fresh mustard and other spring greens have recently appeared on the markets in liberal quantities.

Potatoes are still considered high, though new ones will be on sale in most stores today and tomorraw at the lowest prices asked so far this season. Most of the offerings at the special price are only fair in quality.

Most butchers consider lamb as the best fresh meat bargain for this week's shoppers. Some stores are featuring lamb roasts. Frying chickens are considered reasonable in price and are to be found at special sales in some butcher shops. Prices on several kinds of fresh fish are lower than last week.

TRY VEAL FOR AN ECONOMICAL WEEK-END BUY

The committee on marketing information of the Meat Council of Chicago yesterday issued the following report for the guidance of housewives purchasing meat in Chicago retail meat stores:

"Veal is recommended as the most economical meat buy in Chicago stores over the coming week-end. All cuts are selling at attractive price levels, with such cuts as shoulder and breast of veal representing the most outstanding buys."

PEACH CUSTARD.

1 cup milk
1 tablespoon sugar
1 egg yolk
¼ teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
6 halves peaches
1 egg white and 1 tablespoon sugar

Heat the milk; add the sugar and a pinch of salt. Pour the mixture slowly over the beaten egg yolk and cook in a double boiler. Stir the mixture constantly until it coats the spoon. The water in the lower part of the double boiler should not boil, as overheating will cause the custard to curdle. If by chance the custard starts to curdle, remove the top of the double boiler from the water, place it in a pan of cold water, and beat the mixture with an egg beater. Set the custard in the refrigerator, and when it is cold pour it over the peaches. Beat the egg white until it is stiff, add the second tablespoon of sugar and place on top of the custard.

CRABMEAT SALAD.

1 cup crabmeat
1 cup julienned celery
2 hard cooked eggs
1½ tablespoons sweet pickle
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons pimiento
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup mayonnaise

Remove the flat bony pieces from the crabmeat and flake with a fork. Add celery, diced eggs, chopped pepper, pickle, pimientos, salt, paprika, lemon juice, and mayonnaise. Toss lightly. Chill until serving time.

LEMON CHIFFON PIE.

3 eggs, separated
2-3 cup sugar
4 tablespoons flour
1 1-3 cups milk
Juice of 2 lemons
Baked pastry shell

Beat the egg yolks in the top of a double boiler, then add the sugar, flour, and milk. Cook with frequent stirrings until the mixture begins to thicken. Then add the lemon juice and continue cooking, with constant stirring, until thick and smooth. Remove from the burner and fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour the filling at once into a baked pastry shell and brown in a quick oven.

FESTIVE FRUIT PUNCH.
[30 to 35 servings.]

½ cup lemon juice
1 cup orange juice
1 bottle creme de menthe cherries
¾ cup strained honey
1 inch piece stick cinnamon
2 whole cloves
1 bunch fresh mint [at least 12 sprigs]
1 quart ice cold fresh cider or grape juice
2 quarts cracked ice
2 quarts ginger ale
1 quart orange ice

Strain the lemon and orange juice into a container that can be closely covered. Add the creme de menthe, cherries with the cordial, the honey, spices, and the cleaned fresh mint that has been bruised. Let stand on ice several hours. When ready to serve remove the spices and mint and add the cider, ice, and ginger ale. Put the orange ice into a punch bowl and add the liquid.

DANDELION NOW CULTIVATED FOOD INSTEAD OF WEED

2,321 Carloads of Greens Shipped Last Year.

When you were a child, dandelions were weeds. Today they are cultivated for market on a big scale and are recognized as a full fledged article of interstate commerce, according to Aneta Beadle of Purdue university.

The American people are eating greens and salad vegetables of all kinds as they never did before. They have acquired a taste for greens and salads and an appreciation of their food value. Not counting spinach, cabbage, lettuce, or celery there were 2,321 carloads of different kinds of greens shipped to market last year.

The gardeners are keeping up with the times and improving the stock of familiar garden greens and producing new varieties of kale, mustard, dandelions, and turnip greens. There is a new turnip, the "seven top turnip," which goes chiefly to tops and has only small roots. Swiss chard is a beet which has been developed for its tops instead of its roots and makes excellent greens all through the summer when others are scarce.

To cook greens properly, use very little water and do not cook them long. Usually no water is needed except that which clings to the leaves after washing. Cook them only until they are wilted, stirring occasionally, and do not put a lid on the kettle. They will lose vitamin value if cooked too long and lose their green color if cooked under a cover.

HERE'S SECOND MENU EXPERTS OF CATERERS' CLUB MADE FOR YOU

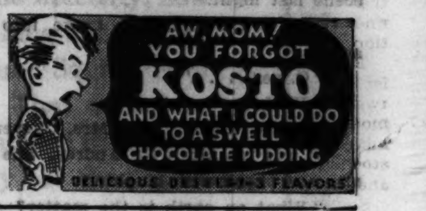
This menu is the second of a series prepared by the Catering Executives Club of America, a club composed of the leading maitres d'hotel and catering managers of America. Their purpose in planning these menus is to aid those dining out as well as those planning meals for the home.

Canape Catering Executive Club
[Filet anchovy, smoked sturgeon, chutney]
Cream of Fresh Mushroom Soup
Celery — Salted Walnuts — Olives
Filet of Sea Bass Normande
Squab in Casserole Veronique — Potatoes Anna
Hearts of Artichoke Jardiniere
Mixed Green Salad — French Dressing with Chopped Anchovy [Served in bowl]
Mousse Praline
Demi Tasse

With the canape the club recommends serving Bacardi cocktail, iced, or sherry. With the bass they suggest Chablis, Moselle, Bordeaux, or a light white wine. They suggest sparkling Burgundy or Champagne to be served with the squab and Cointreau or a liqueur with the demi tasse.

Alimony Husbands Get 2 Breaks in New Laws

Albany, N. Y., May 2.—(AP)—New York state's alimony paying husbands had cause to rejoice tonight. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's signature placed on the statute books today two long sought laws which provide: (1) Suspension of alimony payments while a husband is in jail. (2) A husband imprisoned for contempt for failure to pay alimony or fees may proceed with the prosecution or defense of his case.



ADVISES BEING PREPARED FOR CANNING TIME

Nature Leaves Tardy with Empty Jars.

Mother Nature has a way of getting things done just about when she pleases and a thrifty housewife will don her canning armor early so that she won't wake up some fine morning to discover that the English peas or asparagus are ripe for canning, and nothing ready to do the job, says Mrs. Ruby Mendenhall Smith, extension economist in food preservation, university of Arkansas.

Most of the equipment needed for the canning season is found in any fairly well furnished kitchen, but sometimes it needs to be made ready for use. If the equipment has not been assembled, cleaned, and made ready for use well in advance of the season, the first few jars canned are apt to be of inferior quality because the produce will have to be held too long after gathering, she points out.

New Scientific Methods.

It is poor economy to attempt a canning program without the proper equipment, the result of the new scientific methods which have eliminated a great deal of the uncertainity in preserving, food says Mrs. Smith. If the fundamental principles of canning are known and a few rules rigidly observed, the only special item needed is a steam pressure cooker.

The steam pressure cooker is regarded as essential because it saves time, preserves food better, permits the canning of more varieties, and can be used as a cooker as well as a canner. Mrs. Smith recommends it for preserving all non-acid vegetables and meats.

Preparing Glass Containers.

The canner should be thoroughly cleaned, paying special attention to the openings into the safety valve and pet cock, and it should be tested to see that the safety valve is working properly. If tin cans are to be used, the sealer should be oiled, clamped firmly to the edge of the table, and properly adjusted to the size can to be used. Tin cans coming in for a second or third season's use must be reflanged and thoroughly cleaned and dried.

Glass jars and lids should be carefully examined for chips or cracks. Rubber rings should never be used a second time, and new ones should be bought in readiness for the season. It is safest to buy new metal tops each year also, says Mrs. Smith. Glass jars and lids should be washed with warm, soapy water and rinsed well, so that sterlizing will be all that is necessary to have them ready.

Several large pans or stew kettles, a stainless steel paring knife, a wooden spoon or paddle, a measuring cup, and a wide mouth funnel, will lighten the canning job, Mrs. Smith suggests.

The hot water bath method is recommended for canning fruits and tomatoes, and an oven with a regulator, a steamer or an improvised hot water canner may be used in processing these particular foods. A lard can, water bucket, or wash boiler with a close fitting lid and fitted with a false bottom to prevent the containers from resting directly on the bottom of the cooker can be substituted for a canner.

AVOID BURNED ARMS BY USE OF THE NEW ASBESTOS OVEN PADS

Here's a new application of that old saw, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." The prevention is an asbestos top for the oven or your enameled range. The cure—no more burned arms from hot ovens and no discoloring and scratching of the shiny oven top from placing hot cooking pans upon it.

These inexpensive pans are made of two layers of asbestos covered with fabricoid in blue, red, ivory, white, peach, light green, and a darker green. They may be cleaned with a damp cloth.

The pads, which are being shown in two Chicago stores, come in two sizes and are also recommended for preserving the top of the refrigerator.

THE SLEEPING CHILD

By Alice Grant Rosman.

SYNOPSIS.

Miss Fell scents romance when she sees Miles Buchanan meet Eleanor Chevening, returning from London, at the Fendon railway station. Miles has been forced through adversity to shut up most of the Priory, his inherited home. The girls of the Chevening family of Fendon Edge are pursuing careers, Pauline having had a play produced and now working on a period piece. Eleanor is studying medicine. Jenny, the youngest, runs a smart hat shop and gets engaged and disengaged now and then. Audrey, an orphaned second cousin, with a talent for design, has for 15 years been as a daughter to Anne and George Chevening, the girls' parents. Pauline uses Audrey's skill for her theater. The Chevenings have a small flat in London for the use of any of the family going to and fro. It is Audrey, however, and not Eleanor, who claims Miles' romantic interest. Miles and Geoffrey Burton are partners in a stock breeding venture. Albert King, wealthy newcomer to Fendon, wants to buy the ruins of an ancient monastery on the Priory grounds. Audrey tells her aunt that she is going to marry Miles. She has invited him to breakfast to make the announcement to the family. There has always been a strange reticence between Audrey and Anne Chevening, despite a great fondness for each other. Anne had been in love with Audrey's father, Hector Chevening. Her parents had broken up the romance and persuaded her to marry his cousin. Later Hector, a victim of the war and penniless, had brought his wife and child to visit the Chevenings, at George's invitation. Anne still loved Hector and knew he still loved her. Shortly after they left, Hector and his wife were found shot in London. Neighbors testified that a quarrel preceded the tragedy, which was adjudged a murder and suicide. Audrey was apparently asleep in the next room. No one ever spoke to her of the tragedy, which Anne believed she had caused. She loved Audrey as her own child, but her sense of guilt was a barrier between them.

INSTALMENT XI.

HER ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED.

Audrey stole a look at her aunt who was playing up so beautifully, and found her busy with the cups and saucers just as usual. Not by the faintest smile had she betrayed the situation, yet not five minutes before Audrey, coming into the dining room, had received fresh reassurance in a glance the happiness of which there had been no mistaking. Like two conspirators they had waited for the others to come in.

"O well," Paula was saying good naturedly, "don't blame me if I talk shop across the breakfast table, will you, because I have so little time? Help yourself as you pass the sideboard, Miles, there's an angel. . . . And now, you two for goodness' sake tell me exactly what your reactions were to that scene last night."

The two in question broke into simultaneous but not very coherent speech.

"O, yes. . . ."

"Well, er. . . ."

"Coffee, Miles?" said Mrs. Chevening hospitably.

It was too much for Audrey. She put her head down against her lover's arm and shook with laughter.

"What on earth is the matter? O, it's you, Miles," exclaimed Eleanor, coming in behind them at this moment. "But why is Audrey having hysterics down your neck?"

Audrey lifted a flushed face and Miles put his arm around her boldly.

"Look here, I'm frightfully sorry, Paula, but you've got it all wrong—about the reason I came over to breakfast, I mean," he said. "I came because Audrey and I had some news to tell you. Well, the fact is—if you haven't already guessed it—we are going to be married."

"Audrey and I are going to be married."

There was a gasp round the table and George Chevening threw back his head and laughed.

"God bless my soul! A nice bombshell to throw at a peaceable breakfast table, Miles, I must say!"

"I think we should be flattered," said Mrs. Chevening, "since they couldn't have known it themselves very much before midnight."

"Well, you see, Paula's train goes at 10:40," explained Audrey hastily.

"O, darling!" said Paula. "Of course I hate the pair of you because I can see how this is going to complicate my work."

She was affectionate but dismayed, delighted they should be married if they felt that way about it, but wishing they had at least waited until the play was done. For Audrey at any time was so difficult to hold down to a job. She had no concentration. "Just when I have to go back to the show and leave her," thought Paula. "I could murder Miles, temporarily at any rate."

Protestations broke out, the play last night and the production to come engulfed the conversation—what Paula thought, what Audrey had noticed, heavy comedy interruption by the head of the house, who was convinced she could have been in no condition of mind to notice anything; support from Miles, and general laughter.

Eleanor, meanwhile, looked round at the scene with a faintly derisive smile. It was high time, she thought, that somebody should be married in that family. Four single women! It was hardly decent, and if one were not only very occasionally at home, it would be insupportable. It was a pity it was not Pauline rather than Audrey, all the same. Paula was so damn sentimental, pouring the money she had made last year into that woman Flolett's probably frowsy show and letting herself be used.

Eleanor, from her own tight locked self-sufficiency, thought it high time her sister Pauline was married, and in this atmosphere of general rejoicing saw sentimentality in every face this morning. There they all sat, beaming—really you could use no other word for it—exhibiting all the trite emotions over a very ordinary occasion. The herd instinct again. You would expect intelligent human beings to have got beyond that. It was conventional—no, something even older, a kind of subconscious excitement because the race would go on. Eleanor asked herself in lofty amusement, unconscious that the question marked her as rather more conventional than them all.

She heard her father saying heartily:

"Well, Miles, I'm delighted that it should be you, if we must lose the child so soon, and though I say it as shouldn't, you're a lucky fellow."

Really! Her father was outdoing himself this morning. Why were parents such embarrassing people? Though Audrey had only herself to blame for blurting the news out like an hysterical school girl. She had no depth and evidently no balance, hereditary that, of course, for there must have been something pretty queer. . . . Curious what Miles could see in her, her type perhaps appealed to the protective male. Miles was a plodder, presentable enough, but not exciting. Probably read nothing more modern than Galsworthy, thought Eleanor, amused, and imagined himself comparatively intellectual if he could quote a familiar line or two from Shakespeare. It was to be hoped that he and Audrey were not going to be too fatuous or life would not be worth living at Fendon Edge. It would be better to go back to town where one could at least have a little stimulating society in the evenings.

Eleanor smiled a secret smile. When she chose to marry, as she fully intended to do, in her own time, she would keep the family out of it. Meanwhile, an intelligent woman had a right to her experiences and kept her own counsel about them.

She finished her breakfast and decided to leave them to their rejoicings, looking at herself in the mirror as she rose to her feet and unconsciously approving the view. The likeness to Pauline was only superficial, in spite of Miss Fell and her strong family resemblance. Eleanor's rather lean face—she preferred this phrase to thin—was not reproduced in any of the other Chevenings, and she was glad of it. One liked to have individuality, not to be cast in a mould. "Interesting face, that girl—difficult to know, though, isn't she?" some one had once said in her hearing.

"Well, I must be off to my work. Bless you, my children, and all that," she exclaimed, with a smile at Audrey and a mocking look for Miles.

"It would be scientifically interesting to know just how much one could rouse that young man," she thought. She had not the least desire to upset the engagement or to hurt young Audrey. It was merely that Miles Buchanan, being desired, had become passibly desirable in a general way.

They had finished breakfast and dispersed. George Chevening had carried Miles off for a walk in the garden; Paula had seized Audrey for a final discussion about the play. Anne was left alone and as she went into the morning room to her accounts, she said to herself:

"But they mustn't expect to monopolize the child like this. I must see to it."

The thought of this secret charge upon her was suddenly sweet, as though it gave a purpose to her days which had been purposeless so long, for no one else in that household would dream of doing just this for Audrey.

Hector's daughter was in love and happy. There had been a glow about her this morning which the eyes that had watched her, however, apparently unseeing, could not mistake, and Anne's own life was momentarily renewed.

CHOWDER HOLDS ITS POPULARITY IN SPRINGTIME

Tasty Dish Not to Be Confined to Winter.

"Cooking After Office Hours," a booklet of tips and recipes for business girls who cook, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

Some people insist that chowder should be associated with chilly weather. Now, aside from the fact that chowder and chilly have alliteration in common, we can see just as much reason for serving chowder at spring lunches and dinners as at any other time of year.

With a fish chowder like this one, quickly and simply made, and ever so good to eat, we advance our defense of the year round chowder plan. When the recipe just says "fish," use cod, haddock, or almost any large fresh fish you can nab for the purpose.

- 1½ pounds fresh fish
- 2 cups diced raw potatoes
- 1 quart water
- 1 cup diced carrots
- ¼ pound salt pork, diced
- 1 chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 pint milk
- Salt, pepper
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- Chopped parsley

Cut the fish into small pieces, removing the bones and skin. Cook, along with the diced potatoes and carrots, in the water for 15 minutes. Pan fry the salt pork until crisp, remove from the fat, and brown the onion. Add the flour to the fat and onion, blend well, and stir in the milk. When smoothly mixed, add to the fish and vegetables, season with salt, pepper, and lemon juice, and simmer for 10 minutes longer. Serve hot over crackers or toast, and sprinkle with minced parsley.

Clam chowder fits in with our line of argument nicely, as well, and one made this way is a grand foil for spring fruits and vegetables.

Clam Chowder.

- ¼ pound salt pork, diced
- 2 medium onions, sliced
- 3 medium potatoes, sliced
- ¾ cup diced celery
- Salt, pepper
- 2 cans minced clams, or 1 pint fresh clams, chopped
- 1 can evaporated milk plus water to make 1 pint

Crisp the salt pork, add the vegetables, and cook gently until tender in water to cover. Add the clams and bring to the boiling point. Before serving, add the evaporated milk and heat, but do not boil. Serve piping hot on crisp soda crakers.

Now, although all chowders originally were made with fish, the term has been modified to include certain of the thick vegetable soups. These make their mark at meal time, no matter what the season. Corn chowder is one of these and, thick, steaming, vegetable chowder another. Or you can allow yourself to be diverted by one of the chowder near relatives, the flavorful chicken gumbo.

CHICKEN GUMBO.

Begin with the bony pieces of chicken, such as the back, neck, and pieces not conveniently used for some other dish. Cover with 3 cups of boiling water, and simmer for 30 minutes. To this add a browned sliced onion, 2 cups of canned okra, and 2 cups of canned tomatoes. Continue simmering until the chicken is tender. Remove the bony structure, returning all of the clinging meat to the gumbo. Season, add a cup of cooked rice and a cup of cream, and serve hot.

TIME IS NEAR FOR THE SPRING JELLY MAKING

Market Sags Soon at Canning Level.

Been watching the price tags on strawberries and rhubarb? It will be only a short time now until thrifty housewives will find them priced right for a siege of jelly and preserve making.

In Mary Meade's booklet, "Jellies and Preserves from Early Gardens," are thirty recipes for table delicacies to be made of strawberries, rhubarb, cherries, gooseberries, currants, raspberries, and pineapple. Besides the more usual jellies and preserves there are such tempters as spiced cherries, rhubarb and pineapple marmalade, cherry-apple-pineapple preserves, gooseberry conserve, rhubarb and orange marmalade, strawberry mint jelly, and rhubarb and prune marmalade.

To order "Jellies and Preserves from Early Gardens," send 5 cents, stamps or coin, to Mary Meade, CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Or obtain a copy at one of THE TRIBUNE Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents.

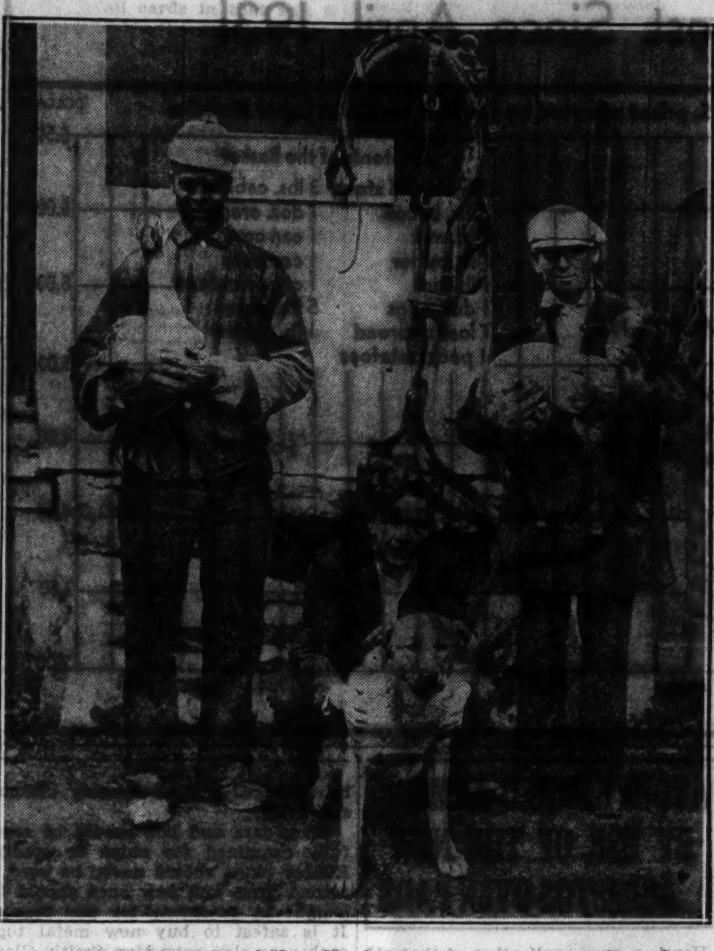
NEW YORKERS ON FARM



From the sidewalks of New York 800 men have returned to the soil at Camp Greycourt, the city's rehabilitation farm in Orange county, which was established a year ago by the department of public welfare. MRS. ROOSEVELT AND ICKES PRAISE JANE ADDAMS

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—Tribute to the "vision and courage" of Miss Jane Addams, founder of Hull house, Noble prize winner, and "Crusader for public welfare and world peace," was paid tonight by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, secretary Ickes, and others at an "anniversary dinner" held in the social worker's honor and attended by more than 1,200 men and women including diplomats, high officials, and others from all parts of the country.

With apologies for the limitations of his vocabulary, Mr. Ickes hailed Miss Addams as "a belted knight in the lists for humanity" and as a "field marshal in the war that is being waged for peace."

"That victory will perch upon your pennant during your lifetime, it would be hypocritical for me to predict, in view of the state of mind of the world at this moment," Mr. Ickes said, "but that the seeds that you have planted will, in course of time, yield the harvest that, so valiantly and unselfishly you have worked for, no one for a moment can doubt who has faith in what the human spirit is capable of, given the time and opportunity to cultivate its reasoning powers and develop its sound instincts."

More People on Farms than in Former U.S. History

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—The farm population of the United States increased 270,000 during 1934 to 32,779,000 on Jan. 1, 1935, the largest in the nation's history, the bureau of agricultural economics found in a survey made public today. The increase, attributed to a surplus of farm births over deaths, came in the face of a greater migration from farms to cities than the other way.

Seeks Annulment Because Hubby Sculps Nude Models

Bakersfield, Cal., May 2.—(AP)—Charging that Clarence N. Dewitt, New York sculptor, persists in using nude models in his work, despite a promise he would cease to do so, Mrs. Hazel I. Dewitt has sued here for annulment of their marriage.

FOOD EXPERT WARNS AGAINST SKIMPING ON CHILDREN'S BUDGET

Ames, Ia., May 2.—[Special.]—Health insurance that can be bought by the pound at the grocery store is one of the cheapest and best for the future development of the child, said Dr. P. Mabel Nelson, head of the foods and nutrition department at Iowa State college.

Food which supplies all the needed elements may mean the difference between good or poor health in later years. It is particularly important, she believes, that children, even when it is necessary to skimp on other things, be supplied with adequate amounts of proper food.

Investing the money necessary to supply one quart of milk daily, a whole grain cereal, a serving of meat or an egg, at least one green leafy vegetable, and one or two other vegetables, and one citrus fruit or tomato juice daily in the child's menu is investing money in health insurance for him, Dr. Nelson said.

"To cut down on the grocery bill without cutting down on the food supply, buy less expensive cuts of meat and organ meats," Dr. Nelson advises. "The vegetables selected may be the less expensive varieties, such as greens—dandelion greens, for instance, which are to be had for the digging—cabbage, beets, and carrots. Cereals, such as home ground wheat, cornmeal, and oatmeal, may be used in various attractive ways and are inexpensive.

Tribune Recipes

ASPARAGUS WITH YELLOW SAUCE.

- Asparagus
- 1 cup milk
- 1 egg yolk
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt

Wash the asparagus and cook until tender. Melt butter, add flour, and stir until well blended. Add the milk slowly, stirring constantly. When smooth and thick, add the egg yolks and salt and cook for one minute. Serve hot over the cooked asparagus.

The Greeks had a word for "Coffee-Floaters"

MRS. TOMPKINS looked up from the magazine she was reading—"These Nomads must have led a discouraging life—never settled—and constantly wandering around."

Mr. Tompkins laid down his paper. "Well," he said, "so the Greeks had a word for it, too!"

"Why, what do you mean?" queried Mrs. Tompkins.

"Coffee-Nomads in Greek—Coffee-Floaters in American," retorted Mr. Tompkins, "and that's what we are. Continually floating around from one brand to another trying to find a coffee that tastes right. I think it's high time we settled down to Hills Bros. Coffee. It has flavor and strength that never varies. And I know that you can get more fine cups of coffee from a pound of Hills Bros. Coffee than you can from any other brand."

Girls Advised to Keep Purse Strings Secure

Men May Take Advantage of Financial Aid.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I have been going around with a young man for over two years, during which time he has been out of a job a good deal. When he has been out of work, I, of course, had to give him money or we couldn't go anywhere. At first he would say: "When I get a job again, I'll pay you back, honey!" Then he arrived at the stage when he wouldn't say anything about paying back, but just took it as if he had a right to it.

"The other evening he suggested that we get married right away. I don't want to marry until he has a better job. I told him so. Then he said: "Well, we're engaged now. Whatever I would have had would be yours for the asking. Would you let me take a couple of hundred dollars [from my savings] so I could invest it in something in which I could get started in?" I said I would think it over and let him know. What do you think?" G. M.

We think if that young man gets his hands on your several hundred in savings, it will be his goodby gesture to you. You won't see your money or the man again. Anyway, that's the way we'd suggest you face what you would be in for. Perhaps it would be worth the two hundred to see the last of him, and to set you right on this business of being an easy mark. Don't be it, G. M. There's nothing in it for you. Nor should you expect anything.

Human nature is just built that way. It takes what it can get and grabs for more. If you start in waving a generous purse in sight of a young man, well, whose fault is it that he dips in a hand? Yours, sister, more than his! That first failure to return the loan should have been your warning.

This money question comes up here frequently. Should the girl pay when the man can't? Every time it comes up, there are those who rise to protest at our stand advising the girl not to be open-handed. But far more often there are hurrahs for the stand and confessions from girls who found that being the financial lean-to is no rôle for a woman who is building up a big crush on the leaner. She it is who gets crushed, sidewiped, as it were, for a girl who makes demands.

Better entertain the out-of-a-job suitor in your home, feed him if you want to, but don't let him attach your pocketbook as if it were his own. He's the one who turns around and resents the implication that he is a sponger, and tries to restore his self-respect by being the Big Guy with some other girl.

Home a Rich Playground for Young Child

He Finds Adventures Even in Small Apartment.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

It's really so easy to keep young children occupied and amused at home, even if you live in a city in small quarters. It's only later on when they need more elbow room and their world is not bounded by home, and when small new experiences are outgrown, that a mother has to do some planning and use her inventiveness to keep her children happy and busy.

What made me think of this was a homely sight that I saw yesterday afternoon. I was on a bus which was wending its way through a pretty thickly populated section of the city. Some householder had put out her trash and garbage in one of those corrugated board boxes—you know the kind and size that the grocer uses in which to send home an average grocery order.

Just as the bus stopped for trafic a small boy, of possibly 4, came down the steps of an apartment house and looked aimlessly around. No children, no toys. And then he spied the box of trash. In a flash he had picked it up, turned it upside down, dumped papers, orange skins, and so forth on the sidewalk—and cozily stepped in and "scrunched" down.

Have you ever noticed how little children love boxes that are big enough for them to get in and out of? They will play contentedly for a long time doing just that. But also they think of so many other things to do with them—a hole with a cord through it makes one into a trailer with a doll inside, or an animal, or blocks, or vegetables—they can play store or keep house or build with them—there are a dozen things they can use them for.

If you haven't already discovered the possibilities in boxes large and small for your little boy or girl, just keep a few corrugated and wooden ones in the kitchen or the back hall where you can produce them at the needed moment or on rainy days.

An average home is simply filled with things [not toys] that can provide hours of fun and satisfaction for the young child, provided he's given the freedom of the house. This may involve a little extra clearing up at times—but it does not mean wrecking the place, as you will see when you try out this general idea of letting a child really enjoy his home. And after all, it's his home.

We have several leaflets on understanding the young child, such as the one entitled "Don't Touch — How Not to Say It." A stamped, self addressed envelope will bring it to you.

THE SIGN-OFF MISUSED.

The aggressives managed to struggle along until they got 400 points above the line. They still have their game. The Conservatives have no game, but they have amassed 900 points in one set on the Aggressives. They also won the first rubber by 1,200 points. West also passed, and Mr. Conservative [North] never even let the erroneous thought of bidding a no-trump flit across his mind. He bid one club. Mr. Aggressive [East] dallied for a brief moment with the thought of bidding a heart, but finally dismissed it. He had no intention of being trapped between two strong hands, even though Mrs. Conservative had passed originally.

That put the matter squarely up to South. South had the choice of bidding one no-trump or bidding one diamond. At least she thought there was a choice. Actually, there should be no hesitation in her mind about giving the one-over-one in response in diamonds. Her final decision, based on the fact that she wanted North to know the weakness of her holdings right away, was entirely wrong. She bid one no-trump.

If she had stopped to think a little she would have realized that she was preventing North from showing a major suit at the one level. For example, suppose North had held the following hand:

Sp.—K Q J x	Di.—Q x
Ht.—J 10 x	Cl.—A Q x x

The bidding would presumably go one club, one no-trump, and now North has to bid two spades. South must respond with three diamonds, which is passed all around, and goes down one trick. If South had made the correct response, however, the bidding would have gone one club, one diamond, one spade, one no-trump—pass.

After South's bad response of one no-trump, however, North, warned by some queer sixth sense, passed. He couldn't explain afterward why he hadn't at least given an invitation bid of two no-trumps. It was just a "hunch" pass, and it happened to work. If South responds correctly, the hand is played at two or three diamonds, or, if North is addicted to gambling, at three no-trumps.

Mrs. Aggressive opened with the king of spades. In the play of the hand Mr. Aggressive started signaling for a heart lead the first time he discarded on the diamond suit. West got in with the queen of diamonds and played her thirteenth spade. [South had held up the ace of spades until the third round.] Mrs. Conservative had a hard discard to make on this play. Not daring to unguard her queen of hearts, she finally threw one of her good diamonds. Then when West obediently led a heart, and East took his ace and king of hearts, South claimed the last four tricks, making one no-trump.

"This is an odd hand," said North musingly. "If I play the hand, I think I can make three no-trumps."

"No," disagreed East. "I open a small heart, and we take four hearts and the queen of diamonds."

If East should lay down the ace and king of hearts and continue with a small one, North, of course makes three no-trumps. I have noticed a tendency on the part of many players, when defending against a no-trump contract, to lead the king from the holding of ace-king in a suit five or six times without any other reëntry in the hand. They feel that they must take their tricks while they still have the lead, but they fail to realize that there is no possible way they can make the small cards in that suit if the declarer holds the guarded queen or the guarded jack. Your lead of the two top honors, and a small card almost always blanks your partner in that suit. Give the declarer his trick right away by underleading and then your partner can return the suit when he gets in. With a sure reentry in the hand, however, you may attempt to set up your suit as you think best—either by underleading or by laying down the two top honors.

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The far east movement in Paris evening fashions has been given a boost in a significant quarter. Favorites of society, Famous Fortyites, have ordered evening gowns made up like the flowing robes of Hindu princesses—with a difference that gives them a western flavor. Schiaparelli, who was the most important Paris dressmaker behind this far east movement in evening clothes, has been measuring and fitting such women as the Hon. Mrs. Reginald Fellowes to draped frocks with the sari scarf that can be folded over the head or laid along the shoulders as you like it.

This Schiaparelli evening gown is the far east frock that is getting around in smart society in Paris. It has quite a smack of the styles of 1912 about it—styles that delved into the far east for inspiration as do the styles of 1935. It is made of "noonday sun" orange, a far east color, and of ranee crêpe, a sheer silk with body that drapes beautifully. The skirt is draped around the hips and flared in front. In back there is a loop and long sash end. The bodice is surpliced in front. A bolero jacket goes over it, and the sari scarf is attached to the jacket so when it is removed the frock is simple and modern and western.

HIGH SIERRA

Your vacation this summer can include the rugged peaks and trout-filled streams of the High Sierra, if San Francisco is your headquarters. And in this same wonderland are many places you have often longed to see: Yosemite, Lake Tahoe, Del Monte and Monterey, Mt. Lassen, Ghost Towns of the Forty-niners, and many other world-famous picture-places. The coupon below will bring you a free, 64-page booklet.

The only way to beautiful teeth

The only way to keep your teeth sound and beautiful is to cooperate with your dentist* and keep them clean. And the only way to keep them clean is to brush them regularly and thoroughly.

Of course, you brush your teeth regularly. But do you brush them thoroughly? If you do, you are the exception. Do you brush your teeth for at least two minutes? Time yourself. You'll be surprised!

If you will brush your teeth for two minutes regularly, you will bring out all their natural beauty—and you will provide the greatest safeguard against decay and disease of the gums.

But thorough brushing demands a safe dentifrice. Be sure the dentifrice you use contains no abrasive, no soap, no astringents, no irritating antiseptics. These may be harmful to teeth and gums.

Squibb Dental Cream is a scientific dentifrice. It cleans safely. You can use it as thoroughly as you please—scrub and massage as long as you like—this dentifrice will not injure teeth or gums. Every member of the family can use it with absolute assurance of safety.

*Note the symptoms mentioned below. If you have any of them, report promptly to your dentist. If neglected, they will lead to serious trouble

Any condition of inflamed or bleeding gum edges.
Any tooth that is sensitive to heat or cold.
Any rough spot on any tooth.
Any sensitivity to pressure on the part of any tooth.
Any tooth that feels even a little loose.
Any condition that will cut dental floss.

SQUIBB DENTAL CREAM

FREE OF CHARGE
We will send you a booklet which explains how modern dental science can help you to keep your teeth and gums healthy, and avoid ill health caused by unhygienic conditions of the mouth.

PARIS TODAY

By MAY BIRKHEAD.

PARIS.—The annual cat show in Paris each spring calls to mind the fact that you see cats—feline as well as human—all over France. In this respect, of course, France is not unique. We can't think of anything more ubiquitous than the cat. In the country, to be sure, every farmhouse has its cat for the usual protection against rats and mice—and it is also a prized pet. But it is rare to go into a shop anywhere in Paris or the provinces without seeing the cat.

In recent years Parisian and other cat fanciers have been going in, more and more, for breeding certain varieties of far eastern origin. About ten years ago a couple of rare, aristocratic Burmese cats were started on their way to France. [This exclusive breed comes from the Temple of Lao-Tsun, where the specimens are jealously guarded.] The male died on the boat, but on reaching Nice, the female gave birth to a litter. As another male was lacking, the female products were bred with Siamese males. This breeding has turned out well, especially where the Siamese females have four white feet, for the chances then are that the Burmese type, closely related to the Siamese, can be reproduced in almost absolute purity.

Both breeds are believed to descend from the same ancestors. Still, the raising of Burmese cats here has not gone very far. It is figured that great care must be taken to preserve the species in France, even though good specimens bring such high prices as 15,000 or 20,000 francs [approximately $900 to $1,200].

It is said that over 6,000 persons are now engaged in producing fancy breeds here. About half this number are concentrating on Siamese cats which figure more each year in the show and in general favor. There is a growing export trade in them, and their breeding is helped by steady importation of vigorous males from the French far eastern colonies. The explorer, Auguste Pavie, says the Siamese cat results from crossing the long haired Burmese with the tailless Annamite cat, imported in the seventeenth century into the Khmer empire, Indo-China. The Siamese variety was introduced into France about fifty years ago.

As cat fanciers know, the Siamese are extremely sensitive to cold, and many of them perish in winter without much care. Their dainty tastes, their intelligence, and other marked traits have made them great favorites in France in recent years.

The numerous clubs and associations are grouped into a big federation, the Superior National Council of Feline Societies in France, and does everything to promote the raising of blooded stock and to organize championship shows in France and in other countries.

Society Folk Start Annual Trek to Derby

Many Chicagoans to See Classic Tomorrow.

friends of Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane are putting their money on her Psychic Bid, which yesterday was sixth in the list of likely starters, but other Chicagoans think Warren Wright's filly, Nellie Flag, stands a good chance to be the winner. Mr. and Mrs. Wright have been at their Calumet farm in Lexington all this week, having gone there directly from their winter home at Miami Beach, and they, of course, will be at Churchill Downs tomorrow. Nellie Flag was second only to the favorite, Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney's horse, Today, in yesterday's betting odds.

French Lick Springs, which isn't far from Louisville, has the largest number of Chicagoans since 1929 for the Derby week-end. John H. Merrell, Francis Wilson, and the John P. Hardings are a few of the many there.

Ranney-Donnelley Wedding Tomorrow.

Some socialites who would be going to Louisville otherwise are remaining at home for the wedding of Miss Cornelia Ranney and Gaylord Donnelley, which will take place at St. Chrysostom's tomorrow afternoon, for that is one of THE important weddings of the spring, and none of the relatives and intimate friends of the bride or bridegroom would choose to see a Derby rather than the Ranney-Donnelley nuptials.

Fortnightly Closes Calendar Year.

With many of its members setting sailing dates or planning to open summer homes during the next few weeks, the Fortnightly closed its calendar year yesterday afternoon with a musical by the Russian trio. It was a farewell program in another sense of the word, too, for a number of the officers retired from their executive posts and their successors were introduced.

Mrs. Howard C. Phillips continues another year as the president, for it was just a year ago that she was elected to follow Mrs. Wilhelm Ludwig Baum. Mrs. Frederic W. Upham was introduced as the new first vice president and Mrs. George N. Simpson as the new recording secretary. The new treasurer is Mrs. Charles T. Mordock, and the new assistant treasurer, Mrs. Harold C. Smith.

Mrs. Cyrus Bentley continues another year as second vice president and Mrs. Charles Wesley Dempster as corresponding secretary. New members on the directorate are Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes, Miss Frances Whedon, Mrs. Gilbert Scribner, and Mrs. Edwin W. Ryerson.

The Friday club, an equally distinguished group that meets at the Fortnightly, will hold its annual meeting this morning to select its new officers. Mrs. Augustus A. Carpenter is due to serve the club another year as president.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Adams will celebrate their eleventh wedding anniversary this evening with a dinner party for 22 friends whom they have asked to appear in baby attire. As the result they expect to see everything from rompers to all-day suckers. The party will be held at the Adams apartment at9 36 Lake Shore drive.

Aldises to Entertain for Minna Lindsay.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham Aldis will entertain at luncheon Sunday for Minna Lindsay, the Boston debutante who has given up society for the night club stage. Miss Lindsay, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Lindsay of Southboro, Mass., is opening in a spring revue this evening in the Continental room at the Stevens hotel. Among those planning to be present for her debut are Mr. and Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, Col. and Mrs. Albert A. Sprague, Miss Francise Clow, and Prince and Princess Rostislav.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stark are inviting a group of friends to come to their home at 1430 Lake Shore drive next Wednesday night to hear Miss Harriet Monroe read from her new book of poems, "Chosen Poems."

The Arts club has cards out for a musical on Friday afternoon of next week at 4 o'clock at which the program will be given by members of the club who are professional musicians. John Alden Carpenter, chairman of the music committee, is in the orient, so John Palmer, vice chairman, is in charge of the affair.

Bernard F. Rogers Jr. left yesterday afternoon for Boston where he will await orders as to his next assignment for the National Geographic society. Mr. Rogers has made some exceptionally fine pictures for the society.

Miss Virginia Bennett Returns to East.

Miss Virginia Bennett, who has been spending the winter in Chicago with her aunts, the Misses Helen and Estelline Bennett, has left for Providence, R. I., where her marriage to John F. Moulds of Chicago will take place on the 4th of June. Miss Bennett's father, the Rt. Rev. Granville Gaylord Bennett of Providence, will read the service.

Miss Rosemary Kemper, daughter of the James S. Kempers of Winnetka, has returned home after spending the winter at Palm Springs, Cal.

Future events of interest on the north shore include the annual concert by the Christ church choir in Winnetka on Friday evening, May 17; a table setting exhibition for the benefit of the Evanston Junior league at Tatman's in Evanston on Friday, May 24, and a benefit the North Shore auxiliary of the Chicago Maternity center will give on Wednesday, May 29. It will be at the Lake Shore Athletic club and will include swimming and diving exhibitions to be followed by supper and dancing with impromptu entertaining by stage celebrities who are there.

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Here is one of those dresses that all women like, suitable for active or spectator sports wear. The plaited skirt insets allow plenty of freedom of movement and the patch pockets on waist and skirt are smart. There are gabardine, pique, plaided gingham, etc., for such a dress, but there are other materials, such as linen and tub silk, that could enter the running, too.

The pattern, No. 3193, comes in sizes 14, 16, and 18 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Miss A., a medical case worker in a large clinic, writes:

"Dear Miss Brown: We are writing you in the hope that you may be able to secure a bed or cot with mattress for a 6 year old child who has been ill since October and until recently was a patient in our children's hospital for seven weeks. She is now convalescing nicely at home, but is very much in need of a bed so that she can have proper rest. She has been sleeping with her parents, who are financially unable to secure another bed.

"The father is a cab driver earning so little that the family has had less than 50 cents a day for food. They are very anxious to remain self-maintaining and have so far tried to get along without applying for relief. I know that they would be most grateful to any one who can donate a cot or bed for the child."

Coming Movie Boasts Unusual Stage Effects

"Broadway Melody of 1935" Sets Precedents.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 2.—[Special.]—There's a dancing scene for "Broadway Melody of 1935" that is highly original. June Knight and Robert Taylor do the dance. They whirl to strains of an orchestra into a long, wide, vacant ballroom floor. Taylor looks toward one corner of the room. A piano suddenly appears before his eyes. He sits down to the piano and plays a number. As he rises the piano vanishes. Chairs and dining tables laden with viands fill the room just as unexpectedly as the piano came and went. Dancing girls do fancy steps down the long ailes of the suddenly furnished room. They, too, in turn, disappear.

The mechanism handling the effect is a system of hydraulically operated trapdoors. At the studio it is explained there are 1,000 hydraulic hose connections. The stunt evolved from ideas of Roy Del Ruth, the director of this M. G. M. picture, and Dave Gould, dance director. Hollywood is wondering how Busby Berkeley, the dance director who does such similar stagey and extravagant effects for Warner Brothers musicals, will top the one in "Broadway Melody."

Bob Presnell, associate producer at Universal and an ex-Chicago newspaper man, had a big batch of bad luck arrive on his birthday. Mrs. Presnell gave him a new automobile as a present, but the driver of a dilapidated car ran into his new motor car and Bob had to send for a wrecking car. Meantime, he took a cab home to get his old coupé. Arriving home, he found the coupé had been stolen.

Bill Gargan says as long as the "send a dime" chain letter scheme has been ruled illegal by postal authorities he is backing a new chain letter scheme for married men only. It will be called "Send a button." "Then our wives won't have excuses any more," Gargan says.

Mike Cantwell, ex-trainer of pugilistic champions, who opened a gym on the M. G. M. lot and helped train Max Baer for the title holder's first and only movie appearance, has now decided there is more money in acting than in boxing gloves. Mike has just completed a part in "Public Hero No. 1," and his ambition is to play cops, crooks, and pugs in pictures. Between pictures he will keep his studio gym open.

Ginger Rogers threw a birthday party at Radio studio for Jean Woodhull, one of the hairdressers, and invited every girl in the wardrobe department.

Frank Lloyd, directing "Mutiny on the Bounty," has cabled his unit manager, Ulrich Busch, at Papeete, to take screen tests there for a third Tahiti maiden for the picture. Two Polynesian girls, Mamo and Movita, are here from Tahiti already.

Mrs. Theodore B. Bersbach [Elva Eitel] is one of the young women who have been selling tickets to "Forgiven at the Altar," a melodrama being presented tonight on the Dixiana showboat for the benefit of the scholarship fund of Williams college. That the women's committee, headed by Mrs. Robert M. Hoffman Jr., has been successful is attested by the fact that 900 tickets have been sold. The party will be attended by the younger set mostly, and the Williams alumni have kept the price of tickets down to $1.00 each, to the satisfaction of budget-conscious "young marrieds." A few tickets still may be purchased at the door tonight.

Mrs. Frederick L. Hurlbutt, who was in charge of ticket sales in Winnetka and Mr. Hurlbutt are entertaining at an early dinner at home and bringing their guests in to the show. Miss Eleanor Janney is entertaining this evening, and so are the junior Robert L. Scotts, who will give a dinner on the boat. Miss Josephine Fleming also will entertain at dinner on the boat.

Others who will be present include the junior John P. Wilsons, the Fletcher Durbins, the William P. Sidleys and the Stuart Templetons, who all have taken boxes; the Frederic A. dePeysters, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Butz, and Mrs. Walter A. Strong.

Stresses Value of Newspaper as Teaching Aid

Education Lagging; P.-T. A. Congress Told.

Miami, Fla., May 2.—(AP)—The National Congress of Parents and Teachers today heard a speaker charge that American colleges "are teaching 40 years behind the times instead of 10 years ahead."

Delegates were told by B. H. Darrow of Columbus, O., national chairman for radio, that "the school is behind the times that doesn't use the newspaper and radio along with text books."

Instruction which fails to gain the voluntary interest of the child, Darrow said, will have little lasting effect.

"This is a tabloid age and to teach effectively, we must use modern agencies of an ear that is highly visual and auditory-minded," he said. "The study of the past is a poor academic process unless it makes the child interpret the present.

"Only the schools that have stopped covering students over with the dust of dead things and are giving them current events have the beginning of self education."

Regulation of trade practices, the prohibition of bloc booking, and blind buying of motion pictures, and the Copeland food and drug act were discussed.

Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, of Winnetka, Ill., national president, spoke to the 900 delegates tonight in a panel discussion of "The Home—Wellspring of the Cultural Arts."

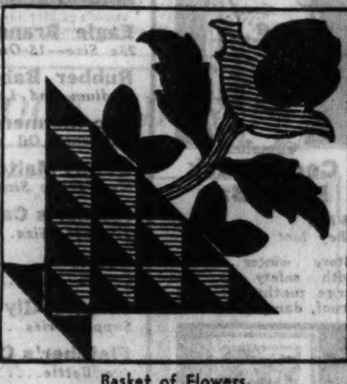
Ricketts Research Prize Awarded to Holley and Markham

The Howard Taylor Ricketts prize at the University of Chicago, given annually for the best results in research in either pathology or hygiene and bacteriology, has been awarded to Floyd S. Markham and Sion W. Holley, it was announced yesterday. The prize, which this year amounted to $186, was established in memory of Dr. Howard Taylor Ricketts, university bacteriologist, who discovered the germ of typhus fever and died a martyr to his discovery while working in Mexico in 1910.

Floral Quilt Is Original Design of New England

Patterns of this design quilt are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.



Basket of Flowers.

BY NANCY CABOT.

New England quilts are noted for their originality and pictorially beautiful patterns. Today's pattern, "Basket of Flowers," is an original which dates back to 1853, when the basket was pieced from red and white print material, with the floral appliqué patches in red and green. The suggested block arrangement, accompanying the pattern, offers an unusual combination of applique and plain squares.

With her book of quilts, Nancy Cabot now offers 10 patterns of her own choice at a combination price of 10 cents [12 cents by mail]. The booklet alone is 5 cents; by mail, 7 cents. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Don't Be Fat!

IRENE RICH
Lovely Lady of the Screen

"Eat Sensibly—Drink Welch's Grape Juice"

Now, at last, scientists have discovered a way to reduce healthfully! You must supply the body with a certain amount of an easily-burnable sugar—so that the body can burn up its fat.

Welch's Grape Juice contains this special kind of sugar—a natural sugar, exactly the same kind your blood uses for energy. This sugar is easily and quickly burned, and it helps the body burn up fat! Not only that, it satisfies the craving for rich, sweet foods—helps you lose weight naturally.

And because Welch's is an energy food, it keeps you full of youthful pep, puts roses in your cheeks. But insist upon Welch's—accept no cheap substitutes. Welch's is always Certified-Pure and Pasteurized, the only grape juice approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Welch's is more economical, too, because it is always full strength, with no added water, no adulterants, no synthetic flavor. Your grocer or druggist can supply you.

Irene Rich is over 40, but weighs the same as at 16

"Gives Quick Pep and Energy" says coach

"Red" Woodworth, All-American Star and Coach at Morgan Park Military Academy, says: "Welch's Grape Juice gives my boys strength and energy without adding health-destroying fat. The minerals and vitamins are valuable in helping to build firm flesh, strong bones and teeth. I recommend it for all growing children and athletes."

FREE Send your name and address to the Welch Grape Juice Co., Dept. 3372, Westfield, N. Y., for free scientific health booklet: "Keeping Your Weight Down"—and—"Red Blooded Children and Athletes." Also a new, simple Diet List of many good things to eat, with weight and height chart, and a personal letter from Irene Rich herself, telling you how she keeps her weight the same as at 16, though over 40. All sent absolutely free.

WELCH'S GRAPE JUICE

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

WITH the advent of warmer days you may want to use a lighter facial foundation than you've been using during the long hard winter. Take a tip from us and look into the matter of a finishing lotion that's a sheer joy to use and as flattering as moonlight to wear.

It's one of those shake-the-bottle lotions but it is not a liquid powder. There's no trick at all to applying it—you merely dip your fingers into the pretty peach and white bottle and smooth it on gently and sparingly. It dries rather quickly and leaves a smooth, dull finish that's a perfect background for your makeup.

The shades are fascinating. One's peach, the palest wisp of a pink color that's divinely flattering to the fair. The French rachel is for the average brunette, and for those who want to look as though they'd been toasting themselves in the sun or who're naturally olive complexioned there is an ochre that's excellent.

The fourth shade is a deepish rose—which may seem peculiar as a tint for a finishing cream, but that is marvelous on some skins.

The trick, if it could be called that, of using this finishing lotion is in the blending of it. This should be done deftly and quickly. Give the face a few dabs of it, then smooth it over. The film of it over the skin is all but invisible and when powder and rouge are applied the complexion appears to have the texture of a rose petal. This is protective, too, to a certain extent. It will keep the dust and grime and makeup out of the pores, playing a passive rôle that contributes heavily to your beauty now and in the future.

ELEANOR NANGLE.

[For information about this finishing lotion telephone Eleanor Nangle, Superior 0100.]

Expect 200,000 at Garfield Park.

Tentative plans for the west side reception to the amateur boxing champions of Italy in Garfield park on Sunday evening, May 12, were discussed yesterday at a meeting in the offices of the Garfield Park Business Men's association. The reception at the band stand in Garfield park south of Madison street will be preceded by a parade, undoubtedly the largest in the history of international Golden Gloves.

Richard M. Lenihan, chairman of the committee on arrangements, called the meeting primarily to discuss plans for formation of the parade, in which several thousands will take part. Others present yesterday were: Lieut. S. B. Moss of the Fillmore street police station, Capt. Roger Shanahan of the Chicago park police, Thomas Fahey, superintendent, and J. B. O'Connell of the Chicago Surface lines; Lieut. Col. Robert Wigglesworth, executive officer of the 132d Infantry, National Guard; Walter Kelly, editor of the Garfieldian; William Druley, chairman of the board, and T. J. Brodie, president of the Garfield Park Business Men's association, and members of THE TRIBUNE sports staf.

Send Welcome by Cable.

The reception committee of the Business Men's association yesterday also sent the following radiogram to the members and officials of the Italian team now en route to New York on the Italian liner Conti di Savoia:

"Welcome sons of Italy to Chicago and Garfield park. We will soon be your hosts. A warm welcome has been prepared. Win or lose, we hope to convince you that Chicago is a city of sportsmen inside the ring and outside."

The parade will form May 12 at 7:15 p. m. in the 4500 block on Madison street and it will arrive at the band stand south of Madison street in Garfield park at 8:30. Leading the parade will be the 132d Infantry with approximately 750 soldiers in a column of fours. Bands and Italian organizations will follow.

High Schools to Parade.

Parochial and city high schools will coöperate. William J. Bogan, superintendent of the city schools, notified the Garfield Park Business Men's association that when the schools convene Monday he would have a list of the high schools which will participate in the parade in honor of the Italians.

"Chicago's schools deem it an honor to assist in greeting the Italians and the west side high schools, in particular, will be pleased to coöperate, I am certain," Supt. Bogan said.

St. Mel, St. Philip, and Fenwick High schools also are considering plans for participation.

Triner on Speakers List.

To the previously announced list of speakers who will greet the Italians, the name of Joe Triner, chairman of the Illinois athletic commission, has been added. All speeches will be brief, and prior to them there will be a concert in Garfield park by Armin Hand's band, followed by entertainment from outstanding stage and radio stars. The Lawson Y. M. C. A. men's chorus, under the direction of Frank Bennett, will sing.

Complete plans for the reception and the order of march of the units of the parade will be announced later. The reception committee has set as a goal an attendance of 200,000, and to that end will arrange a program without parallel in international Golden Gloves.

JOE McCARTHY REPORTED TO BE RESTING WELL

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—Joe McCarthy, manager of the Yankees, ill with influenza and complications, was reported by his physicians today as resting comfortably, with his condition satisfactory.

This Is the Time to Buy

Italy's amateur boxing champions are on the Atlantic bound for America and the bouts with Chicago's Golden Gloves winners at the Stadium May 22. A capacity crowd is sure to see the fights. You can make sure you will be in attendance by purchasing your ticket now.

There still are thousands of good seats available. Hundreds are in the ringside section. Don't wait until the last week before the show and then be disappointed because you can't get the location you want. Go to The Tribune Public Service office, 1 S. Dearborn street, or in Tribune Tower and get yours today.

The prices are $3.30, $2.20, $1.65 and $1.10. All seats are reserved. Mail orders also are being accepted. Send check or money order to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

SENATORS FIRST EASTERN FOE OF SOX TODAY

Dykes Picks Tietje to Do Pitching.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox and the fans who decide to turn out for the party will have their first glimpse today of one of the eastern entries in the current American league flag Derby. The first to arrive will be Washington's Senators, who in 1933 won a pennant, only to learn last season that nothing is definite in baseball. They may learn more along this line before the present race is concluded.

For the opener of the three game series this afternoon Jim Dykes, the Sox manager, intends to start Les Tietje on the mound, and the visitors might look upon this as a sort of concession. They probably have heard by this time that Tietje, after pitching great ball during the training jaunt with the Pirates, received a hair cut, shave, singe, and everything else on the list when he appeared against the Tigers and Browns. But that doesn't mean it is going to continue.

Infected Teeth Removed.

Dykes is anxious to get Tietje into a winning stride, because the young man is an important factor in the manager's pitching plans. Before the season opened Dykes figured Tietje was the one who would be able to take his turn every fourth day and give a good account of himself. Instead he has appeared in only two of the five series played, and in each instance the results didn't make good reading matter.

Last season Tietje pitched tight ball, but assimilated more than his share of beatings because his mates seldom provided him with more than a couple of runs. It is possible that his sudden foldup after the spring tour was due to infected teeth which have been removed.

Tietje's ineffectiveness is complicated by the fact that George Earnshaw has been sailing in the same boat with the youngster. That has left Dykes with only two reliables—Sam Jones and Rookie John Whitehead. Ted Lyons has helped out a bit even though called on before Dykes wanted to use him, but on the whole the pitching has been wabbly. If there isn't a big improvement Dykes may shift Whitlow Wyatt into a starting rôle.

Bubble Hasn't Burst.

The flop of the Sox in their only game at Cleveland, after winning six in a row, was disheartening, but by no means a sign that their spring bubble really has burst. They were up against pretty fair pitching from Willis Hudlin, and yet scored five runs. And that might have been ample if it hadn't been for the short right field in the Indians' park. With a few exceptions the extra base hits delivered by the Indians would have been caught in Comiskey park. The Cleveland park is made to order for three or four of the Indian batters.

KEARNEY CLOSES WINTER BOOK; TODAY IS 3 TO 1

St. Louis, Mo., May 2.—(AP)—Tom Kearney, betting commissioner, closed his winter book on the Kentucky Derby today. One of the best played Derby candidates in Kearney's book is Nellie Flag, which has been backed down from 100 to 1 to 5 to 1. Whiskolo, another 100 to 1 shot, has been backed down to 12 to 1. Today is the favored Derby candidate in Kearney's book with the odds at 3 to 1.

Today, 3 to 1; Nellie Flag, 5 to 1; Plat Eye, 6 to 1; Boxthorn, 6 to 1; Roman Soldier, 6 to 1; Omaha, 4 to 1; St. Bernard, 15 to 1; Whiskolo, 12 to 1; Blackbirder, 60 to 1; Sun Fairplay, 20 to 1; Psychic Bid, 15 to 1; Commonwealth, 6 to 1; McCarthy, 100 to 1; Tutticurio, 100 to 1, and Whopper, 30 to 1.

Wife of Tribune Sports Staf Member Has Operation

Mrs. Ethel Martin, wife of Howard Martin, member of THE TRIBUNE sports staf, underwent an emergency appendicitis operation last night at the South Shore hospital. She was reported resting comfortably after the operation.

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1935: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ALMOST anything can happen in a college baseball game and frequently does. . . . In the recent Northwestern-Iowa contest Shanahan, Wildcat batter, saw the catcher drop the ball on the second strike and thinking it was the third strike, he lit out for first. . . . Hoover, Hawkeye catcher, threw over the first baseman's head, Shanahan continuing to second. . . . Meanwhile, a Northwestern runner scored all the way from second. . . . The umpire called Shanahan back to bat and he struck out, but the run that came in tied the score and sent the game into extra innings, Iowa finally winning, 4 to 3, in the eleventh. . . . Peggy Lindberg of Detroit, who finished second in the national women's elimination bowling tournament last week, always carries a jug of water with her when bowling to soak her thumb. . . . Jimmy Archer, famous old Cub catcher, not long ago picked the following team as the greatest he actually saw in competition: Kling and Criger, catchers; Mathewson, Brown, Joss, Cy Young, and Waddell, pitchers; Chase, first base; Evers, second base; Wagner, shortstop; J. Collins, third base; Clarke, left field; Lange, center field, and Cobb, right field.

Jay Berwanger, Maroon football captain elect, has a dart target at the foot of his bed and takes a few shots at it every night as a form of forward pass practice. . . . Following the example of the University of Wisconsin, which has developed boxing to a point where it attracts more interest than any sport except football and basketball, Wisconsin high schools are adopting the game as an interscholastic activity. . . . Jesse Owens, Ohio State's brilliant track athlete, was christened James Cleveland Owens. . . . Next year's national basketball coaches' convention will be held in St. Louis. . . . Dutch Lonborg of Northwestern, who is president of the association; Jim Kelly of De Paul, and Nick Kearns will visit St. Louis next week to make arrangements for the conclave.

Joe Miller of Buffalo has bowled 21 perfect games in the last five years. . . . On his first exhibition tour last year he made nine 300 scores and averaged 215 for 1,200 games. . . . This year he averaged 222 for 750 games. . . . Three times this spring when Coach Kyle Anderson of the University of Chicago baseball team has signaled for a hit and run play the batter has come through with a home run. . . . Two of the three homers as well as a triple on the same signal were made by Ed Tyk, second baseman, so Anderson is thinking of calling the play every time Tyk bats, whether there's a runner aboard or not. . . . Johnnie McBride, former White Sox bat boy, always felt he was the club's jinx and now he is sure of it. . . . He was employed as a vender or bat boy from 1920 until last year. . . . The Sox didn't have a winning team in that span, but the moment he left the park they began to click. . . . "I'll never go back," says McBride, "because I am a Sox fan and I don't want to change their luck." . . .

L. S. MacPhail, general manager of the Cincinnati Reds, is inviting major league writers to be his guests at the first night game in the major leagues. . . . It will be played at Crosley field May 23 between the Reds and Phillies. . . . Cincinnati has received the National league's approval to play seven night games, one with each club. . . . Northwestern's two baseball pitchers, Ray Kimbell and Tom Woods, are seniors in the school of journalism and hold down jobs as night editors of the school paper. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs was leading the National league in home runs with eight. . . . Ed Strangler Lewis and Wayne Big Munn resumed training for their return wrestling match. . . . The South Chicago Wheelman entered 15 riders in the fourth annual Tribune Bicycle Derby.

Italian Bantam Champion Hails from Fighting Town

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD THE CONTE DI SAVOIA, May 2.—When Roderigo Sergo, bantamweight member of Italy's Golden Gloves team, which sailed yesterday for America, was about 6 or 7 years old his home town would have been hard to beat as a place in which to learn to fight. Sergo hails from Fiume, the town which Gabriele d'Annunzio and legionaries seized in 1919, and again in 1920, and held for Italy. Sergo says that as a boy he saw a lot of scrapping going on among d'Annunzio's hard boiled soldiers, who also taught him a few tricks.

Sergo was born in Fiume July 4, 1913, and has lived in that city ever since. Of course, when he was born it was part of the Austro-Hungarian empire. By occupation he is a draftsman, and he fights with the same steady precision that marks his drawing, according to Trainer Leo Guinchi.

Designing, however, does not pay very heavy dividends, and Sergo's main ambition now is to become a professional pugilist. Roderigo, who is 23 years old, has been boxing for the last five years as an amateur. During this time he has been in eighty-six fights, of which he lost five and had three draws. He showed up well in the Milan tourney held early in April and won his way into the semi-finals. Sergo said his parents at first were opposed to his boxing ambition, but later consented upon his promise not to come home too badly smashed up.

So when Barone was prevented from going to Chicago for the international Golden Gloves bouts May 22, the judges had no trouble in selecting Sergo to replace him. Sergo says that he considers his hardest fight that against the European champion bantamweight, the Hungarian Hennecher, whom he encountered some time ago in Budapest.

FROM FIUME

It was a hard battle for three rounds, when the Hungarian connected with a left swing to Sergo's left eyebrow, which sustained a bad cut. The referee stopped the fight and awarded the victory to the Hungarian not because Sergo was out but because of the copiously bleeding cut.

INSURANCE MAN COLLECTS $1,894 ON DAILY DOUBLE

Conservative Investment Pays 946% at Aurora.

BY BRUCE DENNIS.

The chill wind that blew over the Aurora race course yesterday swept $1,894.30 into the right hand pants pocket of a Gary insurance salesman playing hookey from the office. The salesman was the only person in a crowd of perhaps 2,500 Eskimos who picked the winning daily double combination of Buster B in the second race and Belle Delight in the third.

This canny Hoosier appeared no more excited than he would be while selling a $500 policy to a steel worker. He was approached by a reporter and Col. Edward B. [On the House] Jefferson, Aurora's radio publicitor, both dangerous looking characters. Col. Jefferson even had one hand in his pocket, as if fingering an automatic.

He Talks—But Not Enough.

The man from Gary would talk, but not much. Least of all did this wandering purveyor of insurance want his name in the paper. His boss might see it. He said, however, he only had one ticket on the double, and hadn't even remembered buying that until he reached in his pocket to get a cigaret. Sure enough, it was ticket No. 274—on No. 3 in the second race and No. 7 in the third.

If you think Col. Jefferson and the reporter, an ardent reader of Dick Tracy, were baffled by the winner's refusal to identify himself, you don't know these lads. They decided to tail him to his car, get the license number and solve the mystery.

Sleuths Are Baffled.

But as we have said. Mr. X from Gary is a canny chap. He immediately surrounded himself with a couple of big musclemen, and instead of leaving the track, stayed around and kept an eye on Col. Jefferson and his partner. We're turning the whole thing over to Scotland Yard. If it'll help any, Gary's star horse player is about 35 years old, of medium build, and wears glasses. When last seen he was accompanied by two large gents and a lot of hundred dollar bills.

Buster B. won the second race and first half of the daily double by a length and a half. He is a 6 year old son of Buster Keaton-Blushing and belongs to Mrs. H. Torriente. His time for the six furlongs over a slow track, was 1:14 3-5. Jocky C. Mojena was up.

Buster B. Pays $16.12.

In the mutuels Buster B. returned $16.12 to win, $8.26 to place, and $4.86 to show. Dr. Louis Hamman was at $6.42 to place and $4.88 to show, while Cabotin paid $13.78 to show.

In the third race Jocky Pedro Martinez got Belle Delight away in front and kept her there for the whole six furlong trip. Last Stand was the odds-on favorite but could do no better than finish third behind Montaris.

Belle Delight hadn't won a race in two years. Way back in December, 1933, she finished second at Jefferson Park. She's 5 years old and is owned by Mrs. A. McEndree.

In the mutuels Belle Delight paid $41.64, $39.62, and $7.02, Montaris was at $21.56, and $7.58, and Last Stand paid $2.44 to show.

Woodlander Wins Feature.

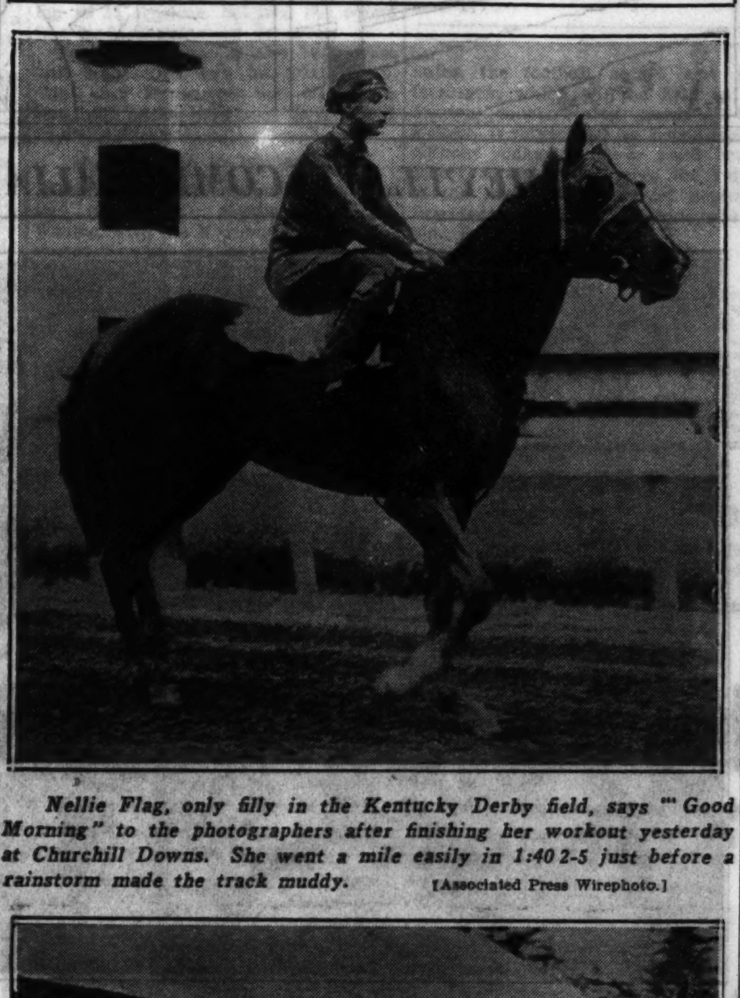
Woodlander, a trim chestnut gelding from the stable of B. Hernandez, captured the feature race, the Three Men on a Horse purse at 6 furlongs, and left his nearest rival five lengths back. Woodlander, ridden by L. Turner, was timed in 1:13 and paid $10.28 for a $2 straight ticket.

Merry Caroline was second and Rush Along third. Terrier, the favorite, was fifth.

Fans found a new way of keeping themselves warm after the fourth race, awarded to Aunt Flor by a nose over Tadcaster. They gathered around the new glass enclosed stewards' stand and booed themselves hoarse in favor of Tadcaster, which was a 10 to 1 shot. Aunt Flor paid $9.44.

Just as the horses were lining up for the sixth race Jack Murphy, one of the six entrants, unseated Apprentice Jocky M. Ealey and galloped all the way around the track. He was captured finally and finished last in the race. The winner was Lady Rockledge, odds-on favorite.

DON'T OVERLOOK THESE!



Nellie Flag, only filly in the Kentucky Derby field, says "Good Morning" to the photographers after finishing her workout yesterday at Churchill Downs. She went a mile easily in 1:40 2-5 just before a rainstorm made the track muddy. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Gene Sarazen Gives Chicago Golfers Pointers on Shots

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Dr. Eugene Sarazen, one of the most respected practitioners the greens and fairways of the golf profession ever have seen, is in our town for a spell of lecturing, waving a new shingle, not to mention such trusted instruments as his driver and irons and kindred scalpels.

Yes, the genial doctor is the same Gene Sarazen, who, on a golf course, swinging his own sticks for himself, always brings up that ominous cry, "Jiggers, Sarazen is coming!" The frown and the tight lips so typical of the little New Yorker on a golf lot were missing yesterday as he went into his new rôle of Dr. Sarazen and conducted a clinic at a loop department store, where he will also hold forth today.

Makes Lecture Tour.

The clinic and the title are new to Gene, but here to stay. Yesterday he predicted that the future of professional golf stars who wish to capitalize on their victories in the national open and other big shows lies in such demonstrations as he is now giving throughout the country, and not in exhibition matches. He himself has already lectured in Boston, New York, and Philadelphia, and will close his indoor swing with stands in Pittsburgh and Washington. Then he will carry the same idea outdoors, a thought which he came upon in New Zealand during his overseas tour of last winter.

"I'd finish a match down there and there'd probably be only an hour of daylight remaining. The home pro or club chairman would then suggest dinner for one and all, saying that I didn't wish to hold them from their meal, but there would always be a tremendous squawk for some closeup instruction, and I'd be there talking and explaining until it was pitch dark.

Gene Explains Methods.

"I already have found it particularly successful in a few outdoor demonstrations, giving a lecture at a club outdoors about 5 p. m., adjourning for dinner, and following that up with a half hour series of movie shots. The enthusiasm with which this was received is a proof of the theory that the spectator angle is waning, and the competitive side becoming so general that folks want some practical teaching close up."

Dr. Sarazen's little clinic yesterday did nothing to contradict his argument. He spoke for an hour, then commented on movies of all the stars with several asides worthy of some of the better night club m. c.'s, and spent another hour diagnosing such ailments as slices, hooks, and improper grips, working out on pupils in the class.

FORECAST MORE SHOWERS TODAY AT LOUISVILLE

But Favorites Like Muddy Track.

BY FRENCH LANE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 2.—Just to make the Kentucky Derby problems a little more difficult it has started to rain here. So it's harder than ever for the railbirds to decide on the favorite, the number of starters, and the winner.

Thunder showers which continued well on through the day drenched the Derby course. More thunder showers are on the docket for tomorrow and if the track is anything but very damp for the 61st Derby then indeed wonders will never cease.

Derby Favorites Like Mud.

So a Derby crowd that is packed into Louisville pretty much in the fashion of sardines tonight was attempting to reorganize its viewpoint. Still the perplexity did not last long. An unusual phase of this year's Derby is the fact that all the stars in the race are not one bit concerned about track conditions. They will be as much at home in the muddy going as they will be if the track is lightning fast and three in this group, Today, Nellie Flag and Roman Soldier, will perhaps do a bit better if plenty of mud is smeared into the Derby battle.

Nor will mud handicap Omaha, Commonwealth, Plat Eye or Psychic Bid. Col. Bradley's Boxthorn also can take care of himself in mud, Trainer Thompson declared. So even if the weather man is the meanest cuss in Kentucky on Derby day he's not going to take any of the zip out of the contest.

Whiskolo Gets Backing.

There was quite a betting plunge on Whiskolo tonight when it was announced that Jocky Wayne Wright, one of the most skillful in the country, who would have piloted Chance Sun had the early favorite been able to get to post, will ride this Chicago colt. Wright had his choice of a half dozen mounts, but he selected Whiskolo and the plungers took it to mean that he knows something.

Other Derby riding assignments also were announced. Mack Garner will have a leg up on Morpluck, H. Tinker is en route here from Texas to ride Chanceview, and George Woolf, who signed up to ride both Whiskolo and Commonwealth, must pilot Commonwealth, the stewards ruled.

Paul Keester, right now America's leading rider, came in from Texas and will have the leg up on St. Bernard. Keester reported to Trainer Alex Gordon when he arrived and Gordon announced that the Cold Stream Stud stable, for which he trains, had purchased his contract.

Heavy Rain Falls.

Rain fell by the bucketful during the last half of the morning's training hour while several of the Derby candidates were on the track. Nothing serious in the way of a training move was attempted. That has all been attended to earlier in the week. Before the track became muddy Nellie Flag went a mile easily in 1:40 2-5 and wanted to go faster.

Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's Psychic Bid, the colt that many Derby visitors believe will be on the front end of the Derby parade for at least a mile, made his belated arrival this afternoon. He came from New York. Trainer Bob Smith, who came here last year to saddle Cavalcade for his Derby triumph, also will put the saddle on Psychic Bid.

Expect 17 Starters.

Tonight it appeared as if there will be seventeen starters in the race regardless of track conditions. The field shapes up as follows:

Horse—	Wt.	Jocky.
Today	126	R. Workman
Nellie Flag	121	E. Arcaro
Roman Soldier	126	L. Balaski
Prince Splendor	126	No boy
Omaha	126	W. Saunders
Plat Eye	126	S. Coucci

Tutticurio	126	J. Lynch
Morpluck	126	M. Garner
St. Bernard	126	P. Keester
Blackbirder	126	C. Hainsworth
Chanceview	126	H. Tinker

It hardly is likely that there will be any additions to this field. More likely

Big League Scouts Eye Campus Prospects.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Baseball in the Western conference not only is improving in calibre of competition but there has been an increase in interest as reflected in larger crowds in the last five years.

This is the opinion of Paul Stewart, now entering his seventh year as baseball coach at Northwestern university, who was a member of the Illinois conference championship nines of 1921 and 1922 and on the 1923 team which finished second.

College baseball has not received publicity in proportion to its merit. It probably never will because it is overshadowed by professional baseball, is conducted in direct competition to the professional game in more than half of the conference centers, and there are other handicaps which tend to crowd college baseball into the niche where all college sport belongs if one listens to the ultraconservative wing of the educators.

Depression Hurts Game.

The depression has hurt college baseball, once regarded as equal to football and superior to basketball. Conference teams now arrange schedules to fit their athletic pocketbooks. Since the maximum number of twelve Big Ten games is not played by all the universities, and four game series have been arranged between the schools which can not afford to travel great distances, public interest may be affected in some degree. The conference recognizes no championships, however, and so this present system of game scheduling is not considered unfair although from a title viewpoint it is.

Northwestern is the only Big Ten member which does not charge admission. Chicago charges 25 cents. The other universities charge 40 cents, and at Iowa student book holders must pay to see baseball. This doesn't sound like big business, but there are basketball teams playing on the same basis and no one has said college basketball is withering away.

Attendance Is Increased.

Minnesota and Wisconsin have shown greatest increases in attendance last year and this. In 1933 the Gophers won the championship but last year trailed with four victories and eight defeats. Illinois, which frequently played before crowds of 10,000 when Stewart was in school, finds that interest now is reviving. Ohio State, despite competition from the Columbus American association team, has increased attendance. The Illinois-Michigan game tomorrow at Ann Arbor is expected to bring a box office revival over recent years which is natural enough since each has lost but one game. Attendance should be about 7,000.

Major league scouts again are turning their attention to the college field after a lapse of several years. Last season nine scouts looked over the Northwestern team and two have seen the boys in action this spring. This undoubtedly is true of other Big Ten centers. The reason is obvious. Look at the list of college players who were signed for trials in the last two or three seasons:

From Chicago the Cubs secured Pitcher Roy Henshaw, who last year starred with Los Angeles and now is ready to take a regular turn for the Cubs and already has scored the Cubs' first shutout of the year.

College Boys Make Good.

Buck Fyfe, a pitcher, went from Northwestern to the Yankees in 1931 and played two years at Erie, Pa., before an auto accident injured his arm. Pitcher McAfee of Michigan played with the Washington Senators and then with the Browns. Last year Cincinnati took Pitcher Whitey Wistert and Outfielder Fred Petoskey. Wistert blanked the Cubs, 1 to 0, last fall and is still under option to Cincinnati.

Indiana's star pitcher last spring, Lefty Wilshire, is with the Philadelphia Athletics. The Philadelphia Nationals signed Illinois' Frink and farmed him out for seasoning. Ed Lagger of Northwestern, a pitcher, was sent by the Athletics to Oklahoma City, and a teammate, Herb Harris, owned by the Cubs, after winning 11 games and losing four in 1934 for Ponca City, is now at Los Angeles. Recently he won a four hit game from Portland, 2 to 1.

College Players Recruited.

The Boston Braves got Iowa's Mowry by way of Minneapolis and he now is in the International league. The Cards have Mace Brown pitching in the association. In recent years the majors secured Joe Bartulis, Al Hazzard, and Paul Chervinko from Illinois. Bartulis had a trial with the White Sox and now is at Toledo. The Cards sent Chervinko to Rochester and this year he will manage the Bloomington, Ill., team.

George Huff, director of athletics at Illinois, once remarked that the three best college baseball teams he ever saw played for Illinois in 1902, 1915, and 1922. On that 1922 team, in addition to Stewart, Illinois had Harry McCurdy, later catcher for the White Sox and Philadelphia; Dick Reichel, outfielder for the Braves; Otto Vogel, now coaching at Iowa, who played with the Cubs; Wallie Roettger, just returned to his alma mater as coach after a brilliant major league career; Don Peden, Cap Crosley, Swede Hellstrom, Cliff Jackson, Julie Mee, Ed Banker, Bob Barnes, and Tom McCann. All played in the majors or with high ranking professional baseball clubs.

Braddock Gets off Relief by Cracking Down on Art Lasky

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—James J. Braddock, pampered now to bring him to the mental and physical perfection which is his due as challenger for the world heavyweight championship, was on relief in New Jersey a few weeks ago, it became known today.

He will go into the ring of the Long Island bowl June 13 to fight Max Baer, and, if he wins, he may collect as much as $40,000 for the night's work. Two months ago he was hungry, penniless, with no job to support his wife and three children.

Fearing he was an also ran, a has been, one of that large and unhappy company of the ring's defeated and forgotten, Braddock trudged the streets for any kind of work. He found none. Within arm's length today is the world championship and all the fame, ease, and acclaim it holds.

He had lost his means of livelihood as a stevedore along the Jersey docks, and went to the government relief agency of North Bergen and asked for work on the federal projects. But there was none. Until work could be found the agency would give milk for the children, food, and rent.

Later he was given a job, and the fighter, his career seemingly ended, chopped and dug with hands that had achieved more than twenty knockouts. He was merely relief case No. 2796. Today the way is opened for him to collect many thousands.

Braddock last summer received $250, a purse indicative of low esteem, for fighting Corn Griffin on the Primo Carnera-Max Baer card. The other night he pocketed $300 for punching the bag before a radio microphone.

In March he defeated Art Lasky and immediately advanced to the foremost rank. The state athletic commission, that thought little of him on the few occasions it thought of him at all, promptly designated him No. 1 contender for Baer's title. And relief case No. 2796 was stricken from the rolls.

The history of case No. 2796 was taken from the files when Mayor Julius L. Reich of North Bergen and Commissioner Harry Buesser, until recently relief director, squared off in a political battle.

Del Genio and Babe Daniels Sign for Bout

Leonard Del Genio, promising New York lightweight boxer, and Babe Daniels, Minneapolis, Minn., youngster, have been signed to meet in a ten round encounter at Chicago Stadium next Friday. Each will be making his Chicago debut in this bout, the second to be arranged for Stadium presentation. The other matches Mike Belloise and Jimmy Christy, featherweights.

Young Jack Blackburn, south side middleweight, has been hired to serve as cannon fodder for Johnny Phagan in an effort to aid the latter to reach tiptop condition for his eight round fight with Tony Zale at Midway arena Monday.

King Levinsky will go on another tour within the next ten days, this time in the east. The first of the Chicago heavyweight's latest series of matches is expected to be against Tom Patrick, Los Angeles, Cal., at Boston, Mass., nd the last against Marty Gallagher at Washington, D. C., June 23. Other towns on the schedule include Richmond, Va., and Salem, Mass. Elmira, N. Y. promoters were contemplating arranging a contest between Levinsky and Art Sykes in their city June 24 in conjunction with the Elks' convention, but the King's impending match at Washington will make this impossible.

Frank Sagilo, the Cicero fighter, intends to resumt training at the new Madison Square loop gymnasium Monday after a long layoff. . . . Ernie Kirchner, Badt Kissingen, Germany, 160 pounder, is in town. . . . Billy Cepak plans to offer his next show at Cermak park when it becomes warmer. . . . Sam Abruscato and Eddie Long, co-promoters, yesterday postponed their opening show at Western Stadium from May 14 to May 21. . . . Barney Ross and his handlers, Sam Pian and Art Winch, yesterday left for New York, where Barney meets Jimmy McLarnin, with the latter's welterweight crown at stake, May 29.

Paul Dazzo, Chicago junior lightweight, is booked to make a comeback in a ten round match against Moon Mullins, Vincennes, Ind., at Vincennes May 13. . . . Duke Barry says he has been authorized to represent Charley Bedami, lightweight, and Salvatore [Red] Affinito, middleweight, both of New York, in Chicago.

58 Cars Entered in 500 Mile Race at Indianapolis

Indianapolis, Ind., May 2.—(AP)—Fifty-eight cars were entered officially today in the 500 mile automobile race to be run May 30. Entries closed last midnight. Mails from the east and west coasts are expected to bring a few more nominations. The 33 fastest will start.

Fourteen cars are front drives, including one team of ten entered by the veteran motor builder, Harry Miller, Los Angeles, Cal. One car has a four wheel drive.

Racers powered by eight cylinder motors predominate, there being 30, while 27 have four cylinder power plants. One speedster has a 16 cylinder motor.

Drivers for 41 cars have been selected, among them being Louis Meyer, Hunting Park, Cal., twice winner. Wild Bill Cummings, Indianapolis, national driving champion and winner last year, will drive the same four cylinder front drive speedster he used to set a new record of 104.863 miles per hour for the 500 miles.

Wilbur Shaw and Leon Duray, both of Indianapolis; Mauri Rose, Dayton, O.; Deacon Litz, Dubois, Pa.; Russell Snowberger, Philadelphia; Tony Culotta, Kansas City; Frank Brisko, Milwaukee; Dave Evans, Dallas, Tex., and Peter De Paolo, Los Angeles, also will compete.

The veterans Shorty Cantlon, Detroit; Chet Gardner, Long Beach., Cal., and Ralph Hepburn, Bab Stapp and Cliff Bergere, all of Los Angeles, have cars. Among youngsters named are Al Gordon, Rex Mays, Kelly Petillo and Floyd Roberts, all of Los Angeles; Doc Williams, Anderson, Ind., and Overton Snell, St. Louis.

WALTON LEAGUE WILL INSTRUCT NOVICE FISHERS

Junior Commerce Group to Get Instruction.

BY BOB BECKER.

The first fishing school ever conducted by Chicago angling authorities will be started in about a month, according to an announcement made yesterday by the Chicago chapter of the Izaak Walton league. It will be held in coöperation with the Junior Association of Commerce from May 29 to June 3, when a large party of novice fishermen from that organization will go to the Hayward, Wis., lake country to try their luck against muskies and walleyed pike.

The Chicago chapter of the Izaak Walton league has agreed to supply this party with instructorss who will teach not only the important details of casting but also the habits of the various species of fish, the kind of lures game fish will strike, how to locate schools of walleyed pike in lakes, and other facts about angling.

Hold Spring Dinner May 9.

The instructors who will be featured in this school will be announced and introduced at the annual spring dinner which the Chicago chapter of the league will give at the Sherman hotel the night of May 9 as a climax to Izaak Walton league day at the outdoor show opening on the Navy pier next Sunday, May 5. In as much as the season on muskies, walleyes, and trout will open May 15, at least three members of the chapter who are experienced in fishing for these game fish will be on this trip to act as instructors. Lester A. Colby, vice president of the Chicago chapter, has been placed in charge of this fishing school activity.

In starting a school to show men how to fish the local Waltonians have a precedent in the successful casting and fishing classes which several colleges and universities in the United States have established during the last three years.

Malloch Will Be Toastmaster.

Coincident with this statement from the Waltonians regarding their fishing school was the announcement that Douglas Malloch, humorist and poet, will act as toastmaster at the Chicago chapter dinner next Thursday night in the Sherman hotel. This spring get together will be one of the high points in the membership drive which the local Waltonians now are staging.

ARMOUR BASKET, SWIM, MAT MEN GET LETTERS

The Armour Tech Athletic association yesterday presented awards to 35 Armour students. The awards consisted of major and minor letters in basketball, swimming, and wrestling. A. Lauchiskis, J. Ahern, A. Bernstein, and R. Hella were given honor jackets.

Other major award winners were:

A. Christoph, H. Dollenmaier, E. Heike, J. Levy, R. Merz, and R. Warner, basketball; R. Knaus and R. Moore, swimming; E. Kreml, H. Sumner, R. Schmidt, and R. Peterson, wrestling.

Minor letters were awarded to E. Doane and W. O'Brien in basketball; A. Duerrstein, R. Lyford, S. Ruekberg, H. Stehman, and W. Tallafuss in swimming, and G. Bergquist, J. Dunne, R. Kercher, E. Marsiek, and R. Patterson in wrestling.

MILLS, FIREMEN MEET SUNDAY IN DOUBLE HEADER

The Chicago Mills semi-pro baseball team will open its home season by meeting the Chicago Firemen in a double header Sunday afternoon at Mills stadium, Lake street and Kilpatrick avenue. A flag raising ceremony will precede the first contest, which will start at 1:30 o'clock.

Manager Bill Harley of the Mills yesterday announced that another meeting of the Amateur Baseball league will be held tonight at the Mills clubhouse.

41 Win Titles in C. Y. O Juvenile Boxing Tourney

The juvenile boxing champions of the Catholic Youth organization for 1935 were crowned last night at the C. Y. O. center gymnasium before a crowd of 2,300. Twenty-one champions were determined in class A and 20 in class B.

The team trophy, awarded to the parish scoring the most points in the semi-finals and finals, was won by Presentation parish from the west side. Presentation also won the sectional trophy. Other sectional winners were St. Christina's for the south side, St. Andrew's for the north side, and St. Bernardine's for the suburbs.

BILLY WEBB TO BE HONORED AT COMISKEY PARK

"Billy Webb day," in honor of the new White Sox coach, a popular Chicago athlete, will be observed Saturday, May 11, at Comiskey park when the Sox meet Boston, it was announced yesterday by Peter M. Carey of the board of trade, chairman of the committee in charge of the occasion.

The day is being sponsored by Madonna council of the Knights of Columbus and many of Webb's other friends in Chicago.

FRENCH PITCHES CUBS' EASTERN OPENER TODAY

Southpaw Seeks 1st Win in Philadelphia.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., May 2.—The Cubs, when they arived here late this afternoon, had it all figured out just how they are going to take three straight from the Phillies in the series which opens tomorrow.

Tomorrow Larry French will pitch. Larry, making his fourth start in quest of his first Cub victory, will be full of determination. Being a left hander he will have an edge on the Phillies' two most devastating sluggers, those former Cubs, Johnny Moore and Dolph Camilli, each of whom knocked a half dozen homers in the first 10 days of the season.

In today's pep session the team's log was reviewed and it was decided that a duplicate of last season's opener in Philadelphia will be just about right. On May 17 the Cubs came here and defeated the Phillies 10 to 3. The next day the Cubs won, 9 to 8. In the third and final game there was a considerable slip in the plans for the Phillies won, 6 to 5, in eleven innings.

Warneke Goes Tomorrow.

Saturday Lon Warneke will be called upon, Vice President Grimm thinks. Lon, who will be making a try for his fourth victory of the year, doesn't expect the verdict to be as close as the 9 to 8 affair last year.

Sunday Bill Lee will seek his third straight Cub triumph. Bill grabbed his first victory as a reliever for Charley Root in St. Louis, but last Sunday in Cincinnati he went all the way, allowing only five hits. The Cubs made three runs in the ninth to win, 4 to 1.

If Vice President Grimm stands by his plans to use French, Warneke, and Lee against the Phillies it will mean that Tex Carleton will open the series against the Giants next Monday.

When the Cubs peeped into the Giant entry of their 1934 log they shut the book real quick. It showed that the Giants beat them 5 to 2 in the first Cub game at the Polo grounds. The next day it rained and the third day the Giants won, 7 to 1.

Not So Good in Boston.

The Cubs in today pep session didn't care much about reviewing their showing in Boston on their first trip last season. They won the first game, 6 to 4, but lost the next two, 5 to 0 and 5 to 3.

Brooklyn is another place where the Cubs figure they will have to show improvement over their last year's first visit. They lost the first game to Brooklyn, 5 to 1, managed to win the second, 10 to 9, and were back in 12 innings in the third game, 5 to 4.

Brooklyn and Boston, for many years Cub cousins but last year frequently ornery, are the teams the Cubs figure they will have to beat oftener than they did last year. Brooklyn apparently is much stronger than last season, but the Cubs are determined to improve last year's ratio, which gave the Cubs 12 games out of 20, two having been rained out. The need of perking up against Boston is even more urgent. The Braves last year were the only outfit that licked the Cubs in the season series. The Braves won 12 games to 10 for the Cubs.

Though he doesn't admit it, Vice President Grimm probably would be willing to compromise right now on a duplication of last year's season comparison with the Giants. The Cubs beat the Giants 11 games out of 21. The Phillies weren't as soft last year as the Cubs figured they'll be this season. The best the Cubs could do against the Phils was win 13 out of 22.

St. Louis Girl Places 2d in Bowling Meet

She shot 205 in her first game, and came back with a 245, only to run into two splits to get 167 in her third game. Her total of 617 left her eight pins behind the leader, Ella Burmeister of Madison, Wis. Miss Schulte's count of 475 in the team event, 566 in the doubles, and 617 in the singles gave her fifth place in the all events with 1,658.

Alpha Hogman and Georgette Griffin gave Chicago its first leading position in totaling 1076 in the doubles for fourth place. They hit games of 340-336-400 when Hogman scored 148-148-202 and Griffin 192-188-198. Standings:

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 2.—[Special.]—For interviews today The Wake selected Commonwealth and Omaha, two eastern Kentucky Derby candidates which were doing more at the end of last season when distances became longer than in their earlier 2 year old form. Both are in the first flight of choices for this most open of recent Derbies.

Commonwealth is a gelded bay son of Bostonian [Preakness winner of 1927, and later favorite for the Derby of that year, which was taken by his Whitney stablemate, Whiskery] and Etoile d'Or, the latter by Golden Broom. The Golden Brooms, if you remember, are a great mud running family and present indications are for heavy going Saturday.

Perhaps because we are not so well acquainted or perhaps because of his naturally more serious disposition, Commonwealth plunged at once into discussion of his chances without the preliminary airy persiflage of several other interviews.

"I was not a big money winner in 1934, Mr. Wake, because I did not take any of the big value stakes. In fact, the Endurance handicap at Bowie was the only one. My earnings, therefore, were only $5,705 last year. But look at my record: Five victories in eight starts and only twice outside the money.

"I wasn't in those fashionable stakes at Belmont and Saratoga, but by fall I was right, and when I say right I mean right. Take that Endurance handicap at a mile and 70 yards. I won by six lengths from Sound Advice on a slow track, and Boxthorn, so highly regarded for Saturday, was back of him. That was something for a fellow who made his first racing start in a $1,500 selling race, wasn't it?

"So, instead of being a rather indifferent performer from an illustrious family, I became a much talked about young fellow and even was offered a screen test, but I didn't care for that racket, at least not yet.

"In my Chesapeake stakes start, April 20, this year, I was odds-on choice and considerable ado arose from my defeat by Plat Eye and Sun Fairplay. Their margin was less than a length. Personally I was perfectly satisfied with my performance. Plat Eye was pacemaker and lasted long enough to win. I started my run from the head of the stretch, met considerable interference but was going best of the three contenders at the end.

"I rate myself at least equal to Plat Eye and better than Sun Fairplay. I'm inclined to discount Today, the favorite, despite his Wood Memorial victory, because I think that final quarter will bother him. I'm more concerned about Boxthorn, whose workout showed both speed and route going ability, and Nellie Flag, a mudder, if she can go that far. But old Commonwealth will be there stepping those last two furlongs. Jocky G. Wolfe is a strong, hustling boy, the kind under whom I like to run. So that's about all there is to it, Mr. Wake."

Omaha, owned by William Woodward, New York banker, is a son of Gallant Fox, Derby winner in 1930, and Flambino. Omaha traveled in the highest class competition as a 2 year old, but he didn't take many brackets, only one victory in nine starts. But he was second four times in the best company.

Omaha, as he greeted us, appeared to have a bit of the cautious conservatism of his banker owner. After we had conversed for a little while about his past, he loosened up somewhat on the subject of his rivalry with Today, the Whitney favorite.

"Today and I are having a little razzing match all our own," commented Omaha. "It really dates back to our dads, with the inevitable 'So's your old man.' You see, Whichone, Today's dad, had been leading 2 year old winner in 1929, while Gallant Fox, my dad, had been about like myself. Then Gallant Fox won the Derby in which Whichone didn't start, but they met in the Belmont stakes. Dad told me you, Wake, were about the only turf writer there who liked him to win and cashed a bet on him at 8 to 5 with Whichone 3 to 5. Dad won easily.

"Well, I kept reminding Today of that race. That held him for a while, but, of course, he was on top again when he downed Plat Eye and me in the Wood Memorial. I was away back, seventh at the home turn, yet lost by only two lengths after early intereference and crowding in the stretch.

"So we've several bets together on this Derby, a tennis racket, box of golf balls, and a bottle of scotch. I'll beat today sure, and I think I'll take the big race. Probably I'll see you at Arlington and Washington Parks, certainly at Belmont. Good morning."

MICHIGAN STATE NINE DEFEATS NOTRE DAME, 5-4

East Lansing, Mich., May 2.—[Special.] — The Michigan State college baseball team won its fifth successive one run victory today, beating Notre Dame, 5 to 4.

State took a 3 run lead in the first two innings on three hits and two infield errors. They scored one more in the fourth and again in the sixth with two hits and a walk.

Notre Dame scored its first run in the seventh, after filling the bases with none out. In the eighth they drove across three more on four hits, one a triple by Dunn, together with two State errors.

Score:

Notre Dame	000 000 130—4	10	3
Michigan State	120 101 00*—5	9	3

Michigan Tennis Team Defeats Western State

Kalamazoo, Mich., May 2. — [Special.]—Michigan defeated the Western State Teachers tennis team today, 5-2, winning four singles and one doubles match. Fischer, Western, won the only singles for the Hilltoppers when he defeated Capt. Seigel in straight sets.

Maroons Play Regular Game This Afternoon

Spring football practice at the University of Chicago will be concluded this afternoon with the annual game between two picked squads, which begins at 4:30 o'clock on the practice field. Alumni, who have been making a formal occasion of the last practice in recent years, have designated this year's party as the annual alumni club rally and red hunt, because of recent publicity accorded the university.

Coach Clark Shaughnessy, despite the fact he limited the spring training to 23 sessions, believes the squad has made satisfactory progress.

Today's preview of the 1935 team will be lacking two important men, Capt. Jay Berwanger and Ned Bartlett, half backs, who will be held out to avoid injury.

Maroons Will Be '35 Maroons.

The squad has been divided into two groups, the Maroons and the Whites, with the Maroons being represented by what probably will turn out to be next autumn's first-string line. The Whites will have the stronger back field. All but five of the 22 starting men are veterans. The newcomers are Fred Lehnhart and Omar Fareed in the Maroon back field, and Andy Hoyt, George Antonic, and Bud Jankowski in the White line.

What! No Vodka?

Charles G. Higgins, former Maroon football captain and president of the Chicago Alumni club, has asked the alumni to bring their own clubs, tear gas, bloodhounds, red bait and traps for the red hunt.

A dinner for alumni, undergraduates, the football squad and pre-freshmen, which will be held in the Burton court dining room at 6:30 o'clock, is advertised as being served without vodka, caviar or black bread. Harry Swanson will give the report of the hunt and award of bounties. President Robert M. Hutchins will attend the dinner.

Starting lineups:

CHICAGOANS WILL USE 12 SPECIALS FOR DERBY WEEK

24 Other Trains to Come from All Over Country.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 2.—Thirty-six special trains will pour Derby visitors into Louisville tomorrow and Saturday. A dozen of them will come from Chicago. Six will arrive over the Pennsylvania Lines, one over the Big Four, and the other five on the Monon. Three specials are coming from Washington, two from New York, two from Cincinnati, two from Memphis, two from Fulton, Ky.; two from Chattanooga, two from Atlanta, and one each from Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Columbus, St. Louis, Paducah, Knoxville, Nashville, and New Orleans.

Colonel Miss Fannie Hurst, the novelist, Colonel Rudy Vallee, the orchestra leader, and Colonel Ed Fleming, the coal baron of Chicago, were among the first colonels to arrive for the international convention of Kentucky Colonels which opens tomorrow. Colonels Jean Harlow and Mae West are to drive over early tomorrow from French Lick Springs, according to word passed out this afternoon.

Colonel James J. Farley, the postmaster general, is due to arrive before the Colonels' association nominating committee goes into session. He has somebody in mind for president.

Stuyvesant Peabody, president of the Lincoln Fields Jocky club, and Mrs. Peabody were Derby arrivals. Stuyvesant Jr. also came along.

Albert Sabath, president of the Hawthorne track in Chicago, announced today that William Shelly, veteran Kentucky official, has been appointed racing secretary at Hawthorne.

An out of town newspaper man became ill early last night and was unable to work on his story. He woke up about 2 a. m. and decided he could probably dictate it even though he was too shaky to type it himself. So he called a stenographer to his room and was practically finished with his article when the phone rang. —xx—xx!!

It was the missus. The stenographer had answered the phone.

Derby Field Is Cut to 17; Mud Predicted

there will be one withdrawal. Hal Price Headley is not certain he will send Whopper to the post. "This big colt needs a strong rider and so far I haven't been able to secure the services of such a boy," he said tonight.

There's still talk around that McCarthy, the Louisiana Derby winner, and Joseph J. G. will be in the march to the post. There really isn't any reason why either should be a starter. McCarthy is here all right and breezed over the Derby course this morning. Joseph J. G. at last reports was having some trouble getting together the car fare that would bring him from Aurora to Churchill Downs.

Louisville was gradually being transformed into true type today and it will reach the peak in that respect early tomorrow with the arrival of more than a dozen special trains, a score of planes, and hundreds of motor caravans.

Kentucky Colonels to Meet.

There was nothing more exciting than a horse show on tonight's carnival program, but the biggest noise of the week will come tomorrow when the International Association of Kentucky Colonels will gather here for its annual convention.

Officials of the International association surveyed the infield at Churchill Downs this afternoon and came to the conclusion that it wasn't a large enough meeting place for the Colonels. Now the question is, where will they meet?

Even the most successful race track plungers of the country are not willing to make a prediction as to the post time favorite.

One thing is certain, the scrap for that post of honor is going to be close between Today, Boxthorn, and Nellie Flag. If the track is sloppy many believe Nellie Flag will muster the most backers.

MR. FARLEY HAS QUINELLA DOPED OUT; IT'S SIMPLE

At Least, It Was Easy Down at New Orleans.

Jim Farley, track handicapper and announcer at the Aurora track, is waiting for the day the No. 1 and No. 2 horses on the program finish first and second in the final race of the day for honors in the quinella. He's wondering if he will get as big a kick out of it as he did one day at the recent Fair Grounds meeting in New Orleans. On that day a buxom matron of foreign lineage was one of the few who had paired the 1 and 2 horses in the quinella.

"Did you have a tip?" a friend was heard to ask as they headed for the payoff window.

"Sure, the man on the horn told everybody to bet the first and second horses, so I did," she replied.

Charley McLennan, rasing secretary at Washington Park, has received entries from numerous big eastern stables for the stake events at Homewood. Mort Shaw, supervisor of the mutuel department, also is here examing the new totalizer. Both will leave tonight for Louisville and the Kentucky Derby.

Eddie W. [Sherif] Stopps, boss of the Aurora press box, has come up with his win, place, and show selections for the Kentucky Derby. Here they are: Boxthorn, Nellie Flag and Today.

There was no quinella yesterday, for when Transcall was scratched it reduced the field in the last race to seven horses. Eight must start in quinella races.

Jiggers! Granite Son is stabled at Aurora and will turn up in the entries one of these days. Owned by Jack Cudahy, Chicago prep school student, Granite Son paid $432, longest odds of the Chicago season, last year at Lincoln Fields.

GIBBONS WHIPS DUKELSKY EASILY IN TEN ROUNDS

St. Paul, Minn., May 2.—(AP)—Jack Gibbons, St. Paul middleweight, tonight won an easy victory over Solly Dukelsky, Chicago, in 10 rounds. Gibbons weighed 160½ and Dukelsky, 161¾.

Getting the referee's verdict, Gibbons, son of Phantom Mike Gibbons, won eight of the ten rounds. The other two were even.

U Demon Comes Home at Pimlico; Pays $157.40

Pimlico, Md., May 2.—(AP)—U Demon, at 76 to 1, took the fifth race here today to pay $157.40 for a $2 ticket.

HAROLD TEEN—DRIVEN TO DESPERATE MEASURES

KILLER OF OWN CHILDREN HELD MAD; COMMITTED

William Gardner Sent to State Hospital.

CRIMINAL COURT.

WALTER CAIRNS, manslaughter, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Denis E. Sullivan.

STERLING FERGUSON, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge William V. Brothers.

In a short hearing yesterday before a jury and Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court, William Gardner, 56 years old, a bank clerk, who on April 22 shot and killed two of his three children, was declared insane. Chief Justice Sullivan at once committed him to the Illinois Security hospital at Menard.

Gardner appeared bewildered at the proceedings. He heard Dr. Harry R. Hoffman, head of the Criminal court behavior clinic, and Dr. Francis J. Gerty of the Psychopathic hospital testify that their examinations showed him to be insane.

Questions the Court.

As he was being led away after the jury's verdict he stopped before Chief Justice Sullivan and said: "Your honor, will you tell me where I stand? I don't quite get it."

The chief justice told him that he was being sent to a mental institution that was modern, where he would receive cares that would give him a new "slant on life." He explained that if Gardner recovered, he would be returned for trial on a murder indictment, but that if he were insane at the time of the crime he had a perfect defense.

Killed Two Children.

Gardner shot and killed his daughter, Rita, 20 years old, and his son, Donald, 14 years old, and wounded another son, Kenneth, 17 years old, in their home at 447 North Spring avenue, La Grange Park.

He explained later that he thought they had inherited his insanity and that he was also distracted by the illness of himself and his wife, Elsa.

MOTHER OF TWO POLICEMEN DIES, AGED 71 YEARS

Mrs. Anne Cunningham, 71 years old, mother of Sergt. John T. Cunningham of the Sheffield avenue police and of Policeman William Cunningham of the Des Plaines street station, died of pneumonia yesterday in her home at 1526 North Lorel avenue.

Mrs. Cunningham was born in County Mayo, Ireland, and came to the United tSates when she was 7 years old. She was the widow of James Cunningham, a wagon builder.

In addition to Sergt. Cunningham and Policeman Cunningham, she is survived by one other son, James of Pasadena, Cal., and three daughters, Miss Anne Cunningham, Mrs. Mary Bowman, and Sister Mary Clarette of the Sisters of Charity of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

Funeral services will be Monday at 9:30 a. m. at St. Peter Canisus church, 5001 West North avenue. Burial will be in Mount Carmel cemetery.

J. K. Armsby, 68, Founder of Packing Concern, Dies

Ross, Cal., May 2.—(AP)—J. K. Armsby, 68, founder of the California Packing corporation and its president for many years, died today of pneumonia. Armsby was born in Beloit, Wis., and passed most of his early years in Illinois. Burial will be in Rosehill cemetery, Chicago.

MOVE TO OBTAIN ESTATE OF CZAR HELD BY BANKS

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—More than six years after he had announced he would start an action to recover for Mme. Anastasia Tchaikowsky, who says she is the Grand Duchess Anastasia of Russia, all property and funds of the late Czar Nicholas II. in this country, Edward H. Fallows today launched his court battle.

He served notice of his appearance as counsel for Mme. Tchaikowsky with Public Administrator James E. Egan, and requested him to sequester all property of the late czar now in his hands, and also any property which later might come under his jurisdiction. A large part of the late Russian ruler's foreign estate, estimated at between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000, is understood to be held by local banks.

Mr. Fallows said after a six year investigation conducted by him he was satisfied Mme. Tchaikowsky, who came to this country as the guest of Mrs. William B. Leeds, the former Princess Xenia of Greece, in 1928, was really the grand duchess.

THRONG MOURNS AT LAST RITES FOR PERROT BOY

Amid flowers and in the presence of hundreds of persons, funeral services were held in the chapel at 2114 Irving Park boulevard yesterday for Richard Max Perrot, 4 years old, 4110 North Maplewood avenue. A large procession followed the body to the Irving Park Boulevard cemetery.

The boy's body was found in the Chicago river at Western and Belmont avenues early this week. He had been missing since April 4 and police had searched the city in the belief that he had been kidnaped.

A few hours before the funeral the federal grand jury returned, before Judge John P. Barnes, an indictment charging Leo Magnus, 17 years old, with sending threatening letters through the mails to the Perrot boy's father, Max. Magnus admitted writing two "ransom" letters demanding $150. He was seized two weeks ago.

Eugene J. Chapin Dies; Former Chicago Resident

Los Angeles, Cal., May 2.—[Special.]—Eugene J. Chapin, former vice president of the Chicago Wheel company, died today at St. Ann sanitarium after a long illness. He was 90 years old. Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow at Pierce Brothers' chapel. Mr. Chapin was born in West Roxbury, Mass. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Victoria Chapin.

START PROCESS TO EXTRADITE MARTIN INSULL

Extradition of Martin Insull from Canada to stand trial in the federal court in Chicago on June 4, for violation of the bankruptcy act, was ordered yesterday by the department of justice in Washington. His co-defendants will be his elder brother, Samuel Insull, and eight other former associates.

Attorney General Homer Cummings announced that the department of justice had asked the state department to proceed with the extradition immediately and that no delay in Insull's return is expected since the first extradition proceedings against Insull in the Canadian courts had cleared up all legal questions.

The trial date was set on Wednesday by Judge James H. Wilkerson in the federal court here.

The Insull brothers and their eight former associates are charged in the case with transferring assets of the Corporation Securities company in 1932 while knowing the concern was insolvent.

G. W. Ritter, Advertising Expert, Dies in Hotel

George W. Ritter, 63 years old, 2634 North Francisco avenue, furniture dealer and advertising expert, died yesterday in a hotel room at Rock Island of heart disease. He is survived by the widow and six children. Mr. Ritter, a native of Rock Island, formerly had offices in the Transportation building and at the Furniture Mart in Chicago, under the name of George W. Ritter company. He was credited with having published one of the first house organs in the history of American business. He started a magazine entitled "Buck Shot" while handling the advertising for the Buck Stove and Range company of St. Louis in 1900.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

They call Max Baer the problem child of radio. While the director tries to keep rehersals on a serious plane Max is usually romping all over the studio. This clowning is always a big problem in whipping a new Baer show into shape. At one rehersal recently Maxie sailed into the studio, picked up the director and smacked him on both cheeks. Max, of course, was just acting like a big Newfoundland puppy. But another director had to be called in to finish the job.

They have learned not to drill Max too much. "We stop rehersing Baer before he feels he has completely mastered the part," Jean Grombach, his radio manager, explained. "Unless we do, he gets overconfident and just coasts through a broadcast. You have to keep Maxie thinking he has a tough job ahead."

Max is no Lionel Barrymore, you will agree if you heard him in the premier of "Lucky Smith" last Monday. But he probably has the best voice of any prize fighter to date. It's full and hearty. His writers know his limitations, so they give him no long lines, no long words, and no situations requiring any great display of emotion. He cannot do characterizations well. Thus as Lucky Smith he sounds exactly like Maxie Baer, instead of a detective.

As Lucky Smith Maxie gets no studio audience. Facing a couple of hundred onlookers—and possibly good looking girls among them—Max might be tempted to go into an act. And funny business for the studio audience would merely be bewildering for radio listeners.

Glenn Lee and his orchestra, who performed at Hollywood at the Fair, are to take over the Terrace Garden when Stan Myers leaves there on June 5. Lee and his lads have been performing in the south and will play a Cincinnati engagement before coming here. They'll have an NBC line in the loop.

Leonard Keller and his orchestra will supplant Herbie Kay on the Sunday morning WBBM Gloom Dodgers program beginning May 12. Keller, a violinist, known as the Tone Poet, is playing an engagement at the Bismarck and on NBC. The Keller band will be aided by the Merriemen, male octet; Jimmy Hatton, vocalist, who is associated with the vocal trio, "Betty, Jean, and Jim," heard Saturday mornings on W-G-N's House Party. This trio will also join the Gloom Dodgers.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vim

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints a day and get rid of more than 3 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . an old prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes. Get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

SAT ON, BEATEN IN KEY SEARCH; WARANTS FOR 2

Warants for the arrest of John Case, nephew of the late Elmer G. Case, president of the Case-Moody Pie corporation, and one "John Doe," described as sales manager for the pie company, were issued yesterday by Municipal Judge Edgar A. Jonas in the Women's court.

The complainant is Frank M. Smith, 59 years old, of the Newberry hotel, 817 North Dearborn street. He alleges that on April 25 Case, "Doe" and Mrs. Doris Case, widow of Elmer Case, visited his room in search of a key. Failing to find the key, Smith charges, Case and "Doe" sat on Smith while Mrs. Case struck him.

Smith told Judge Jonas that the key was for a flour mill in Morris, Ill., owned by Mrs. Case, but on which Smith claims to hold an option. He is negotiating to sell the flour mill, he said.

U. S. GOLD STOCK HITS NEW PEAK; USE MORE MONEY

But Credit Extended by Reserve Shrinks.

Monetary gold stocks of the United States moved to a new high level of $8,721,000,000 last week through an increase of $20,000,000, the weekly bank statistics, issued yesterday, disclose. Money in circulation rose $30,000,000, due to requirements in connection with the payment of month-end obligations.

The treasury's "free gold" supply was left untouched, the figures indicated, as the rise in gold was matched by a corresponding increase in gold certificates.

The daily average volume of federal reserve credit outstanding during the week ended May 1 was $2,468,000,000, a decrease of $9,000,000 from the preceding weeks and $22,000,000 below the corresponding week of 1934.

Reserve Credit Increases.

Total reserve credit increased $11,000,000 to $2,463,000,000. This rise corresponded to the upturn in money in circulation, an increase of $2,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and a decrease of $7,000,000 in treasury and national bank currency. This was offset in part by the gain in gold stocks and a drop of $7,000,000 in nonmember bank deposits and other federal reserve accounts.

Relatively small changes were shown in business credit. Reserve balances of member banks rose only $2,000,000, but this was sufficient to establish a new high at $4,721,000,000. However, excess reserves were estimated to have declined to $2,250,000,000, compared with about $2,260,000,000 last week.

An increase of $64,000,000 in holdings of United States treasury notes was offset by decreases of $36,000,000 in government bonds and $28,000,000 in treasury bonds.

Deposits Climb in Chicago.

Sharp upturns in gross and individual deposits of Chicago member banks were reported, gross rising $107,000,000 and the individual account gaining $97,000,000. The bulk of the improvement resulted from an increase of $76,000,000 in funds due to other banks and a rise of $38,000,000 in balances with the federal reserve system.

Gross deposits rose $57,000,000 in New York and individual gained $14,000,000.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP)—Print cloths today sold in second hands at 6⅛ cents per yard, ⅛ of a cent lower, and were available in first hands late in the day at the lower price. Finished cottons ruled quiet. Rayon yarns for lining purposes were purchased in moderate lots. Carpet and rug openings for the new season will take place Aug. 5. Silks were in light demand. Worsted dress goods continued quiet.

HIDE FUTURES.

Trade in hide futures at New York yesterday was not large and with scattered commission house selling, influenced to some extent by the action of grains, prices declined and closed with net losses of 3 to 10 points. Sales were 42 lots, or 2,520,000 lbs. Closing bids in cents per pound: June, 9.95c; September, 10.30c; December, 10.60c; March, 10.88c.

CHICAGO TRADE LEADERS FIGHT FIVE NEW BILLS

Request Careful Study of Banking Plans.

Representatives of the Chicago Association of Commerce who are in Washington, D. C., to attend the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, will advise Illinois congressmen and administration leaders to defeat five important measures now before congress. They have urged the passage of four others.

With respect to the banking legislation now before congress, the Chicago business leaders recommend that before the enactment of the law which will effect important changes in the banking system, a commission be created to make a careful study of the situation.

Five Measures Opposed.

The trade leaders are opposed to the following measures:

Guffey bill—The association asserts that this bill would set up a national bituminous coal commission for federal control and regulation of the bituminous coal industry, thereby injecting the government into the management of a business which should be in private hands.

AAA amendments—The association says pending amendments threaten the welfare of agriculture and industry by giving the secretary of agriculture broad powers over a large part of agriculture and industry.

Government ownership and operation of the railroads—The group says it is flatly opposed to this, holding that the Association of American Railroads is best qualified to work out the problems of the carriers.

Black thirty-hour bill—Passage of this bill would impose drastic burdens on industry, thereby adding to unemployment and retarding industry.

Wagner trades disputes bill—This measure would serve to encourage rather than compose disputes between employers and labor.

Views on Other Bills.

Great Lakes Naval Training station—Favor reopening the station.

Chanute field, Rantoul, Ill.—The association says transfer to some other location—urged in some quarters—would cost not less than $1,500,000 for new buildings and $350,000 to cover transfer expenses.

Subversive activities—The association recommends the passage of legislation which would curb the activities of persons seeking to overthrow the American government by violence or indulging in propaganda designed to accomplish this.

Pettengill long and short haul bill—Holds that railroads and industries in the middle west are entitled to the relief which passage of the bill would afford.

PRICES OF BUTTER, EGGS, AND POTATOES ARE LOWER

Egg futures declined fractionally early yesterday in sympathy with a drop of ¼ to ½ cent per dozen in the spot market only to rally later on a resumption of new buying. The close was ⅛ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower, the October delivery showing the advance. The into storage movement continues to run below that of last year.

Weakness in the spot butter market, with prices off 1 to 1¾ cents per pound, led to free selling of futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange, with the close ¼ cent lower. A heavy into storage movement was reported, with stocks now almost on a par with those of a year ago. Cheese futures were steady, and potatoes 10 cents per 100 pounds lower. Sales of butter futures were 30 cars, eggs 181 cars, cheese 2 cars, and potatoes 3 cars. Prices follow:

ALL LIVE STOCK PRICES NERVOUS AS MEATS FALL

All live stock markets displayed nervousness yesterday as wholesale meat prices fell lower in the face of reduced volume. A smaller number of animals stimulated early buying in some classes of hogs and cattle, but most sales in the final rounds were made at price concessions.

Beef yesterday sold steady to $1 lower at distributing points. Veal and pork was steady to $1 lower, but lamb sold steady to 50 cents higher, the first rise since the recent sharp slump.

A "catch-as-catch-can" trade developed for steers after a limited early demand for well-finished stock had been satisfied at stronger rates. A fair portion of holdovers went over again unsold on unsatisfactory bids.

Butcher stock showed the most unevenness, hefers bringing steady to 25 cents higher prices, while cows were mostly weak to lower.

Yesterday's highest sale was $15 on a string of 1,169 pound steers, with very few over $13.50. Most steers brought $9 to $13.10, plain kinds ranging to $7.

Hogs shared the unevenness, selling strong to 15 cents higher for a time early, with later sales weak to slightly lower. Demand converged in the selected grades of 200 to 260 pound butchers. Early advances more than offset the later losses, resulting in a 5 cents higher average price at $11.25, tax included. The top was $11.50.

Lambs slumped 25 to 50 cents, with the close the lowest spot for more than four months. Only one load reached yesterday's $8.15 top.

RAW SILK.

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP)—SILK—Raw futures closed steady, ½c lower to ½c higher. Sales, 470 bales. May, $1.31 per lb; July, $1.31 bid; December, $1.30. CONGRESS HOTEL FILES BILL FOR REORGANIZATION

Action Is Described as Protective Move.

The Congress Hotel company yesterday filed a voluntary petition for reorganization under section 77B of the bankruptcy law to avoid any possible creditor suits for ordinary bankruptcy receivership.

The balance sheet on March 31 last showed assets of $8,272,082, or $4,477,200 in excess of liabilities. John Burke, vice president and managing director of the hotel, said the action in Federal Judge Philip Sullivan's court was taken to "conserve the best interest of all concerned until pending negotiations for refinancing have been completed."

Reports Condition Good.

Burke said that the property is in good physical and financial condition, and is the only large hotel in the country without either mortgage or funded debts, but has not yet been able to obtain a satisfactory mortgage loan to pay accrued and unpaid taxes and current bills. Negotiations are under way, however, for a million dollar loan which "will take care of the matter amply," according to Burke.

Four applications for a county tax receivership are pending in Circuit court, the reorganization petition states. The balance sheet shows $212,503 reserved for taxes not yet billed and a total of $937,879 in current and accrued liabilities.

Figures on Assets.

Current working assets are placed at $562,300, and principal assets are the hotel building, lands, leaseholds, and fixtures which are valued at $7,659,468. Cash is placed at $23,853.

After the mortgage loan is obtained, Burke said, the hotel expects to be able to continue functioning easily on its own momentum. The present action, he added, is designed only to preserve the property and see that all creditors are paid dollar for dollar on an equal basis.

CLOSED BANK'S CASH GAINS; MAY PAY DEPOSITORS

Receipts of $188,000 in the first three months of 1935 were reported yesterday by the closed Washington Park National bank, raising total cash on hand to $454,700 and indicating further payment to depositors soon.

The receivership, under W. J. Schechter, has returned $3,685,300, or 55 per cent, to depositors so far, $335,000 being required for a 5 per cent disbursement. Remaining assets carried on the books at $3,737,389 are estimated to yield only $570,838 cash, or approximately 15 cents on the dollar. This, if realized, together with present cash, would indicate 15 per cent more to depositors when liquidation is completed, depending on unproved and unpaid claims of $71,300.

COTTON CLOSES IRREGULAR AFTER ERRATIC MOVEMENTS

Cotton markets fluctuated in an erratic manner yesterday, new crop months declining early on scattered liquidation induced by the weakness in silver, while trade buying held the old crop deliveries close to Wednesday's finish. Toward the last the distant months rallied sharply and closed at the top, short covering being a factor. Final trades in Chicago were 2 points lower to 7 points higher, while other markets were 1 point lower to 7 points higher. Spot cotton was unchanged to 10 points higher, with New Orleans 12.25 cents, Houston and Galveston 12.20 cents, and New York 12.15 cents per pound. Prices, in cents, per pound, follow:

ANNOUNCE FIRST SKYSCRAPER IN LOOP SINCE 1931

15 Story Edifice for Jackson-La Salle.

BY AL CHASE.

Construction of the first loop skyscraper since the Field building was started in 1931 was announced yesterday for the south side of Jackson boulevard, between La Salle and Clark streets. Northwestern university, owner of the thirteen story Austin building, will wreck that ancient structure and erect a fifteen story office building, to cost $1,500,000. It will have foundations capable of carrying six additional stories. Work is scheduled to start May 1, 1936, with completion set for one year later.

Negotiations practically have been concluded between the trustees of Northwestern university and the boards of directors of the Continental Casualty company and the Continental Assurance company of Chicago whereby the two concerns will lease ten entire floors for a twenty year term. The casualty company will occupy six stories and the assurance company four floors, extending from the third to the thirteenth, inclusive, comprising 100,000 square feet.

Name Building for Company.

Carroll H. Sudler Jr. of Sudler & Co. conducted all the negotiations for the building project, and it is understood that his firm will act as renting agents for Northwestern university. The building will be named after one of the leasing companies, it is understood.

Wreckers will start tearing down the present old Austin building on May 1, 1936. Contracts for the new structure are to be awarded to the R. C. Wieboldt company. Holabird & Root have been retained as architects.

The Austin building, designed by the late D. H. Burnham, was erected in 1884. For twenty-five or thirty years the Western Union Telegraph company occupied several floors, and the building was named for it. A few years ago F. C. Austin purchased it and rechristened it the Austin building. When he died, three or four years ago, he bequeathed the property to Northwestern university.

One of Pioneer Edifices.

It is one of Chicago's pioneer tall buildings, although it was originally only nine stories high. Later four more floors were added, the five foot thick walls being capable of carrying the additional stories.

The new building will have a Jackson boulevard frontage of 216 feet and will face fifty feet on both Clark and La Salle streets. As there is a low building on the south, it will have light on all sides. The exterior walls will be of stone.

The first floor will be used for shops, the second for brokers' offices, and the next ten floors by the lessees. The upper three floors will be rented to various concerns.

The Continental Casualty company and the Continental Assurance company, of which H. A. Behrens is president, have been in the Standard Oil building, 910 South Michigan avenue, for the last two decades. They have 1,000 employés.

DOUGLAS CALLS 'TINKERING' PERIL TO CAPITALISM

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—Lewis W. Douglas, who resigned last September as President Roosevelt's budget director, declared here today at the Bankers club that government interference was threatening the existence of the capitalistic system.

Douglas traced the growth of government interference during the last fifteen years. "Irresponsible spending," he said, "is the creature of the present administration alone." It was on this issue that he is understood to have split with President Roosevelt.

"This deliberate policy of spending," said Douglas, "has no foundation in our past fiscal history. It is impossible for those who understand the workings of the economic system to accept responsibility for it.

"Expedients have intensified, and unless we raise our voices to object to more and more assumption by government of the responsibilities of the free individual, we face a destruction of the competitive effort which makes capitalism workable as a prime social system, under which more wealth has been generally distributed than under any other system man has been able to devise.

"Now the thing we are facing raises the question: Do we propose to continue being a free people or do we propose to accept more and more control?"

PANIC FOLLOWS DEVALUATION OF DANZIG'S MONEY

FREE CITY OF DANZIG, May 2.—(AP)—Financial panic hit this city today when the population learned the gulden had been devalued by 42.37 per cent. Runs on banks and stores began immediately, paralyzing normal activity. A majority of stores shut their doors in the afternoon, but the banks kept open until the regular closing time.

Several massmeetings were held by Nazi leaders to calm angered citizens with assurances that the gulden would be in a better position as a result of devalution, ordered by the senate, which has a Nazi majority.

The volkstag held a hurried special session this afternoon and the senate named a price commissioner to keep prices from rising. Fears of inflation and soaring prices sent inhabitants to shops to lay in stocks of clothing and household supplies.

There was a violent reaction among anti-Nazis, who charged that extravagant spending by the senate drove the city's finances into a desperate condition and that the budget was kept secret.

NEW OFFICE BLOCK FOR LOOP

Warns Silver Plan Weakens Nation's Money

BY HOWARD WOOD.

How the administration's scheme of adding silver to the gold reserves of United States currency not only fails to strengthen the metallic backing of the dollar but actually weakens it is explained in the current issue of the monthly bulletin of the National City Bank of New York.

Silver at $1.29 an ounce is not worth $1.29 an ounce but, like paper money, is something that has to be supported by the treasury's gold reserves.

The principal objection to the exchange of part of our gold reserves for the silver bought in foreign countries at inflated prices, says the bank, lies in the assumption that silver at $1.29 an ounce constitutes a valid substitute for gold as backing for the currency.

"The fact is," the bulletin points out, "that silver at this coinage ratio is merely another form of credit currency which circulates at full face value solely by reason of the policy of the United States to maintain all forms of money at par by making them freely interchangeable one with another and with gold. It cannot itself constitute reserve.

"To the extent, therefore, that the United States goes ahead and erects a credit structure based on any large proportion of silver valued at $1.29 an ounce or higher it will be doing so upon highly insecure foundations.

"In case of a demand for redemption of the currency it would be utterly impossible to realize on these silver stocks at anything like these inflated values, if, indeed, it would be politically feasible for the treasury to sell silver at all."

In exchanging gold for silver, as has already been done by the treasury in transactions with Mexico, the United States is giving one metal worth its full quoted value in exchange for a cheaper metal at a fictitious high price.

The true test of the value of silver would come only when the treasury should try to sell some of this metal instead of buying it.

Bank Solves Interest Problem; Pays Nothing on Savings.

The ultimate in low interest rates has been arrived at in Wichita, where the First National bank of that city has informed depositors that beginning June 1, it will no longer pay any interest whatsoever on savings.

In explanation of its action the bank tells its depositors:

"We have always felt that the first principle of sound banking practice was the safety of the depositors' funds. This cannot be assured in any other way than their investment in the soundest securities and because our deposits are payable on short notice we have never felt justified in making long term investments. In carrying out this policy we have a large part of our deposits invested in short term government securities.

"It is not now possible to purchase a government security maturing within one year which will yield as much as ¼ of 1 per cent annual interest. It is not now posible to purchase a government security maturing within three years which will net 1 per cent annual interest.

"The present demand for loans from financially responsible individuals, corporations, and firms—which has always been the source of our greatest investment—is negligible. This is not a local condition. It is nationwide and, so far as we are able to ascertain, is worldwide."

The Wichita bank has assets totaling more than 27 millions and deposits of more than 23 millions. It has been in business since 1876.

Business Leaders Decide to Fight New Deal Policies.

The sharp criticism of New Deal policies affecting business and finance which is being freely voiced at the convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce in Washington marks a definite change in the attitude of that organization.

Last December when the abortive meeting of leading industrialists was held at White Sulphur Spring, W. Va., in an attempt to present the administration with a legislative program behind which business could stand unitedly, the delegates representing the Chamber of Commerce favored a conciliatory stand. Other delegates, representing the National Association of Manufacturers, were in favor of belligerently opposing New Deal measures which were expected to have an adverse effect upon business. Neither group won. The program finally evolved was a compromise—neither flesh, fowl nor good red herring.

Now the Chamber of Commerce appears to have gone over to the policy of the manufacturers. Instead of the rapprochement between the administration and business which leaders of the Chamber of Commerce predicted last December, the members of that organization have seen the administration approve a stricter NRA, further increase in the federal debt, a bill to abolish utility holding companies, a bill to drain corporate profits and wages of labor to finance unemployment insurance, a bill to put the politicians in complete control of banks, and other similar measures. Their disillusionment is now pretty complete.

'L' AND BUS LINES REPORT APRIL TRAFIC EXCEEDS LAST YEAR

Passenger trafic on two of Chicago's transportation systems showed gains during April over a year ago, according to a canvass made yesterday. There was a diverse trend in the marginal gains, however, as compared with those shown during the preceding month.

The Chicago Rapid Transit company reported an increase of about 4 per cent in the number of passengers carried during the month as compared with April, 1934. This was a larger marginal gain than was shown in March, trafic at that time being 3.11 per cent above a year ago.

A gain of only 1.9 per cent was shown in trafic of the Chicago Motor Coach company over April, last year, compared with an increase of 3.08 per cent in March over a year ago.

Trafic figures for the Chicago Surface Lines will not be available for several days due to the installation of new operations, it was stated.

REGULAR STOCK FAVORITES GAIN AS SILVERS EASE

Mine Shares Regain Most of Decline.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 2.—Persistent buying in a group of old line trading favorites like Chrysler, Westinghouse, American Telephone, and du Pont offset the effect of some early softness in silver shares on the stock exchange today and made for a rather forward looking market, although net gains and losses were about evenly divided at the close. Railroad issues finished on the plus side of the tally sheet, the utilities registered fractional improvements, and the aviations and oils edged ahead on slightly better volume.

Steels were weak in the early dealings, United States Steel common breaking below 31, its lowest price in several weeks, but recovered in the afternoon.

Chrysler Active and Higher.

Chrysler was one of the outstanding features of the day, rising about two points on unusually heavy demand attributed to the company's better than expected showing for the first quarter. General Motors was held down by spreading labor troubles in its plants, but attracted enough support to finish the day higher by a small fraction. Other shares of the group did little or nothing.

The fresh burst of selling in the mining group was precipitated by a break in silver prices. United States Smelting broke nearly 4 points before finding its bearings, and American Smelting, Howe Sound, and Cerro de Pasco gave up 1 to about 2 points each. In the afternoon, however, the entire group braced up and half or more of the early losses was restored.

Preferred Issues Gain.

Several preferred issues came in for increased interest, especially McCrory Stores which spurted nearly ten points.

Union Pacific set the pace for the rail group rising more than a point. Delaware and Hudson and Atchison made almost as good a showing and fractional gains were made by Pennsylvania, New York Central, Illinois Central, and others.

Power and light shares were quiet, but the group managed to hold firm most of the time. Consolidated Gas and Public Service attracted demand. American Telephone rose nearly two points in trading that spurted impressively at times.

Trading in the alcohol department was mixed. National Distillers sold to a new low for the year before meeting support, but Schenley was strong and active throughout the session.

BANK CLEARINGS FOR WEEK REACH HIGH THIS YEAR

New York, May 2.—(AP)—Bank clearings for last week reached a new high for the year at $6,011,214,000, Dun and Bradstreet reported today. Clearances were $1,352,609,000 greater than in the preceding week and compared with $5,615,558,000 for the corresponding period in 1934.

Part of the gain was attributed to the heavy settlements incident to the opening of the new month, but it was pointed out that this year only one day of these settlements was included as against two days last year.

New York clearings totaled $4,211,571,000, a gain of 5.7 per cent over last year. The aggregate for outside centers was $1,799,643,000, an increase of 10.4 per cent. Chicago clearings were $256,300,000, against $230,400,000 last year.

Every reporting city showed an increase, and the largest gains were shown at Detroit, Cincinnati, Boston, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, St. Louis, and Kansas City.

NEW B. & O. TRAIN CLIPS CHICAGO TO ST. LOUIS TIME

The new streamlined train which the Baltimore and Ohio railroad will put into high speed service in the near future was given a preliminary workout over the tracks of the Alton railroad yesterday.

Leaving St. Louis at 12:01 p. m., daylight saving time, the train arrived at the Grand Central station here at 5:13 p. m., making the run in 5 hours 12 minutes, compared with the present fastest passenger runs of 6 hours 30 minutes. Drawn by a steam locomotive, it was stated no attempt was made for a speed record, it being desired to give the train a workout.

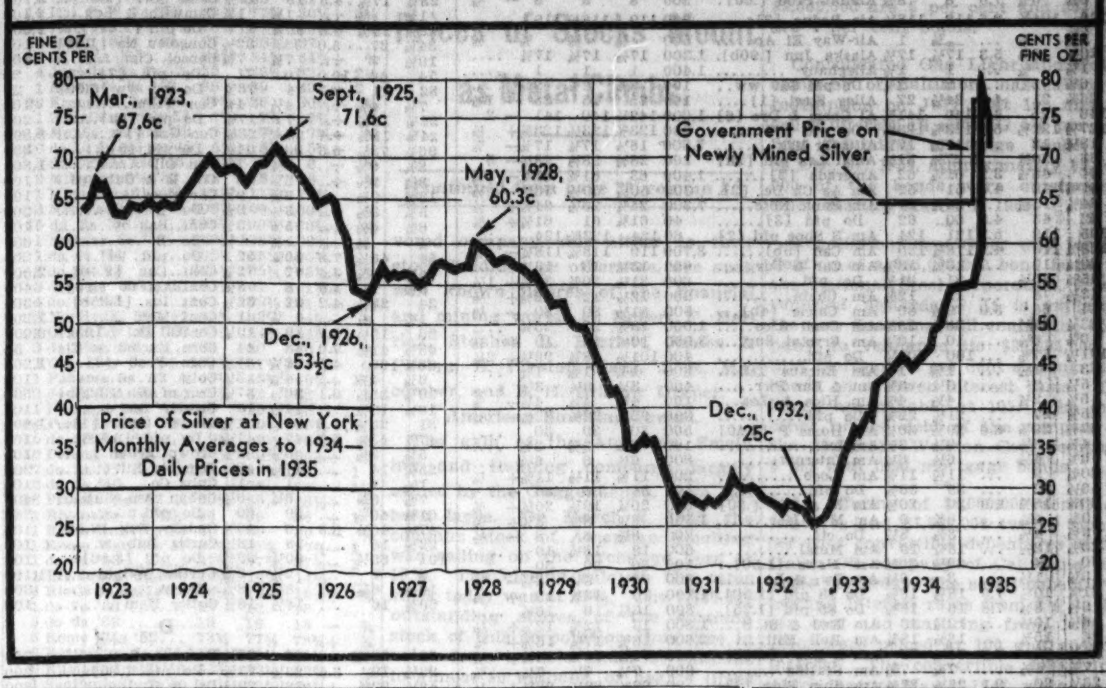
Thirteen Year Record of the Price of Silver in the United States



World Silver Prices Decline as Holders Sell for Profits

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—The top heavy speculative edifice which had been erected in the silver market during recent weeks of sharply rising prices crumbled about traders in the London market today and in the rush to unload and take profits the price fell 2⅛ pence to the equivalent of 70.47 cents. In Montreal silver futures broke as much as 2.8 cents and in this city the price of spot metal dropped 3¾ cents to 71¼ cents. That quotation is about 6 cents under the United States treasury's price for newly mined domestic silver which, for a brief period, the world price had exceeded.

So many bearish rumors circulated during the fall in price that the silver market figuratively "could not see the forest because of the trees" and overlooked, in attempting to explain what had happened, the obvious cause.

Main Buyer Withdraws.

During the period in which the world price had rushed from 60 cents to 81 cents an ounce without pause or recession the United States treasury had been virtually the only permanent buyer. When this buyer, for the time being, and because of international monetary complications, failed to follow the market above 81 cents, the whole speculative structure collapsed and the price of silver fell 10 cents below its high record.

Among the rumors circulating today was the old one that the treasury would seize the best way out in complying with silver purchase act requirements by devaluing the silver dollar in the ratio the gold unit was devalued. Procedure to accomplish this end is specifically authorized under the gold reserve act.

Another rumor was that some of the countries which agreed under the London silver pact to do nothing to disturb the value of silver intended to denounce that agreement on the ground that the United States government had done about as much as any one country could to disturb the stability of silver. Interesting as was this suggestion, it was not taken seriously in bullion circles.

Plunging prices in the commercial silver market today brought sharp declines in two silver currencies and further weakness in the gold bloc currencies.

Hongkong dollars, which have been most susceptible to fluctuations based upon the price of silver, dropped 3 cents to 57 cents and Shanghai dollars lost 1 cent at 40½ cents.

Gold Bloc Declines.

Gold bloc declines included a drop of ⅞ point to 6.59¾ cents in the French franc and a loss of 11 points in the Dutch guilder. Swiss francs also eased, being 2 points lower at 32.38 cents.

The dollar was valued at $1.0054 against francs, compared with $1.0041 yesterday. Based on the old parity of the franc the dollar was worth 59.38 cents in gold against 59.30 cents yesterday.

Pound sterling was up ⅞ cent against the dollar, closing at $4.84⅛. Canadian dollars were 6¼ points higher at 99.68¾ cents and Scandanavian currencies gained 4 points.

The price of bar gold in London was reduced 8 pence to 144 shillings 4 pence a fine ounce, equivalent to $34.87, compared with $35.01 yesterday.

"Silver Senators" Protest.

Washington, D. C., May 2.—[Special.]—A demand for resumption of government silver buying at rising prices was voiced today by senators from states in which silver mines are located. This was prompted by the recent sharp break in the world price for the metal.

The senators expressed the belief that considerable good had been accomplished by unsettling the market through "squeezing out speculators," but insisted that the treasury should immediately resume its drive toward its $1.29 an ounce goal.

AM. TELEPHONE PLANS TO CUT BIG INTEREST BURDEN; STOCK RISES

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—The American Telephone and Telegraph company is considering means to reduce its interest burden of about $50,000,000 annually, it was said today at the office of the company. The development caused a sharp rise in the company's stock to a new high for the year—114⅝.

If carried out on a large scale, refunding of higher interest bearing securities in the telephone system's $1,038,825,000 of funded debt would act to offset reductions in rates which have been brought about by regulating commissions in recent years. This total excludes the funded obligations of the Western Electric company, manufacturing subsidiary of the A. T. & T., and some other controled companies.

A. T. & T. has no important maturities until 1937, when about $40,000,000 of the bonds of subsidiaries fall due. With the exception of $65,627,000 collateral trust 5s of 1946 and $11,022,000 long term notes, all funded debt of the parent company, which amounts to $454,484,000, is of the debenture type.

HUPP MOTOR CAR IS GIVEN CHANCE FOR PEACE MOVE

Washington, D. C., May 2.—(AP)—An opportunity to reorganize the board of directors of the Hupp Motor Car corporation before hearings on the New York Stock exchange's request to delist the company's stock today was afforded by the SEC.

The directors meet in Detroit tomorrow, and J. Walter Drake, the company's second largest stockholder, told the commission the company might go into bankruptcy if the meeting was not permitted to go through.

In the hope the directors may be able to reconcile differences, the commission adjourned the delisting hearing until Wednesday.

NEW DEAL GIVES VAST FORTUNES TO SILVER MEN

Stock Prices Climb in Last 2 Years.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—New Deal legislation has more than quintupled fortunes invested in some American silver producing mines, a computation made on the basis of share prices listed on the New York Stock exchange revealed today.

Statisticians calculated that the value of the stockholdings of four leading companies in the field had risen more than $200,000,000 in the aggregate since President Roosevelt took office in March, 1933. In some instances the listed value of a share is now several times as large as it was two years ago.

Fat dividends, the fruition of soaring prices on the white metal, have added many millions more to the fortunes of the holders of stock in the favored corporations.

Success for Mine Owners.

Of all the New Deal activities, none has been more successful from the Wall street viewpoint than the one undertaken for the silver mine owners—the Guggenheims, the Phelans, Thomas F. and Edward J. Kearns, and other favorites of the so-called congressional silver bloc.

Several well known Wall street operators able to anticipate new administration "movies" in silver are also reputed to have cleaned up handsomely as share prices of the different companies have soared with the rising prices of silver metal during the last 18 months or so.

Some of the names bulking largely in the gossip of the day are those of Bernard Baruch, close friend and sometime adviser of men high in the councils of the administration; Thomas Bragg, one of the best known professionals of the street and long partial to mining stocks; William Danforth, who commutes between here and Boston by airplane and whose special interest for some time is reported to have been the shares of United States Smelting and Refining, which has its headquarters in the Massachusetts metropolis, and Benjamin Smith, reputedly one of the biggest plungers of them all.

List Values Show Big Gain.

On March 3, 1933, the last stock market day before the Roosevelt administration came into power, the shares of United States Smelting and Refining were quoted at $17.50 a share. Today the stock closed at $113 a share, an increase of about 550 per cent. On the basis of these figures the 528,765 shares of common stock owned by the 4,200 or so stockholders of the company have jumped in cashable worth from $9,253,387 at the advent of the New Deal scheme of economy to around $59,750,000 at the present. In addition to its common stock, the corporation listed in its 1934 report 468,748 shares of $50 par 7 per cent preferred stock. This stock sold at $42 a share on March 3, 1933, and now is quoted around $69, which gives an appreciation of $12,656,000.

UPTURN IN RYE CHECKS DECLINE OF OTHER GRAIN

Inflation Sentiment Fades as Market Factor.

Activity on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday presented the anomaly of the tail wagging the dog. While volume of trading in rye, a minor cereal from a speculative standpoint, failed to approach that of leading grains, outstanding strength in the cereal prevented a more serious decline in wheat, corn and oats.

May rye pushed forward for a gain of 1⅛ cents on the day, while deferred deliveries turned in advances of ⅞ to 1¼ cents. Wheat, corn and oats lost major fractions to a cent a bushel. Because of the excellent quality of rye stored in Chicago elevator concerns made small deliveries on May contracts, causing shorts to cover.

Inflation Prospect Fades.

In other grains distinct weakness in silver, which served as a check to inflationist enthusiasm, coupled with widespread precipitation over much of the wheat belt in the form of rain, snow and sleet, produced a depressing effect. Prices moved lower early in the day and held below Wednesday's levels practically all the session.

Dust storms again were reported, but these occurred largely in areas now considered beyond redemption cropwise and had no effect on prices.

Wheat prices suffered to some extent from selling against purchases of rye by traders who feel the latter grain is too cheap compared with wheat.

Closing prices of principal July futures here follow:

	Yesterday.	Wednesday.	Week ago.
Wheat	.97	.98	.97½
Corn	.83⅞	.84½	.83¼
Oats	.40⅝	.41⅛	.42¼
Rye	.59⅜	.58½	.60¼

Foreign Markets Easier.

The Liverpool market rallied late in its session influenced by buying of Argentine exporters who had made sales to Italy, but the upturn was insufficient to erase earlier losses and the market closed ½ to 1 penny lower, equal to losses of ¼ to ⅞ cents in American funds. Winnipeg eased ⅜ to ½ cent.

Deliveries on May contracts for all grains were light. Wheat totaled 502,000 bushels, corn, 5,000; oats, 32,000, and rye, 110,000.

Speculative interest continues to dwindle, which is shown in daily statistics on open interest—the volume of unfilled contracts outstanding. Wednesday, the latest day for which figures are available, witnessed a decline in wheat of 258 million bushels, a drop of 475 million in corn, and one of 249 million in oats. Oats increased 303 million bushels.

COURT DENIES PIT SUSPENSION OF ROSENBAUM

An action seeking dissolution of an injunction restraining the Chicago Board of Trade from suspending the Rosenbaum Grain corporation from membership for insolvency was denied yesterday by Federal Judge William H. Holly. The company is seeking reorganization under section 77-B of the amended bankruptcy law.

Judge Holly ruled that no emergency existed, but set May 14 for a hearing on the action. Attorney Michael Gesas, representing the grain concern, asked the delay, explaining he was leaving Chicago tomorrow for ten days.

"We are making an honest effort to effect a reorganization," Gesas told the court. "Suspension from membership at this time would disrupt the proceedings and destroy delicate negotiations for obtaining loans of several million dollars."

Judge Holly asked Murry Nelson, an attorney whom he recently appointed to head a creditors' committee for the company and an expert in grain affairs, if continuance of the injunction would work a hardship on the Board of Trade. Nelson replied that the only hardship would be a delay in disciplinary action. In ordinary brokerage failure members are suspended immediately when unable to meet their obligations.

Earlier in the day Judge Holly, on petition of Louis T. Sayre, temporary trustee for Rosenbaum Grain, ordered the Board of Trade Clearing corporation to turn over to the trustee $137,798 representing a cash balance which the company has with the clearing house.

Public Grain Storage Capacity Is Increased

Directors of the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday approved an application of the Quincy Elevator company to declare part of the Santa Fé elevator tanks at 27th street and Winchester avenue a regular warehouse for storage of grain and flaxseed. This adds 650,000 bushels of public storage capacity to the Chicago district, bringing the total to 15,310,000.

SUGAR

NEW YORK, May 2.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was easier today for spots, which declined 2 points to the basis of 3.30c per lb, while shipment sugars remained unchanged. Sales reported included 15,000 bags of Cubas for prompt shipment at 3.30 and 20,000 bags for August shipment at 3.40, both to Ourport refiners.

The easier spot market caused scattered liquidation and commission house selling in futures and after opening 1 point higher to 1 point lower prices reacted with the market closing 2 to 3 points lower for the No. 3 contract, and 1 to 3 lower for the No. 1. Sales were 9,700 tons in the No. 1, and 18,350 tons in the No. 3.

Raw sugar prices in cents per pound:

New York, May 2.—[Special.]—The market for treasury bonds weakened today as the volume of trading fell well below normal. This group was firm at the opening and made slight gains, but these were soon wiped out and small declines recorded before noon.

The reduction in trading volume for the market as a whole was largely due to the smaller turnover in the government group. Corporate issues were nearly as active as they have been recently and there was little change in the complexion of the foreign market.

First Libertys Quiet.

First Liberty loan bonds, one of the most active groups in the market since the conversion offer was made on Monday of last week, today became the least active. This was so because the privilege of exchanging for five year notes expires tonight.

Corporate bonds of the lower grades followed no uniform trend. Contrasted with declines of a point or so in some of the favorites were gains of like amount in such issues as Central Illinois Electric and Gas 5s, Interborough Rapid Transit 6s, Manhattan railway first 4s, New Haven collateral 6s, St. Louis Southwestern first 4s and 5s, and Utah Power and Light 5s. Postal Telegraphs were firm for the third successive day, following their sharp break of Monday and last week.

McCrory Issue Rises.

On a few transactions McCrory Stores 5½s ran up to a new high, increasing to 17 points the gain from this year's low. Few high grade railroad or utility bonds moved more than slight fractions out of the narrow trading areas into which many have fallen lately. An exception was Pennsylvania Consolidated 4s, which rose to a new high record on small dealings.

Foreign loans averaged slightly higher in quiet trading. French, German, Belgian, and Italian government issues were improved, but some of the Polish and Serb loans declined.

Remington Rand 5½s.

Investors' Guide: It would be appreciated if you would furnish me with information on Remington Rand 5½s due 1947.—G. R.

Answer: Earnings of this manufacturer of typewriters, tabulating machines, filing equipment and other business accessories fluctuate with business activity. During the low points of the depression, 1931 and 1932, consequently, operations were unprofitable, although in six of the last eight years earnings have covered fixed charges by substantial margins.

Both sales and earnings have followed an upward trend since March 31, 1933, and for the nine months to Dec. 31, 1934, net sales were $9,222,000, against $7,845,000 for the corresponding period of the preceding fiscal year, while fixed charges were earned 3¼ times, against 2¾ times.

Sales for the year ended March 31, 1934, were $27,913,000, against $22,484,000 and $32,247,000 for preceding years. Fixed charges in the year ended March 31, 1934, were earned 2¼ times, while losses of $1,510,000 and $1,876,000 were sustained before fixed charges for the two preceding years. Prior to that time charges were covered by margins ranging from 2.16 times to 5.66 times.

Current position at the close of 1934 was strong. The profit and loss deficit of $203,000 on Dec. 31, 1934, was wiped out by Feb. 28, 1935, and a "rather substantial" surplus substituted, according to the company.

The $17,453,000 of debenture 5½s, due 1947, are the unsecured obligation of the company. They are a business man's investment.

Mother Lode Coalition Mines.

Investors' Guide: Please favor me with a report on Mother Lode.—F. K. H.

Answer: Mother Lode Coalition Mines company an affiliate of Kennecott Copper corporation, has its properties at Kennecott, Alaska. Its copper mines have been idle since October, 1932, due to depletion of ore and low copper prices. Exploration work has failed to yield additional reserves. It therefore appears that the company's life is limited.

Liquidating operations in 1934 produced a loss of $27,000, against net income of $11,000, or 0.4 cents a share, in 1933. Loss in 1932 was $142,000, before depreciation and depletion, against net income of $97,000, on a similar basis, for 1931.

Current assets on Dec. 31, 1934, including $555,000 cash, totaled $611,000 and current liabilities were $35,000. Capitalization consisted of 2,500,000 shares of no par stock. There is no funded debt.

On May 14, 1934, Charles Earl, president, said that the company was conserving cash resources in the hope of investing it in some mining property of merit.

The stock is purely speculative.

NEW DEAL GIVES VAST FORTUNES TO SILVER MEN

Prices of Stocks Mount as Metal Climbs.

vored company, due either to their stock holdings or otherwise, are such well known figures of the financial and mining worlds as Robert F. Herrick, Stephen L. Bartlett, James J. Phelan, B. Preston Clark, J. R. Macomber, and B. H. Bristow Draper.

American Smelting Jumps.

The gain of the American Smelting and Refining company, largely owned by the Guggenheims, have also been large. On March 3, 1933, the common stock of American Smelting was selling on the exchange here at 10⅞. The closing sale on the same stock today was at 42⅝. The 1,829,640 outstanding shares of the common stock of this corporation thus rose in value from a little under 20 millions to almost 80 millions, or near 4 times over.

Officers and directors of the company include Simon Guggenheim, president and one of the largest stockholders; George G. Guggenheim; Charles D. Hilles, F. H. Brownell, chairman of the board; Artemus L. Gates, E. C. Jamieson, Lewis E. Pierson, and Roger W. Straus.

The same rosy picture includes the other American silver companies. Thus the common stock of the Howe Sound Mining company jumped in listed value from $4,200,000 in March, 1933, to around $30,300,000 today. The stock rose from $7 in March, 1933, to its close at $51 today.

Others Show Large Increases.

Park Utah shareholdings are worth around $11,217,643 today on the face of stock exchange quotations, against $2,090,492 in pre-New Deal days. The shares of the Silver King Mining company have more than double in value this year, their present book value being around $21,562,500.

Wall street apologists bitterly resent the suggestion that any considerable measure of the present orgy of speculation in silver futures is originating in that much discussed center of speculative activity. The terms of the so-called silver purchase act of 1934 made American speculation in the white metal practically prohibitive, they say, by imposing a tax of 50 per cent on the profits outright—to be collected by the broker handling the account—and an income tax on the remainder.

Thus, it is pointed out, an American speculator venturing into this market via the cables to London or the wires to Montreal would face the usual chance of losing on his investment if the administration should "jiggle" the wrong way for a change, with the prospect of collecting say only 25 per cent of his profits if luck was with him.

The Metals exchange here was closed when the President issued his proclamation nationalizing silver in August of last year and there has been no medium for local dealings in silver futures since.

Silver bullion brokers report spot sales of the metal at a minimum, the reduced purchases being made theoretically for industrial crafts and arts.

Company Profits Increase.

Wallace, Idaho, May 2.—(AP)—Thanks to better silver prices, fat years apparently are crowding on the heels of lean years for the mine operators of the Coeur d'Alene region.

Annual statements on file with the county assessor today showed major companies of the region profited $2,885,551 net in 1934, compared with $1,813,285 in 1933. One substantial silver lead producer, Golconda, had not reported when this tabulation was released. The Sunshine Mine netted $1,408,074.

BOND NOTES

A banking group is offering at par and interest $12,000,000 of Atlantic Coast Line railroad ten year collateral trust 5 per cent notes, due in 1945. The proceeds will be used to repay $6,500,000 bank loans due on Sept. 30 and to retire $4,000,000 Wilmington and Weldon railroad general first mortgage bonds due on July 1, of which $3,062,000 are 5 per cent and $938,000 are 4 per cent bonds.

Consolidated Gas Light and Power company of Baltimore has called for redemption on July 1 at 105 and accrued interest all series G 4¾ per cent first refunding mortgage bonds. As of Dec. 31, 1934, approximately $9,943,000 of the bonds were outstanding. They mature March 1, 1969.

Negotiations are under way for the floation of a $45,000,000 bond issue for the National Steel corporation, it was reported yesterday. It is explained the new financing will enable the company to refinance its $36,995,000 of first mortgage 5 per cent sinking fund bonds on a lower interest basis. The bonds are callable at 105. The only other funded debt of the company is the $2,233,334 Weirton Coal company 6 per cent first mortgage bonds.

An offering of $6,000,000 serial debentures and $7,500,000 twelve year 4 per cent convertible debentures of the Union Oil company of California was made yesterday. The serial debentures, bearing interest rates from 1½ to 3¼ per cent and maturing from 1936 to 1940, were priced at 100 and accrued interest. The convertible debentures, which mature May 1, 1947, were priced at 100¾ and accrued interest.

An issue of $1,106,000 city of Columbus, O., 3 per cent bonds is being offered to yield 2.40 to 2.95 per cent.

VAN SWERINGEN UNIT HAS NOTE EXTENSION PLAN

Cleveland, O., May 2.—(AP)—The Van Sweringen company today announced a plan of extension for its $15,000,000 in 6 per cent notes which matured yesterday.

It offers a new note of $1,510 in exchange for each note for $1,000 held by the Vaness company and a new note of $1,450 for each $1,000 note held by others. The new notes will be noninterest bearing, the face values taking care of interest from the elapsed dates to May 1, 1940. Net income is to be used to pay off the principal in semi-annual distributions.

The difference in the rate of exchange offered is accounted for by the fact that the Vaness company advanced the funds to pay coupons on the notes that were held by others for May and November, 1932, and had itself received no interest since November, 1931. The Vaness company owns $13,787,000 of the notes.

NEW MOTOR CARS REGISTERED IN MARCH 261,477

New passenger car registrations in the United States during March aggregated 261,477 units, acording to R. L. Polk & Co. In February the total stood at 170,615 and in March, 1934, it aggregated 132,212. This brought the first quarter total to 568,727, compared with 288,341 in the corresponding period a year earlier.

Commercial car and truck registrations amounted to 41,511 units for the month, against 34,797 in February and 33,885 last year. First quarter registrations agregated 111,067, compared with 81,263 in 1934.

Figures on Cook county registrations for March, published in THE TRIBUNE yesterday, were supplied by the Polk company. Credit was inadvertantly omitted.

Egyptian Government Repudiates Gold Clause

CAIRO, Egypt, May 2. — (AP) — By royal decree, the Egyptian government today repudiated its obligation to pay in gold whenever gold payment is stipulated in all financial instruments of an international character. The question of the public debt interest, which certain bondholders claimed through litigation should be payable in gold, is thus automatically settled.

SEC RELAXES AD RULES TO AID NEW FINANCING

Much Information May Be Omitted Under New Plan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 2.—Rules governing newspaper advertising of new security issues were issued today by the Securities and Exchange commission. Authorizing newspaper announcements to omit much of the financial information required in other prospectuses, the SEC explained that its regulations were designed to make possible advertisements of the same size "as used before the passage of the securities act."

The standards for newspaper announcements are such that the advertisement will not purport to give complete information and must carry at its foot the following statement:

"Further information, in particular financial statements, is contained in the registration statement on file with the commission, and in the offering prospectus which will be furnished to each purchaser and is obtainable from the undersigned."

States SEC's Position.

In an effort to prevent the misconception that the government is recommending or approving securities, the SEC also ordered that each advertisement must carry at the top this announcement:

"This issue, though registered, is not approved by the Securities and Exchange commission, which does not pass upon the merits of any registered securities."

The information which must be contained in the prospectus but which the SEC now allows to be omitted from newspaper advertisments relates mainly to the stock ownership, the financial and debt structure of the company, underwriting, management, and control, and historical matters.

These exemptions do not extend to reprints, detached copies, or other reproductions of the advertisment. A copy of the advertisment must be filed with the commission within a week after its publication.

Termed Forward Step.

New York, May 2.—(AP)—The new regulation of the securities and exchange commission concerning financial advertising was hailed tonight by a special committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' association as a "distinct forward step to protect investors without unnecessary interference with honest industry and finance."

The committee said "the regulation will be an important factor in stimulating the flow of investment funds into industry. It is a logical step forward in the program of the commission which has already resulted within the last few weeks in greatly increased volume of private financing."

The special committee has coöperated on the problem with the commission.

Two Chicagoans Elected Directors of Rock Island

David B. Gann, Chicago attorney, and Carter H. Harrison Jr., with a Chicago investment house, yesterday were elected members of the board of directors of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway at the annual meeting of stockholders. Both represent the preferred stockholders' committee of the railroad which is seeking reorganization under section 77 of the amended bankruptcy act.

Northwestern's Fast "400" Carries 10,000 a Month

The "400," fast North Western train between Chicago and the Twin Cities, up to the end of April carried a total of 38,078 passengers, or at the rate of almost 10,000 a month since it was put in service, R Thomson, passenger trafic manager, stated yesterday. The average for the first four months was 157 revenue passengers per trip northbound and 163 per trip southbound.

This advertisement appears as a matter of record only and is under no circumstances to be construed as an offering of these Notes for sale, or as a solicitation of an offer to buy any of such Notes. The offering is made only by the Circular describing these Notes and giving information regarding the Company.

2 OF 20 BANKS REPORT REFUNDS IN THREE MONTHS

Additional Data on Closed Institutions Given.

Repayments to depositors were made during the first three months of the year by two of the twenty closed banks for which statements of condition on March 31 were issued yesterday by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett.

One of the payments lifted returns from 30 to 35 per cent at the Des Plaines State, while the other was 5% by the First State of Barrington, which previously had repaid nothing. It made a second payment of 5 per cent in April. The First Italian State also has made a payment since the end of the first quarter with the aid of a loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, raising its return from 15 to 25 per cent.

Two Banks Make Progress.

Two other banks made definite progress toward further payment of depositors—First State of Steger and Forest Park Trust and Savings. Three of the twenty have returned nothing to depositors as yet.

The condition and prospects of future payments, as indicated by the auditor's reports and information from persons in touch with the respective situations, are given in the following sketches:

CRAWFORD STATE SAVINGS—Receipts, $716,600—$339,000 used to wipe out prior claims and $191,660 to pay depositors 20 per cent. Advanced $87,700 to protect assets with $42,400 returned. Legal fees $33,000. Clerical cost, $40,400. Heavy losses of $156,000. Remaining assets are expected to yield only a fraction of $887,000 book value. Assets are slow moving, but may repay depositors as much more as already paid them.

DEPOSITORS STATE—Receipts, $1,789,000—$80,000 last quarter. Cash was boosted $36,000 last quarter after expenses and repayment of $32,000 to RFC. Cash balance $81,600 is held against $238,500 balance on RFC loan. Paid $881,500 to prior creditors and $271,500, or 12½ per cent, to depositors. Although the bank suffered $454,000 losses to date, it has a good equity over RFC debt and is expected to pay double in the future what it already has returned. Paid $344,600 to protect assets with $244,000 returned. Costs include $81,000 clerical and $59,000 legal.

Des Plaines State.

DES PLAINES STATE—Receipts, $658,000—$144,000 paid out to erase prior claims and $348,860, or 35 per cent, to depositors [$50,000, or 5 per cent, last quarter]. Has made application for an RFC loan to pay a probable 10 per cent more with something further indicated before completion of liquidation. Remainng assets are carred at $970,000, but are worth far less.

DEVON TRUST AND SAVINGS—Receipts, $450,000—$336,750 paid on prior claims. Still owes $100,500 bills, and little or nothing is expected to be left for depositors in liquidation of assets on the books at $575,000 bloated value. Owes depositors $496,000. Liquidation is stagnant.

DIVERSEY TRUST AND SAVINGS—Receipts, $614,000—$26,000 last quarter. Used $21,000 left after expenses for the quarter to reduce RFC loan to $112,300. Has paid $205,000 prior claims and $270,750, or 45 per cent, to depositors. Substantially more is expected from $705,000 book value assets after RFC is repaid.

DIVISION STATE—In process of reorganization, which will free all general depositors' money. Stockholders are giving up double liability due them and converting this into stock while wiping out old stock. Reopening awaits only final arrangements on an RFC loan. Out of receipts of $574,000 the bank has paid $59,100, or 15 per cent, on deposits, $263,000 prior claims, and $100,000 on RFC loan, which has $60,000 balance. Clerical cost $49,500 and $59,350 has been advanced to protect assets.

Elmwood Park State.

ELMWOOD PARK STATE—Receipes $413,000—$215,000 paid on prior claims and $55,150, or 10 per cent, to depositors. Collected $20,000 last quarter, raising cash balance to $37,000 and indicating another dividend soon after $8,200 bills are paid. Heavy losses of $208,000. Assets on books at $512,500 are heavy with real estate but may yield another 20 per cent or so for depositors. Costs include $44,400 to protect assets, $30,775 clerical, and $24,000 legal.

GELSTON STATE—Bain bank real estate struggle which is expected to net little if anything for depositors after $75,000 prior claims are paid out of remaining assets with $718,000 boom day value. Receipts of $189,000 have paid $47,400 preferred claims, $2,000 to receivers, $19,650 legal fees, $25,000 clerical, and $41,800 to protect assets.

EMPIRE TRUST AND SAVINGS—Receipts $91,000—$58,000 to prior claims and $18,000 clerical. Liquidation slow, but might get enough from $316,000 book value assets to pay a fourth of $125,000 due depositors. Still owes small preferred claims and legal fees.

EQUITABLE TRUST COMPANY—Receipts $298,000—$166,000 to wipe out prior claims and $41,900 to pay 10 per cent to depositors. Also has paid $6,300 to receivers, $11,000 legal, $35,400 clerical, and $16,700 to protect assets. Has $17,5500 cash. Heavy losses of $130,000, liquidation slow, and large amount of dubious loans, but all bills are paid. Only fair returns to depositors are indicated.

Exchange State, First Englewood.

EXCHANGE STATE—Receipts $370,870—less than $1,000 in last six months. Paid $72,000 prior claims and $159,000, or 35 per cent, of deposits. Depositors will be lucky to get more than another 5 per cent, since most of $477,000 remaining assets are in loans reported to be of fictitious value.

FIRST ENGLEWOOD STATE—Receipts $794,000—$25,000 last quarter. Paid $369,000 prior claims and $230,000, or 40 per cent, to depositors. Paid second $13,000 on RFC loan, which now has $152,400 balance to be paid before further dividends. Cash on hand $53,400. Has good equity above loan, and another 15 per cent or more is indicated for depositors in the end. Principal costs: $46,500 for protecting assets, $43,000 clerical, and $22,000 legal.

FIRST ITALIAN STATE—Receipts $717,000—$80,000 last quarter, including $40,000 from RFC. Had paid $378,300 prior claims and $127,600, or 15 per cent of deposits, on March 31. Since then has paid out most of $87,000 cash in another 10 per cent to depositors. Some further payment to depositors is anticipated after RFC is repaid. Also has paid $39,400 clerical, $13,600 legal, and $32,850 to protect assets.

FIRST STATE OF BARRINGTON—Receipts, $221,200—$19,000 last quarter. Paid $128,600 prior claims. First return of $14,000, or 5 per cent, made last quarter to depositors. Another 5 per cent paid since March 31. Has approval on an RFC loan which is expected to yield 15 or 20 per cent more soon. Something more is indicated before final liquidation. Biggest costs are $38,200 for protecting assets and $16,360 clerical.

First State, Chicago Heights.

FIRST STATE OF CHICAGO HEIGHTS—Receipts, $533,100—$270,000 to prior creditors and $117,250, or 15 per cent, to depositors. Probably will pay as much more to depositors out of $774,000 book value assets. Losses are $173,800 to date. Costs: $19,000 to protect assets, $33,400 clerical, and $16,800 attorneys.

FIRST STATE OF STEGER—Receipts, $44,000—$17,250 to prior claims and $5,142, or 5 per cent, to depositors. Another 5 per cent soon is indicated by $4,587 free cash. This is a small bank, with proportionately heavy expenses and mostly dead real estate assets. Heavy losses of $24,700. Only small further payments are seen for depositors.

FOREST PARK TRUST AND SAVINGS—Receipts, $612,000—$17,000 last quarter. Paid $262,000 prior claims and $110,750, or 5 per cent, to depositors. Cost $65,800 to protect assets [$57,300 returned], $39,000 clerical, and $16,500 attorneys. Losses are heavy at $253,000 so far, but picture has brightened considerably by transfer of more than 100,000 claims from preferred to common status last quarter. Now has no debts and some live assets indicate some substantial payment for depositors from $540,000 book value assets. Has about $18,000 free cash—nearly enough for 10 per cent.

FULLERTON STATE—Receipts, $721,000—$1,000 last quarter. Paid $212,500 prior claims and $276,200, or 20 per cent, of deposits. Cost $65,200 to protect assets [only $39,800 returned], $68,500 legal fees, and $39,300 clerical. Added $21,000 cash last quarter after expenses, now having $31,000 available for future dividends, which are expected to be at least equal to those already paid. Nominal value of remaining assets is $1,434,000, against $1,145,400 due creditors.

GARFIELD STATE—Receipts, $3,389,000—$83,000 last quarter, out of which $64,700 reduced an RFC dividend loan to $322,200 balance. Paid $1,015,300 prior claims and $1,641,000, or 40 per cent, to depositors. Something further still is in prospect from $4,103,600 nominal value of remaining assets after RFC is paid. Paid $356,200 to protect assets, with $240,750 returned. Clerical cost $153,650 and $115,000 to Attorneys Crowe, Gorman and Savage.

GLENCOE STATE—Receipts, $442,000—$62,000 to prior claims and $263,400, or 40 per cent, to depositors. Something further is expected from $340,000 book value remaining assets, although heavy losses of $196,250 have been sustained to date. Cost $42,500 to protect assets [$34,775 returned], $20,750 clerical, $19,700 legal, and $14,000 to receiver.

William L. O'Connell is receiver for all of these banks except Garfield State and Glencoe State, where John E. Sullivan and the Chicago Title and Trust company, respectively, are in charge.

CHARGE RFC UNFAIR IN CENTRAL REPUBLIC STOCK LIABILITY SUIT

Charges of discrimination were hurled at the Reconstruction Finance corporation yesterday as defense attorneys argued for dismissal from the federal court of the RFC suit to collect $14,000,000 from stockholders of the old Central Republic Bank and Trust company.

Harold Beacom, of the law firm of Winston, Strawn & Shaw, representing the Dawes family, made the assertion that this suit is an effort to "hand pick" stockholders of the former Dawes bank, while letting stockholders of other institutions in similar condition escape liability.

He pointed out that at least 14 states have no laws concerning stockholders' liability, and that shareholders there could not be sued for deficiencies on similar loans. To permit collection of liability in this case would be tantamount to discrimination, he asserted.

Attorney Karl Seyfarth, of Seyfarth & Leonard, representing one of the two large stockholders' defense committees, argued that a blanket suit against 4,300 individual shareholders cannot be brought in equity proceedings in federal court.

The hearing will be resumed this morning.

LARD UNDERTONE FIRMER; GAINS 12½ TO 15 CENTS

Liquidation by holders of May lard contracts apparently has run its course, as the market showed a firm undertone yesterday and closed around the top with net gains of 12½ to 15 cents. Deliveries of 1,700,000 pounds of lard on May contracts passed into strong hands. Bellies were quiet, but gained 7½ to 12½ cents.

Stocks of lard at the seven leading western points decreased 2,400,000 pounds during the last month while meats decreased 19,200,000 pounds. Total stocks of lard are 66,000,000 pounds, against 136,000,000 pounds a year ago, while meats aggregate 184,900,000 pounds, against 262,000,000 pounds a year ago. Supplies of the latter are the smallest in over 5 years. Spot lard closed at $21.52; loose, $12.60; leaf, $12.75, and bellies at $16.87 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds follow:

Lard.

	High.	Low.	May 2, 1935.	May 1, 1935.	May 3, 1934.

July	16.75	16.75	16.75	16.62	7.75
Sept.	......	......	16.70	16.62	8.05

Note—Above prices include processing tax of $2.47 per 100 pounds on lard and $2.62 per 100 pounds on bellies processed since March, 1934. This tax is rebated on products exported, but varies according to the amount due to the fact that the tax was gradually increased.

BURNHAM
(for 64 years the world's largest beauty school)

The easy-to-learn Burnham System quickly enables you to become a skilled beauty operator. Plenty of practical work on live models. You learn by doing rather than by studying. Each teacher a specialist in her particular subject. 64 years' knowing how to teach gives you a flying start.

SEE FOR YOURSELF WHY MORE GIRLS ENROLL AT BURNHAM'S THAN IN ANY OTHER BEAUTY SCHOOL

BURNHAM AWARDS TRIP TO PARIS TO STUDENT. Geneve Hoffman, 3412 Montrose-av., winner of semi-annual Burnham scholarship to Paris, after completing training, sails June 19 on S. S. Manhattan. Burnham's superior training is not found elsewhere.

Wonderful opportunity for those who enroll now. Pay for MOST of your tuition after graduation. No girl who has a sincere desire and who wants to take up beauty culture is refused. Our advice to every girl who wants to be a success in beauty culture is to visit Burnham's now. Call, phone, or write for Free Beauty Book. Open every day and on Monday, Wednesday, Friday evenings until 9 p. m.

LEGAL NOTICES.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE DISTRICT OF WYOMING.
In the Matter of
NORTHERN UTILITIES COMPANY,
a corporation,
Debtor.
In proceedings for relief of Debtors under Section 77-B of the Bankruptcy Act, No. 1786.
To the creditors and stockholders of, and claimants against, NORTHERN UTILITIES COMPANY, Debtor:
You are hereby notified that Northern Utilities Company filed a petition for reorganization in bankruptcy in the United States District Court for the District of Wyoming in the above proceedings; that said Court, by order entered April 29th, 1935, approved said petition and found that the same had been filed in good faith, and by said order temporarily continued the debtor in possession of its properties pending the further order of said Court.
You are further notified that pursuant to said order a hearing will be held on May 24th, 1935, at ten o'clock A. M., Mountain Standard Time, at the courtroom of said Court in Cheyenne, Wyoming.
[1] For the purpose of determining whether the Judge will continue the debtor in possession of its properties or appoint a trustee or trustees of the debtor's property.
[2] For the proposal, consideration and/or confirmation of the Plan of Reorganization filed by the Debtor with said petition, and on file in said proceeding, and/or any other plan or plans of reorganization which may be proposed at such hearing.
[3] For the consideration of the fairness of, and whether or not the Court shall approve, the terms and conditions of the issuance and exchange of such certificates of deposit or other securities as may result from the solicitation of the deposit of securities for the purposes of said Plan filed by the debtor or from the procuring in any other manner of the assents of the holders of securities to said Plan.
[4] For the consideration of any and all other matters germane to the above proceeding.
Upon said hearing the Court will enter such orders as it may deem required or proper in the premises.
The order in respect to said hearing provides that said hearing may be adjourned from time to time without further notice unless the Court shall otherwise order.
A copy of said Plan of Reorganization filed by the Debtor may be procured upon application to it at its office in Casper, Wyoming, or may be examined at the office of the Clerk of said Court in the City of Cheyenne, Wyoming.
This notice is given pursuant to order of said Court entered April 29th, 1935.
Dated May 3, 1935.
NORTHERN UTILITIES COMPANY.
by J. M. McIntire,
Vice President.

FIRE RESCUE—Three persons on ladder (indicated by circle) as fireman helped two employes of the Seattle city light plant make their way down from the roof of the Lake Union generating plant during a blaze which trapped them. Fire authorities estimated the damage at $100,000.
